BARES PLOT TO GRAB BERLIN

DEMOCRATS NAME TRUMAN

REBELS' MOVE UPSET BY HIM, GOEBBELS SAYS

Famous Generals Reported Slain.

LONDON, July 22 [Saturday]—(AP).—German army high command conspirators who tried to take Adolf Hitler's life yesterday attempted simultaneously to seize the offices of the government in Berlin, the German military radio declared last night amid indications that the revolt was still alive and that a purge of anti-Nazi leaders still was under way.

Gen. Ludwig Beck.

The Nazi regime asserted in broadcasts that it had mercilessly suppressed the revolt of the generals, and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels was credited with having frustrated the attempt to take over the government quarters in Berlin.

Goebbels was tipped off and was able to halt an army battalion marching on the capital buildings under forged orders stating that Hitler had been killed and that the high command was taking over control of the nation, the military radio said.

Plot Involves War Fronts.

The attempted coup extended to the fronts, the official German agency DNB said. It asserted the conspirators used communications made available by a subordinate officer and tried to issue forged orders to the military commands.

Field Marshals Walther von Brauchitsch, Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, Sigmund Wilhelm List, and Fritz Erich von Mannstein have been killed in the Nazi purge, according to unconfirmed reports received by way of Switzerland.

The official version was that the conspiracy was cleaned up within six hours after the bomb exploded about six feet from Hitler's side, but there appeared in the German accounts frequent hints that the plot was widespread and still alive.

Reports Struggle Continues.

A speaker on the Frankfurt radio station's wave length, claiming to be a German officer, called early today for officers to rise against the Gestapo and then suddenly left the air. It was not clear whether insurgents had seized the station or whether it was an underground station using the Frankfurt wave length.

"It is not true that the revolt and resistance movement has collapsed," the speaker said. "German officers and soldiers should stand together now and wipe out the rotten Gestapo system and the Nazi clique who are leading Germany to inevitable ruin."

Deputy Press Chief Sundermann, in announcing that "all disturbing elements have been eliminated," added in the same breath, "And will still be eliminated," suggesting that the "small clique of generals and colonels" charged with attempting the coup might still be a threat to Nazi power.

Tell of Berlin Plot.

The German military radio said that Battalion Maj. Remer, commandant of a Berlin guard forming a part of the Gross Deutschland division, had received orders Thursday to occupy with his men the government quarters in Berlin, but that he had short-circuited the attempt by going straight to Goebbels.

The orders received by Maj. Remer stated that "the fuehrer has met with a fatal accident," this account said. The orders said further: "Disorders in the reich are reported. The executive power has passed into the hands of the wehrmacht."

The radio account continued:

EYEWITNESSES CLAIM GESTAPO ARRESTS 1,000

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 21 (AP).—More than 1,000 persons in Berlin, mostly from workers' districts, were arrested today by the Gestapo in widespread raids following up the attempt on Adolf Hitler's life, first eyewitness accounts from the German capital asserted.

All communications inside Germany — trains, planes, and telephones—were cut off late Thursday, the first air passengers from Berlin declared upon arrival in Stockholm. Essential communication services were resumed at 5:30 p. m. today.

"When I left Berlin at about 6 p. m. today," said one Swedish traveler, "the impression was that the German government had the situation under control.

No Enthusiasm Over Attack.

"There was no enthusiasm among Berliners over the announcement of the attempt to kill Hitler or over the speech the fuehrer made later. The people just said, 'Well, we don't care, the war will still go on.'"

One Swede said he counted more than 100 Gestapo cars patroling Berlin between 5 a. m. and 7 a. m. today and "they were packed with prisoners."

Report 100 Generals Slain.

One Swedish passenger said Berlin was full of rumors. One asserted two German divisions had revolted in East Prussia and another claimed the wehrmacht troops had revolted at Marseille and Nice. The most prevalent rumor, a passenger said, was that at least 100 generals had been executed.

"For the most part Berliners, who were astonished to hear Hitler accuse generals of leading the movement against him, felt the uprising was confined to high officers," another Swedish passenger said.

Guns Ring Chancellery.

Ivar Westerlund, Berlin correspondent of Dagens Nyheter, reported by telephone tonight:

"I saw more than 10 army cars speed to the reichs chancellery last night. Armed guards were stationed about 11 yards apart and machine guns were set up at frequent intervals. Passers-by were stopped, searched and ordered on. This went on for an hour and a half, after which the guard was withdrawn and everything was normal."

ALLIED RADIOS URGE GERMANS TO JOIN REVOLT

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—From London, Moscow, and other transmitters the German home front and the German armies were bombarded today with urgings to support the army insurgents against Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, who has been named by Hitler to keep order on the home front.

The Nazis fought back with broadcasts and re-broadcasts of the fealty pledges by army leaders and such stooges as Pierre Laval and Vidkun Quisling.

The Nazis had tough going, however, because a "ghost" voice, believed that of Moscow's famed "Ivan," heckled with such interruptions as "Generals of the Wehrmacht have revolted."

SIX NAZIS DANCE IN GLEE OVER HITLER ATTACK

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORMANDY, July 21 (AP).—Six German prisoners, five Austrians, and a Nazi paratrooper, danced with happiness today when they learned an attempt had been made to kill Hitler. Their only regret, they said, was that it hadn't succeeded.

They were sitting in a barn north of St. Lo when told that the Fuehrer had been bombed by assassins. They jumped up, shook hands and slapped each other on the back. They began talking rapidly.

"Too bad they didn't get him," said one. "But they will," said another, "this is the beginning of the end. Hitler is kaput—finished. There will be more attempts."

YANKS ON GUAM PUSH BATTERED ENEMY INLAND

Planes, Ships Blast Jap Defenses.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 21 (AP).—American army and marine forces have established good beachheads on Guam and additional troops are landing against light initial Jap resistance, Adm. Nimitz announced tonight.

He acknowledged the Americans are meeting "stiffened resistance" as they move inland. He said American losses were "moderate."

Nimitz reported in a bulletin the progress of fighting begun yesterday morning for the first reconquest of an American naval base lost Dec. 10, 1941.

Thanks to a terrific record smashing 17 day naval and aerial bombardment of beaches and defense installations, marines and soldiers were meeting little opposition in their landings.

Land Near Fine Port.

The initial landings, it was disclosed, were on Guam's west coast on both sides of Port Apra, one of the finest harbors in the Pacific.

Rear Adm. Richard L. Conolly, commanding the amphibious operations, said this was the smoothest of all the Pacific landings to date. He is a veteran of Sicily and Salerno and the Gilbert and Marshalls campaign.

Tanks were on the beaches within a few hours after the dawn landings and supplies were put ashore in great quantities.

Preliminary bombardment was believed to have neutralized many if not a majority of the defenses. But it is impossible to knock out inland guns and mortars, many of which are well concealed and have to be hunted out singly and silenced.

Heavy Blast by Bombs.

Some conception of the beach bombardment of Guam can be gleaned from Nimitz' report that 627 tons of bombs and 147 rockets were expended by carrier aircraft alone on the day preceding the landings.

This is believed to be a record for a one-day aerial tonnage preceding any landings in the Pacific. In addition, naval guns fired thousands of rounds of big shells into beach positions.

This terrible bombardment by units of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's 5th fleet continued "up to the moment of landings," then began searching out Japanese artillery batteries as their location became known.

Fighting on U. S. Soil.

The Americans on Guam are fighting on United States territory for the first time since their recapture of Kiska and Attu in the Aleutians.

A veteran of Guadalcanal and Bougainville—Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the marine corps—commanded all expeditionary forces.

It was believed the Jap garrison of Guam was as strong as Saipan's which consisted of more than 20,000 when the fight started.

Guam, site of an American naval station in pre-war days, is a rugged island similar to Saipan, whose ridges, caves and woods took the heaviest toll of American life in any ground action in the Pacific to date.

HOOSIER BROTHERS MEET IN FOXHOLE TO FINISH A LETTER

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 21.—Corp. Clifford L. Pifer was writing a letter to his mother, Mrs. Naomi Pifer, Warsaw, Ind., one warm, sunny day in a foxhole.

He had already written one letter to his brother, Gene, a private in a signal company, whom he had not seen for many months. He was just mentioning this in the letter to his mother when some gravel rattled into his foxhole.

Corp. Pifer looked up. There on the brim of the hole stood Pvt. Gene Pifer. The latter had found his brother in the service company of an infantry outfit after a long search down thru division, regiment, battalion and company. The corporal now had several more paragraphs to put in his letter.

REPORT 85,000 SHORE SAILORS FIT FOR ACTION

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—The navy man-power survey board reported today that 85,000 officers and enlisted men on shore duty could be transferred to combat areas or assignments at sea.

To replace these men in 17 naval districts, the board recommended assignment of 2,405 officers and 41,965 enlisted men and 3,204 Wave officers and 41,965 enlisted Waves.

Generally, the board said, "the shore establishments surveyed were not overmanned but did need a readjustment of personnel to conform to the altered war situation with its correspondingly altered personnel requirements."

The board recommended that the use of WAVES, Spars, and women marines be expanded to permit release of additional male personnel for combat duty; that prohibitions against use of WAVES, Spars, and women marines in the West Indies, Hawaii and Panama Canal Zone "be relaxed or removed" and that limited service personnel be more extensively used in shore establishments.

'What War?' Nobody Told Me, Says Eli!

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 21 [Special].—Arrested for failing to register for selective service, Eli M. Lethilmaki, 44, a lumberjack, told FBI agents:

1. He didn't know a war was going on.

2. He had never ridden in an automobile or on a train.

3. He had never seen an airplane or a movie.

Eli has lived all his life alone in the Michigan pine forests of the upper peninsula, shunning human companionship because he "didn't like people." He was arrested on the complaint of another lumberjack.

FBI Incredulous.

Federal agents were incredulous at first when the lumberjack exhibited no knowledge of what they were talking about when they questioned him on his draft status.

"Don't you know there's a war on?" an agent demanded.

"What war?" Eli wanted to know.

But after long questioning the agents said they were satisfied Eli was telling the truth. The lumberjack said he once went to Eben Junction, a community of two or three buildings, and heard people talking about fighting somewhere but he hadn't the slightest idea of what they were discussing.

However, he experienced an effect of the war at Eben Junction, tho he didn't realize it. He tried to buy a pair of shoes and was nonplussed when he was unable to because he didn't have a ration coupon.

Auto Ride Frightens Him.

Eli said he made his living by hunting and fishing and obtained what meager additional supplies he needed from a lumber company which bought timber he cut. He said he is unable to read and never owned a radio. He showed federal agents a knife he carried as warning to unwelcome visitors.

The sight of the agents' automobile frightened him and he was visibly agitated by the ride to Marquette, where he was taken for draft registration and then released.

FARLEY ANNOUNCES HE WILL SUPPORT ROOSEVELT IN FALL

James A. Farley, former national Democratic chairman who voted against a fourth term nomination for President Roosevelt, announced today he would support him in the November election. Farley, who guided Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Presidency in 1932 and 1936, thus followed the same course he did in 1940 when he, opposed a third term nomination but voted for the President that year.

Immediately after the nomination of Sen. Truman of Missouri for the Vice Presidency last night Farley issued this statement:

"I have been opposed on principle to a third or fourth Presidential term. For that reason I voted for the nomination of Sen. Byrd of Virginia. Having participated in the proceedings of the convention, I accept its decision and will support the party nominees."

Invasion Armies to Use Steel Coins in Belgium

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—Steel coins manufactured in Britain will be used by allied troops when they enter Belgium, it was reported tonight. In addition to specially printed bills, the Belgian government also has pre-war bills and coins available for the liberators' use. The steel coins are of 2 franc denomination and will mark the first occasion in Belgium's history that steel money has circulated there.

STAMPEDE ON 2D BALLOT DEFEATS VICE PRESIDENT

TRUMAN INTENDS TO GIVE UP ROLE IN WAR INQUIRY

Sen. Truman, the new Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, after being closeted with party leaders until most of the crowd had cleared, held his first press conference on the Stadium platform a short time after his convention victory last night.

He announced that he would resign from the chairmanship of the senate committee to investigate the conduct of the war.

Plans Trip to Missouri.

After a meeting with the Democratic national committee today, he said, he plans to leave by train for Kansas City, Mo., where he will remain until after the Missouri primary the first week in August.

Just before the convention adjourned, Sen. Truman was called to the speakers' rostrum.

Calls It Great Honor.

Facing the thousands in the glare of the floodlights, he said:

"You don't know how much I appreciate the very great honor which has come to the great state of Missouri. There is also connected with it a very great responsibility which I am perfectly willing to assume. I expect to do all I can to shorten the war and win the peace under our great commander in chief."

Missouri Senator's Victory Called Compromise.

BALLOT TABLES.

Figures by states on the two ballots taken at the Democratic national convention in choosing its Vice Presidential nominee are on page 2.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Sen. Truman of Missouri was nominated for Vice President last night at the closing session of the Democratic national convention in the Chicago Stadium.

The delegates stampeded to Truman on the second ballot, burying Vice President Wallace under an avalanche of votes switched from Wallace and numerous favorite sons.

In the midst of the stampede the Wallace managers threw up the sponge, Iowa, the Vice President's state, moving to make the nomination of Truman unanimous. As that motion was out of order, the roll call was completed, recording all but a handful of votes for the Missouri senator.

Vote on Second Ballot.

The vote on the second ballot was: Sen. Truman, 1,031; Vice President Wallace, 105; Supreme Court Justice Douglas, 4.

As Truman had received more than the 589 votes necessary to a choice he was pronounced the nominee of the convention, which then adjourned without delay.

In the conflict between the Communist dominated CIO backing Wallace and the southern Democrats that raged thruout the convention the nomination of Truman represented a compromise. Truman was the second choice of the CIO. The southerners wanted a "real southerner" such as Bankhead or War Mobilization Director Byrnes of South Carolina for Vice President but were willing in the end to accept Truman of the border state, Missouri.

Wallace Leads on First Ballot.

After an all day struggle over the Vice Presidential nomination in which 12 candidates were presented for President Roosevelt's running mate the showdown between Wallace and Truman came on the first ballot. Wallace received 429½ votes, Truman 319½.

At the beginning of the second ballot, with Sidney Hillman, chief of the Communist dominated CIO and American Labor party, mustering all possible reserves for the Vice President, Wallace made a slight gain but was soon snowed under by the accretions to the Truman strength.

The first substantial break to Truman came when Gov. O'Connor, Maryland's favorite son, announced that he and the 17 other Maryland delegates wished to be recorded in favor of Truman. Oklahoma swung its 22 votes from its favorite son, Gov. Kerr, to Truman, and Virginia switched 24 from Sen. Bankhead of Alabama to the Missouri senator.

Sen. Bankhead Withdraws.

Thereupon Sen. Bankhead gained the platform and withdrew in favor of Truman while South Carolina followed, switching 18 votes to Truman.

The Wallace strength was now melting fast. Delegates from the big industrial centers whom the CIO had lined up for the Vice President found it easy to switch to Truman, whom Hillman had pronounced his second choice.

The 24 anti-Roosevelt delegates from Texas went to Truman. Amid boos from the CIO clothing workers and other Wallace partisans in the galleries Mayor Kelly announced that Illinois which had voted 58 for Sen. Lucas wished to caucus on changing its vote. Then Gov. Schricker of Indiana leaped for the Truman bandwagon with 24 votes

Politics Is Gay to 1 Woman; to Another, Sad

The emotions of two women in the Chicago Stadium were at a high pitch last night as the final balloting made Sen. Truman of Missouri the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee.

In her box, Mrs. Truman laughed happily as she received congratulations of throngs of well wishers. She was exhausted after a week of anxiety and hope but happy in the knowledge that her husband had won.

Mrs. Truman and her daughter, Margaret, 20, talked happily of the honor to Dad. Mrs. Truman said the family would spend the summer at their home in Independence, Mo., just as they'd planned to do before the senator won the nomination. She will go with him on any campaign trips, she said, but neither she nor Margaret will make any speeches.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, sought an unobtrusive exit from a Stadium side door. There were tears in her eyes which she attempted to hide behind dark glasses. She smiled, however, and acknowledged graciously those friends who stopped her to offer sympathy. It was evident she wished only an opportunity to leave unnoticed. "Don't worry," she replied to her friends' condolences.

'MADCAP MERRY' MAKES IT NO. 6 IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 21 (AP).—Merry Fahrney, former Chicago patent medicine heiress, and Carlos Ojeda Jr., son of the Mexican ambassador to Argentina, were married tonight in the San Martin de Todrs Catholic church. It was the sixth marriage for Miss Fahrney.

The ceremony was attended by about 50 friends who, because the couple wished to avoid publicity, were not notified until the last minute where the wedding would take place.

for the Missouri senator, New York announced a unanimous 96 for Truman. Ohio and then Kansas plumped for Truman. It was now apparent that Truman was over.

Illinois Switches Its Vote.

Mayor Kelly, having polled the Illinois delegation, announced a switch of 55 votes from Lucas to Truman.

At this moment the Iowa delegation announced its desire to switch from Wallace and make the choice of Truman unanimous. Michigan followed the example of Iowa but both were ruled out of order.

From that time forward delegations were falling over each other to get their votes changed from Wallace to Truman. The switches came so fast that it took the tally clerks 20 minutes after the end of the roll call to tabulate the figures. And then there was so much doubt concerning the figures that Chairman Jackson announced the official figures would be given out later.

Altho it was well known at the beginning of the session that Wallace would top Truman on the first ballot by more than 100 votes it was the common understanding that the Wallace opposition would swing from the favorite sons to the Missouri senator thereafter and put him over. This understanding was based on the knowledge that Mr. Roosevelt preferred Truman to Wallace.

The word was passed about that the President talked with Truman on the long distance phone Thursday night and told him that he wanted him for his running mate.

Wallace Message to Truman.

The Vice President sent the following telegram to Sen. Truman:

"Congratulations upon your enlarged opportunity to help the President and the people.

"Both of us will do our maximum for Roosevelt and what Roosevelt stands for.

"I believe even more strongly than ever in what I said yesterday [in his speech seconding the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt]. I believe even more strongly than ever that the President is the voice of western liberalism for the world. It is exceedingly important that that voice go on. I hope all true liberals will do their part to see that the voice is able to carry on in 1945."

Battle of Practical Politics.

Behind the scenes pulling wires for Wallace and directing the shock troops of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and other labor unions in efforts to stampede the convention was Sidney Hillman, the Russian born clothing worker operating from a luxurious suite in the Ambassador East hotel. His major general directing the Wallace forces from the speakers' platform in the convention hall was Sen. Guffey of Pennsylvania, a veteran campaigner who knows all the tricks of the trade.

Chief strategists in the Truman camp engaged in maneuvers to checkmate the tactics of Hillman and Guffey were Democratic National Chairman Hannegan of Missouri, famed for his plot to steal the governorship of his state from the Republicans, who won it in the 1942 election, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, and Boss Frank Hague of New Jersey.

Roosevelt Note Hurts Wallace.

The Wallace and the Truman camps had been girding for the struggle almost from the beginning of the convention. At first Hillman was stalling for time, hoping to repair the damage done his candidate by the President's letter to Hannegan damning Wallace with faint praise and indicating that he would not attempt to steamroller the nomination of the Vice President, as he had done in 1940.

Hannegan, on the other hand, was confident that he had the votes in sight for Truman and was planning on Wednesday to have the convention nominate the Vice President Thursday night after the President's acceptance speech. Hillman, fearing so early a showdown, swung his influence against Hannegan's proposal to wind up the convention Thursday night.

Packs CIO Shouters Into Stadium.

On Thursday Hillman suddenly changed his tactics. The speech that Wallace made seconding the renomination of the President Thursday afternoon and the reception given the Vice President convinced Hillman that the propitious moment had arrived to put his candidate over. Thereupon Hillman sent forth the word that he favored Hannegan's program calling for the Vice Presidential nomination late Thursday night.

Hillman set out to pack the Stadium at the night session with clothing workers and members of other labor unions to whoop it up for Wallace. Hillman's CIO lieutenants got hold of thousands of special blue tickets being distributed by Mayor Kelly's organization for the purpose of staging a great popular reception of the President's acceptance speech. It is estimated that fully 5,000 CIO members gained access to the Stadium in this manner. They were massed in the galleries to shout for Wallace and to boo Truman and otherwise seek to influence the nomination for Vice President.

Hillman Gets More Tickets.

When Hannegan learned of Hillman's coup and surveyed the galleries packed with the CIO shock troopers, he lost all interest in getting the Vice President nominated before the end of the Thursday night session. The upshot was the postponement of the Vice Presidential nomination until yesterday's session.

Yesterday morning Hillman was up bright and early organizing for the fray. He had obtained thousands of special yellow tickets that the Kelly organization had provided in order to fill the Stadium at the last session of the convention. These tickets were distributed to the shop stewards of the garment factories and other union plants, which were closed at noon in order to permit the employes to attend the convention and shout for Wallace.

Hannegan Checkmates Hillman.

Sam Levin, manager of the joint board of the clothing industry, appeared at a meeting of 2,000 garment workers at 333 S. Ashland av. shortly after noon to transmit Hillman's orders to the labor troops. Before addressing the workers, however, Levin learned that the Truman managers had checkmated Hillman again.

Hannegan had been informed that thousands of union men armed with the special yellow tickets were prepared to storm the Stadium, that in fact they were massed around the convention hall and getting in as fast as physical conditions permitted. He acted instantly to stem this tide of Wallace partisans. The yellow tickets were invalidated and gate keepers instructed to admit none but holders of the regular convention tickets.

Levin broke the bad news to the meeting of clothing workers.

Cries "Blame Politicians."

"This meeting," said Levin, "demonstrated the ability of labor to mobilize at a moment's notice. But we have got no tickets. The politicians have given us no tickets. If you can't get into the Stadium, blame the politicians."

Thomas F. Burns, one of Hillman's lieutenants, complained that the garment workers were being compelled to carry their Wallace banners to the Stadium where men with Wallace banners were excluded, while the Truman banners were being delivered by trucks and stacked inside the Stadium for distribution to the Truman whooper uppers. Similar meetings had been held Thursday at which Burns instructed the garment workers in the technique of staging demonstrations for Wallace.

The nomination was made at the fifth session of the convention which began at 11:30 a. m. To make it harder for the Wallace claque to gain admission it was announced before the end of the first ballot that the convention would be held in session, that there would be no sixth session, and that the sixth session tickets would not be good for admission at any time.

The effect of the invalidation of the special yellow tickets and the exclusion of the garment workers was apparent when the convention got down to business. Less than 200 of Hillman's army had gained access to the hall before the lid was clamped down. The little band occupied front seats in a vast expanse of empty upper galleries.

Kelly, possibly singled out because he was blamed for shutting the army of garment workers out of the hall, was booed every time he opened his mouth and proceeded with the utmost difficulty in putting Lucas in nomination. He finally cut his speech short and beat a retreat to Johnny Touhy's 27th ward Democratic club across Madison st. from the Stadium where he foregathered with Boss Hague and other strategists in the Maurice F. Kavanagh memorial room.

Sen. Clark Also Booed.

The Wallace partisans booed when Sen. Clark of Missouri quoted Mr. Roosevelt's letter saying that Truman would bring strength to the ticket without mentioning that the President also said the same thing of Justice Douglas. Then the Truman supporters laughed raucously when Judge Mitchell of Iowa, presenting the name of Wallace, quoted the President's kiss of death letter, in which Mr. Roosevelt refrained from saying that the renomination of the Vice President would add strength to the ticket.

When Chairman Jackson sought to end after 10 minutes the demonstration for Wallace, Guffey intervened and got another 10 minutes of pandemonium permitted. Sen. Pepper, from his place in the Florida delegation, seconded Wallace and incidentally assailed the political bosses, whom he accused of "political chicanery" in promoting Truman's candidacy.

SENATORS FIND TRUMAN A GOOD MAN FOR THE JOB

Senatorial colleagues of Sen. Truman last night gave him their full indorsement as the Vice Presidential nominee. Some suggested his nomination would allay much southern dissatisfaction with the New Deal.

"Truman's certainly an improvement over Wallace," said Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, in perhaps the bluntest comment. Sen. Barkley of Kentucky, for a time a contender for the nomination; Sen. Stewart of Tennessee, and Sen. Hill of Alabama predicted Roosevelt and Truman would make "a winning ticket."

Sen. Lucas of Illinois, also a contender, predicted a Democratic landslide in Illinois. Sen. Hatch of New Mexico called Truman a man of high integrity, character and courage. Sen. Connally of Texas said Roosevelt and Truman "ought to sweep the country." Sen. Tydings of Maryland said the convention nominated "the best ticket it could under the circumstances."

COUNTY POLICE ARREST FOUR IN 'BOOK' RAID

Four men were arrested as keepers of a handbook at 813 23d st., in Melrose Park, yesterday, in a raid by Chief John J. McGinnis of the county highway police. He lectured 129 patrons, including 41 women, on the evils of gambling, and sent them home.

David Taddeo, 38, of 118 N. 15th av., Melrose Park; Michael Nese, 52, of 747 DeKoven st., Chicago; Peter Gregorio, 40, of 1442 N. Leamington av., Chicago, and Edward Gaddy, 34, of 1116 N. 32d st., Melrose Park, were booked as the operators.

County police climbed a ladder to enter a second story window at 7202 Franklin st., in Forest Park, in a second raid led by Chief McGinnis. Forty-seven customers were in the room, and McGinnis charged Edward Meier, 42, of 5711 N. Kimball av., and Joseph Specuzza, 36, of 2927 N. Ridgeway av., Chicago, with being the operators.

TRUMAN WINNER BEFORE ILLINOIS SWINGS TO HIM

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Illinois almost missed the band wagon last night on the Vice Presidential nomination. Sen. Truman had just topped the needed quota of votes when the host delegation rushed back into the Stadium from a caucus to give him 55 of the 58 Illinois votes. Wallace got the others.

All of the votes had been pledged to Sen. Lucas of Illinois and both Lucas and Mayor Kelly, delegation chairman, had protested that Lucas was a serious contender. All of Illinois' votes went to Lucas on the first ballot.

Even with Truman picking up fast on the second ballot, Sen. Lucas said he certainly would retain his claim to his votes on the third ballot. Ten minutes later Kelly passed the Illinois vote to permit a caucus.

Race Back to Stadium.

Despite the fast trip across the street to John J. Touhy's 27th ward liquor and political emporium, the Truman band wagon was rolling even faster. The caucus took about five minutes. Police halted traffic in the middle of the block while the delegates had their first track practice in years to get back to the Stadium.

Unofficial tallies had given Truman the nomination before Mayor Kelly could clutch a microphone and tell of Illinois' decision.

The Wallace votes were cast by Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville, 1940 nominee for governor; Thomas Dunn of Morris, and O. C. Wherry of Danville. There were half votes for Wallace among delegates at large—Secretary of Interior Ickes, Raymond S. McKeough, regional director of the CIO political action committee, and Congressman Dawson, Negro—but they were bound by the unit rule.

The irony of all of the futile dashing around was that Kelly had been for Truman all of the time.

Kelly could afford to take this in good humor. He is a pal of National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of Missouri, Truman's sponsor. Moreover, the mayor's role in the many conferences paving the way for Truman was generally recognized.

Truman Personal Choice.

Under a barrage of CIO telegrams and New Deal newspaper pressure, Kelly had not ordered the delegation to toe the mark for Truman. He did say Truman was his personal choice, repeating this after leading the delegation to pledge for Lucas—"until released."

The Chicago mayor yesterday placed Lucas' name in nomination at the senator's request. State's Atty. Courtney, Democratic nominee for governor, previously had been scheduled for this honor.

It turned out to be Kelly's hardest chore out of the hundreds he has handled before and during the convention.

Knowing the anti-Wallace trend of the Illinois delegation, the CIO claque rained its noisiest blows upon Kelly. He did not duck. Kelly grimly persisted in his impromptu speech each time a semblance of order was restored.

Draws Salvo of Boos.

Kelly's statement that Lucas belongs to no faction and "does not represent any individual-thinking group" drew one of the loudest salvos of "boos" and cat calls. It appeared that the CIOers took his remark as a disdainful reference to them.

The CIO and pro-Wallace racket grew to unprecedented volume despite pounding of the chairman's gavel.

Competing with the din, Kelly praised Lucas as "a mine-run man, a country boy from the farm, a soldier in the last war, a former athlete of renown, a prairie statesman." He won a moment's respite by demanding "the respect of this audience, not only as a delegate and delegation chairman, but as mayor of Chicago." Delegates applauded.

At the time planned, a small forest of banners for Lucas sprouted and the organ thundered the University of Illinois "loyalty song." The CIO outburst continued, and Kelly defiantly resumed talking for Lucas.

"The world wants our sad-faced President to continue to carry the heavy burden which he alone is capable of bearing," he said. "We believe our great senator, Scott Lucas, can help him carry the burden, and I present his name with that in mind."

Demonstration Called Off.

Sensing that the CIO had spoiled any chance for an effective show for Lucas, Kelly waved down a move toward renewing the march with banners. Grim-faced, he strode from the Stadium, followed by Lucas.

Illinois leaders said that the pro-Wallace disorder reacted against the Vice President's chances.

CHARLES SINGER MADE HIGHWOOD CHIEF OF POLICE

C. E. Singer.

Charles E. Singer, 50, former police chief of Villa Park and Park Ridge and one time Cook county deputy sheriff, was appointed chief of Highwood's force last night by Mayor Charles Portilia. Singer, now a war plant guard, lives at 1953 W. 64th st., in Chicago.

The appointment, effective Aug. 1, was opposed by Ald. Fidel Ghini, who demanded the elevation of one of Highwood's five policemen to the post. Ghini asserted the council would refuse to pay Singer. Mayor Portilia said he could reappoint Singer every 30 days to keep him on the pay roll at $200 a month.

Singer said he would brook no interference from any one in enforcing the city ordinances. He added the mayor pledged that the new chief, who succeeds John De Smidt, will be "the boss." De Smidt quit May 5 when he refused to obey orders given by Ghini as mayor pro tem.

MICHIGAN BRIBE TRIAL HEARS OF CAPITAL TRIPS

Mason, Mich., July 21 [Special].—Mysterious trips to Washington and Baltimore by two of the 22 defendants in the legislative graft conspiracy trial here, which the respondents admitted were made to confer with Maj. Charles F. Hemans, who since has testified he bribed them, were aired in testimony today.

The defendant witnesses, Sen. Leo Wilkowski and Rep. Francis J. Nowak, Detroit Democrats, both contended they were called to the conferences by Hemans, former Democratic University of Michigan regent, because he was worried about progress of Judge Leland W. Carr's grand jury investigation in Lansing which eventually returned the indictment on which the current trial is based. Kim Sigler, special prosecutor, persistently questioned the men about their conversations with Hemans who then was on active duty with the army judge advocate general's division but who now is on extended leave while appearing as the state's star witness after having been granted immunity from prosecution.

Hemans earlier testified the legislators had questioned him as to whether he intended to "tell the grand jury the truth." The meetings occurred in the late fall and early in January.

Nowak admitted he had talked to Hemans frequently by long distance telephone over a 10 or 12 week period, discussing grand jury developments.

TRUMAN LIFTED INTO LIMELIGHT BY PENDERGAST

Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, is popularly identified as watchdog of the war drive, but in Kansas City he is remembered as the politically obscure county judge whom Boss Tom Pendergast made senator 10 years ago.

When Truman was elected to his present term, in 1940, Pendergast had gone to prison, but the machines in Kansas City and St. Louis were credited with giving him the nomination. His opponents in the primary were Gov. Lloyd C. Stark and Maurice M. Milligan, former United States district attorney at Kansas City, who between them broke Pendergast's "feed 'em and vote 'em" power.

Saved by Quick Shift.

A quick shift on primary morning by the St. Louis machine headed by Mayor Dickmann and young Robert E. Hannegan, who was elected chairman of the Democratic national committee last January, gave Truman a slim victory over Stark. That morning the organization circulated the word in 14 wards to support Truman. Seven were left to Stark and the remaining seven were played as open.

Truman was born May 8, 1884, on a farm in the bottoms near Kansas City where four generations of his family have lived and to which he has said he hopes to retire. He is a Baptist and a Mason. His middle initial is only an initial.

Heads Group He Suggested.

He finished high school and got the rest of his education, including his legal training, from reading. He served as a captain of artillery in the 35th division in World War I., saw action at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne and came out a major.

When he was elected to the senate in 1934 he said he intended to do "lots of listening and mighty little talking," and he was not prominent until he was made chairman of a special senate committee to investigate expenditures for war preparation, which he had suggested, in March, 1941. Since then the committee's reports, expressing criticism of the war production board's $1 a year men, the navy's early failure to eliminate the submarine menace, maritime commission contracts, the attitude of labor in war plants and numerous other phases of the prosecution of the war, have made him well known.

His relations with President Roosevelt, while smooth enough to cause his associates on the committee to cry "politics" when six weeks ago he "reported" that the country's "wise and experienced leadership" should be continued, have not always been cordial.

MRS. TRUMAN, 91, WANTED SON TO STAY, IN SENATE

Grandview, Mo., July 21 (AP).—"I would rather have had him stay in the senate," Mrs. Martha Truman, 91 year old mother of the Democratic party's new Vice Presidential candidate, tonight told her first callers after news from Chicago that her son, Sen. Harry Truman, had won the nomination.

"But now that he is going to run for Vice President I certainly hope he wins," she added.

Mrs. Truman and her daughter, Miss Mary Truman, were alone in their little yellow bungalow on the edge of Grandview, 17 miles south of Kansas City, tonight when the word came on the radio of Truman's nomination.

Maj. Gen. Ralph E. Truman, a cousin of the nominee, was the first caller to reach the house and congratulated Mrs. Truman on being the mother of the "next Vice President."

"O well," she replied laughing, "I liked him just as well before."

Mrs. Faye Holdsworth, railroad telegraph operator, rushed in breathlessly to congratulate Mrs. Truman before proceeding to the station to dispatch many congratulatory telegrams from Grandview to Truman in Chicago.

Mrs. Truman remarked: "My, I believe she is more excited than we are."

Mrs. Truman heard the news in the house in which she has lived most of her life and where Truman spent much of his boyhood.

3,000,000 WORDS ON CONVENTION SENT ON WIRES

Three million words told the story of the Democratic national convention over the wires of the Western Union Telegraph company, it was estimated last night by J. H. Miller, chief operator for the convention. This estimate of the total for the three days was ahead of the 2,300,000 words sent by news correspondents for the Republican convention last month. Miller said that yesterday 200,000 words were telegraphed from the convention hall and 300,000 from the Stevens hotel.

BESS TRUMAN LEAVES POLITICS TO HER HUSBAND

Housekeeping Called Her Main Aim.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

When Bess Wallace married Harry S. Truman in Trinity Episcopal church at Independence, Mo., 25 years ago last June 28, she "thought and hoped" she was settling down to a life of housekeeping and church work right there in Independence.

The wife of the Democratic nominee for Vice President saw herself as a haberdasher's helpmeet at that time. Her bridegroom, recently returned from overseas service in France with the rank of major [received on the boat coming back], had ventured into a business partnership in a men's furnishing store.

The Truman's Home.

The newlyweds moved in with the bride's mother, Mrs. David W. Wallace, in her big house—one of the "old houses" in Independence—at 219 Delaware st., the place the Trumans still call home.

But the haberdashery enterprise was short lived. Soon the erstwhile haberdasher was studying law in Kansas City and serving as judge of the Jackson County court. "And that," his wife says referring to his political career, "was the beginning."

She thought the senator's excursion into politics would end soon and took the philosophical view that "it was his business." His career in politics has continued; so has her viewpoint.

She describes herself as "definitely not" politically active and sums up her past and future in that respect with: "I never have and I never intend to make any speeches."

Always Known as "Bess."

Born in Independence and named Elizabeth, but never called anything but "Bess," Mrs. Truman is the daughter of Madge Gates Wallace and the late David W. Wallace, both from families who settled in Missouri before the Civil war. Her maternal grandfather, George Porterfield Gates, helped to organize the Wagner and Gates flour mill at Independence.

Her husband was elected to the senate in 1934 and again in 1940. Mrs. Truman has followed the work of his committee on investigating war production. But this winter she has confined that interest to reading reports instead of attending sessions, inasmuch as being maidless in Washington has given her the housekeeping opportunity she hoped for as a bride. There's plenty of housework to be done in the Trumans' six room apartment at 4701 Connecticut av., Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Truman does it.

Edits Talks Sometimes.

Still maintaining that her husband is the entire political side of the family, Mrs. Truman does admit editing his speeches occasionally and listening to the ones that need careful timing.

The senator's wife is blue eyed, gray haired and slender. She won't tell her age and says no woman should after she's 20, which is just the age of the Truman's daughter, Margaret, who will be a junior at George Washington university this fall.

Altho Mrs. Truman insists her housework keeps her busy, somehow she finds time to work at a USO catering to women in service. She doesn't just stand around and say "Hello," but actually assists in cooking and serving the lunches on her noonday shift.

SOUTHERN FOES OF FOURTH TERM DISCUSS COURSE

Third Party Ticket One of Possibilities.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

Whether the south will be content with the sacrifice of Vice President Wallace and swallow its resentment against the New Deal was widely regarded last night as the major post-convention Democratic question.

Southern delegates met informally on adjournment of the convention to ponder a course of action. Among the suggestions put forth were a third party pledged to the traditional southern states rights doctrine, support of the Republican ticket and leaving the entire dispute to the vote of anti-Roosevelt electors in December.

Agitation for a third party was voiced in the regular Texas delegation, whose resentment against the New Deal is hottest, as members of the delegation blasted at capture of the Democratic party by the CIO, burocrats, and communists.

Await Texas' Vote Today.

No action was taken at the informal early morning conferences as it was decided to await the results of today's primary election, which will gauge the temper of the people of Texas on the New Deal and the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

The bitterest of the Texans favor a ticket headed by Sen. Byrd of Virginia for President and Sam Jones, former governor of Louisiana, for Vice President. Friends of Byrd do not believe he would make the run. They are confident he would prefer to announce that he cannot support the New Deal and will not cast a vote in November.

May Seek Election by House.

The alternatives for southerners are to support the Dewey-Bricker ticket or to vote the Democratic ticket and let anti-New Deal electors in Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana cast their votes in the electoral college in December for Byrd with a view to throwing the election into the house, where, in a deadlock, Byrd might receive Republican support and be elected.

Most observers were confident that the nomination of Truman will not bring the south into line for the New Deal. The southern delegations voted for Truman, but this vote was a protest against Wallace rather than an acceptance of the New Deal, it was said.

Meetings Inspired by Texans.

The meetings of southern delegates were inspired by members of the Texas delegation, who were still smarting under the convention decision recognizing New Deal insurgents in the state as entitled to half the delegation's vote.

Regulars prepared an open letter to the Democrats of Texas in which they complained against what they termed outrageous humiliation at the hands of radicals and machine politicians in the saddle of the Democratic party.

"The Texas delegation ran into a buzz saw of power politics," the open letter said. "The burocrats, the CIO political action committee, and a liberal sprinkling of Communists joined forces to tell Texas Democrats just where they stand in national politics."

The open letter concluded:

"The Democrats of Texas will meet the challenge of these undemocratic elements and will make sure that they shall not gain control of the Democratic party away from the Democrats at the precinct conventions in Saturday's primary in Texas. They do not know the temper of Texas Democrats."

60,000 GALLONS OF FURNACE OIL BLOW UP; 3 HURT

Nearly 60,000 gallons of furnace oil blew up in a terrific blast last evening on the premises of the Southwest Manufacturing District corporation, 1715 W. 74th st. A watchman and two women workers were hurt. Deputy Marshal Michael J. Cody estimated damage at $20,000.

The fuel oil was contained in a 100 foot long reservoir, buried four feet under the surface, and located 150 feet south of main buildings. Windows in the various plants, including the Hamilton Steel Products corporation, a block away, were shattered. A small prairie fire is believed to have caused the blast.

The explosion knocked down Joseph Zaremba, 68, 3249 Green st., a plant watchman. He suffered shock. The blast was heard over much of the south side and attracted many motorists, whose cars temporarily blocked fire equipment, called by a 3-11 alarm.

Mrs. Sally McCarthy, 34, a punch press operator in the Hamilton Steel Products, Inc., 1825 W. 74th st., was blown out of a safety belt. Suffering from shock, Mrs. McCarthy, wife of Policeman Edward McCarthy of 1339 W. 98th-pl., was taken to St. George hospital.

Policeman McCarthy reported that 15 to 20 other employes were knocked down by the blast. One, Marie Perry, fainted.

Secretary of State Rowe Fills Two Posts in Office

Secretary of State Rowe announced in Springfield yesterday the appointment of Carl W. Johnson, of Batavia, as his executive secretary. Johnson will succeed William H. Hughes, who has been appointed by Gov. Green as Democratic minority member of the Illinois liquor control commission. Hughes is a brother of the late Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. Johnson is a newspaper publisher in Batavia and a veteran of World War I. Rowe also appointed Alfred F. Schupp, of Joliet, as executive clerk, succeeding Harry J. Wernsing, resigned.

WALLACE SAYS HE'LL BACK F.D.R., TRUMAN IN RACE

Vice President Wallace and his principal supporter, Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee, said last night they would campaign for the election of President Roosevelt to a fourth term despite the selection of Sen. Truman of Missouri as his running mate.

Wallace napped in his suite in the Sherman hotel during most of the first ballot at the Democratic convention in the Stadium, then walked into his sitting room in his shirt sleeves to join a group of friends listening to a radio.

He Couldn't Get There.

When the second ballot was started, the phone rang urgently, and one of Wallace's party answered it. "No, he couldn't get out there for this ballot any way," he told the caller. "Maybe he'll be there for the third."

As soon as he knew he had lost the renomination, Wallace called in newspapermen and shook hands cheerfully.

"All I've got to say," he said, "is that the cause of liberalism has been advanced by what has taken place at this convention. I do not feel it is a blow at liberalism.

"What I said about President Roosevelt yesterday [when he nominated the President] is still good today. The President is the voice of liberalism in the western world. He should have the support of the people during the war and in the peace to come. I will do everything possible to help Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign."

Heads Home for Rest.

He said he will go home today to Johnston Station, Ia., for a rest.

At the Stadium, where he had a box, Hillman said he wished to "make it clear that our support of Mr. Wallace did not carry with it opposition to another candidate the convention might select."

"We believe Sen. Truman is eminently qualified for vice president. He will make a splendid running mate for the President," Hillman said. "We are confident that Roosevelt and Truman will be the winning team on Nov. 7. They will have our complete and wholehearted support."

Air Accidents, Fatalities Decline Sharply in 1944

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—The rate of aircraft accidents and of fatalities in air forces operations in the United States decreased substantially during the first five months of this year compared with last year. The war department reported today that this reflected "the emphasis placed on flying safety." Accidents of all kinds dropped 29 per cent; training accidents decreased 25.5 per cent. The death rate reported from all A. A. F. flying accidents was 35 per cent less.

CIO'S INFLUENCE IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY ASSAILED

Anti-New Deal Body Wins Recruits.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Impact of Sidney Hillman's Communist dominated CIO political action committee on the Democratic convention was denounced by former Rep. John J. O'Connor of New York yesterday as "un-American, truly astounding and alarming." Rep. O'Connor is leader of the anti-New Deal Democratic national committee.

"This influence is no less than amazing," O'Connor said, after a meeting of the anti-New Dealers in the Stevens hotel. "The Democratic party has become the victim of a violation of a great truism, probably first laid down by Plato, viz.: 'One sure way to get fleas is to lie down with dogs.'"

The former congressman said he and other leaders of his group have held frequent meetings and have been in communication with members of the regular Democratic Texas delegation, which walked out of the convention Thursday.

Texans Lend Support.

"There isn't a leader of the Texas delegation that hasn't been in contact with us," he asserted. "We have held hourly meetings since we arrived Tuesday, and it would surprise some of the New Dealers if we were to make public a list of the Democratic state heads who are evincing every sign of fully coöperating with our movement to defeat the fourth term and New Deal."

"In fact," said John Regan, for years regular Democratic leader in Minnesota, "we are surprised by the reaction to our program by some of the Democrats who have made contact with us."

Regan added that a "Dewey-Bricker All Party" association organization will be set up in Minnesota to defeat the New Deal.

Points to Spade Work.

O'Connor, in commenting further on campaign issues, said "there is no question that thruout the country the American Democratic National committee will provide the balance of power. We have been organizing since February. There are many who probably do not realize how much work has been done."

MISS GAHAGAN DRAWS FIRE FOR TENNESSEE SLUR

Knoxville, Tenn., July 21 [Special].—The Knoxville Journal has replied in an editorial, to appear in tomorrow morning's paper, to the Chicago Democratic convention speech of Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, California actress and candidate for congress.

Miss Gahagan, as she is best known, said, "we [meaning the Democrats] have turned a once desolated, flood ravished, poverty stricken valley, the home of 4½ million people, into what is now a productive, happy place to live—the Tennessee river valley."

The Journal editorial answer said, in part:

"Bow down, you 4½ millions of poor whites, and thank God that Miss Gahagan, Mrs. Roosevelt, and the others included in that 'we' have appeared in this valley in the gulse of the Savior.

Like Sahara Before '33!

"You remember how this valley was before 1933, how like the Sahara it was with scarce a sprig of grass peeping above the ground or a single tree growing anywhere. You remember there were no good farms then, no busy cities, no schools, no railroads, no highways.

"You remember how all of us went barefoot the year around, wore clothes made from fox skins, and hardly had sense enough to recognize what it meant when somebody hollered 'my friends.'

"And now look at us, Miss Gahagan, as we look to you and the other solicitous spirits who glanced down upon our poverty, ignorance, and degradation. Look at us now, now that you have miraculously taken the soddy work of God Almighty and converted this, our valley, into a 'productive, happy place to live.' Look at us, as we grovel before you and these others of the master race who hold membership in the New Deal.

Contemptuous Resentment.

"In our gratitude for your magic transformation of this valley from the place of desolation which you say God created, we shall submerge the pride of a people who, from the time of Kings mountain, have clung to a tradition of freedom unclouded by yearnings for any form of Europeanism.

"In our gratitude to you, and your master race partner, we shall bury our pride in a state which has furnished the nation with a list of statesmen and military leaders who, in other times, would have read like a hall of fame.

"In our gratitude for having been rescued by you . . . we shall submerge the bitter contemptuous resentment that wells up in the hearts of a proud people when held up to public notice as 'exhibit A' in the halls of power crazed politicians in a recital of political achievements.

"All we shall say in rebuttal, Miss Gahagan, as we close another happy, productive day, denied us, as you suggest, by the Lord, but now our gift from the New Deal, is that we hope you speak in ignorance and not from studied guile."

TWO WOMEN TELL HOW TO BECOME ORATOR FOR $1.90

Any woman can become a street corner Democratic campaign orator with $1.90 worth of equipment, Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman said in a demonstration yesterday in the Democratic women's convention headquarters in the Stevens hotel.

A megaphone to shout thru for 40 cents and a kitchen stepladder to stand on for $1.50 will help attract crowds, the convention women were told. Mrs. Douglas, who was a convention speaker, is national committeewoman from California, and Mrs. Harriman is a delegate from the District of Columbia.

Their demonstration was offered as a sample of the curriculum of a school to be established in Chicago by the Democrats to train women campaigners.

DEMOCRATS GET 'DON'T CHANGE HORSES' ON AIR

The song, "Don't Change Horses," which was banned by the major networks before the political conventions on the grounds that it had "political implications," is back on the air to an extent. It was heard in connection with the Democratic national convention broadcasts. NBC reported restrictions had been partly lifted at the request of the Democratic national committee. A spokesman for the network reported that "use of the song will be permitted on all programs sponsored by the Democratic national committee during the forthcoming campaign." He added that the ban would hold on NBC as far as programs other than those politically sponsored were concerned.

EDITOR IN SOUTH ASSAILS TACTICS OF NEW DEALERS

Jackson, Miss., July 21 [Special].—Maj. Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson News and for 38 years a torchbearer for Mississippi Democrats, predicted today that thousands of Mississippians would stay away from the polls at the Nov. 7 Presidential election in protest against the New Deal's steamroller tactics at the Chicago convention.

Sullens asserted in his editorial comment that the "days of the old Democratic party in the south are nearing an end" and that "a new independent Democratic party will be the inevitable result of what happened in Chicago."

Humiliated by Trouncing.

"We folks here in Mississippi, heretofore claiming the proud record of being the most thoro Democratic state in the Union and proving it at the polls, are in the humiliating position of not knowing whether or not we are Democrats. The cold truth is that we are not Democrats as Democracy is defined in some planks of the party platform.

"What will be the result of the trouncing we took at Chicago? Well, for one thing it will mean a large increase in the Republican vote in this state. It also means that thousands of citizens [Democrats] are going to take a long walk in the opposite direction of their polling places on the first Tuesday in November. What the New Dealers handed the south was too tough to take."

Delegation Booed.

Commenting on the Mississippi delegation that supported Sen. Byrd of Virginia, Sullens said:

"The Mississippi delegation was booed when it voted against the platform and booed again when it voted for Byrd, something that never before happened to a delegation from the state in a Democratic national convention. The majority didn't even credit our delegates with honesty of opinion. They [Mississippi delegates] seemed to be about as welcome in that big hall as an illegitimate child at a family reunion.

"Among the many Mississippi visitors in Chicago just now are a goodly group of state and federal employes who haven't a darned bit of business there and ought to be at home earning their salaries—salaries that in many instances are much larger than warranted by the public service they render."

CITE VARIATIONS ON MAIN PLANKS OF TWO PARTIES

Some Democrats Critical of Their Platform.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

One distinctive difference between the Democratic and Republican national platforms, which was pointed out yesterday, lies in the stress placed upon constitutionalism. Among Democrats at the Stadium yesterday comments on their platform were diverse, some critical, especially among delegations from the south.

Chief plank in both party declarations dealt with post-war organization among nations to preserve peace after the war is won. The Republican utterance adhered more closely to the Connally resolution adopted by the senate last November, 85 to 5, than did the Democratic one.

Sen. Connally of Texas, head of the senate foreign relations committee, served as adviser to the Democratic platform builders, and the resolution bearing his name was taken yesterday by analysts in measuring the difference in post-war party doctrines of the two parties.

G. O. P. Against World State.

The Republicans last month came out for participation by the United States in coöperative organization among sovereign nations to preserve peace, and not by joining a world state. Such organization, it was held, should develop means to "direct peace forces" to prevent military aggression.

The Democrats on Thursday declared for a post-war international organization based on sovereign equality and with power to use armed forces to preserve peace.

Use of the phrase "sovereign equality" was regarded as a concession to midwest nationalism. This plank was based on a portion of the Connally resolution, with addition of the words "to employ armed forces." No surrender of sovereignty has been one of the fundamentals of nationalism in the west and midwest where the votes come from.

Adherence to the Constitution in foreign dealings, however, a prime tenet of nationalism, was not written into the Democratic plank. It was text of the final paragraph of the Connally resolution.

In Republican Plank.

It was incorporated almost word for word in the Republican plank. This stated that any treaty or agreement with other nations to attain peace must be made only with and by the consent of the senate, two-thirds of the senators present concurring, as ordained in the Constitution.

In press conferences a few weeks ago President Roosevelt declared against an international police force and a world state. He came out for an international organization to preserve peace without impairment of independence, integrity, or administrative process. Later he said this means "sovereignty."

This is not developed specifically in the platform, apart from the phrase about "sovereign equality." The closest approach is in the plank on the four freedoms—speech, religion, want, and fear—which says, "We believe that without loss of sovereignty, world development and lasting peace are within humanity's grasp."

The Republican post-war plank threw emphasis on "we shall at all times protect the essential interests and resources of the United States."

Its dominant note was to put America first in post-war dealings. In its conclusion it pledged the Republican party "to uphold with all our strength the Bill of Rights, the Constitution, and the law of the land." On these things the Democratic plank is silent.

Critical of Racial Plank.

On the racial plank, which was highly controversial in the Democratic platform making, dissatisfaction was expressed among some delegates from southern states in revolt against the New Deal. Similar criticism came from representatives of Negro organizations, claiming a total membership of 6,500,000, and other bodies who demanded a plank embodying anti-poll tax, and anti-lynching legislation, a permanent fair employment practices committee, and other measures. They deemed they had not been given even half a loaf by the Democrats.

The Democratic plank was brief:

"We believe that racial and religious minorities have the right to live, develop and vote equally with all citizens and share the rights that are guaranteed by our Constitution. Congress should exert its full constitutional powers to protect these rights."

This, by the way, is the only reference to "constitutional powers" in the platform, except in a plank for a constitutional amendment for equal rights for women.

Minority Report Blocked.

In the platform committee, members from eight southern states signed a minority report on this plank, but under the rules, signatories from 12 states were required, so it did not go to the floor of the convention.

The Republican plank on racial and religious intolerance had pledges for anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation and for a permanent fair employment practice commission. It declared for a congressional inquiry to learn the extent of segregation and discrimination against Negroes in the armed services, and for adoption of corrective measures.

Comments on Platform.

Comments among Democrats at the Stadium yesterday during the convention were varied. Among them were:

SEN. MAYBANK [S. C.]—The platform as a whole is excellent. It could have been improved by an assertion that the determination of voting qualification is a matter of state's rights and that the states should have full control over their school systems. The foreign policy plank should have included a world state.

SEN. PEPPER [FLA.]—It's a good platform. It implies that congress shall do all that it can do under the constitution to protect civil liberties.

STATE CHAIRMAN J. F. ODOM [La.]—It is not entirely satisfactory, altho on the whole it is fair. The southern delegations wanted a plank recognizing the state's right to control voting and the public schools, and naturally we are disappointed at not getting it.

JOE HARDIN, vice chairman of the Arkansas delegation—It's not entirely satisfactory to us. We are critical of its liberality on the race question. That's something that should be left to the states. We like the reiteration of the agricultural parity concept.

Minnesota Approves It.

E. F. KELM, Minnesota state chairman—The platform is very good. The foreign policy plank is a clear expression of the policies President Roosevelt has put in action.

SEN. KILGORE [W. Va.]—You can't put every detail into a platform. Ours covers the whole field. More important, it is a platform the people can understand.

DELEGATE JOHN CROSSLAND, Texas Roosevelt delegation—The platform is O. K. We're Democrats, first, last, and always.

DELEGATE LEE LOCKWOOD, Texas anti-Roosevelt delegation—The platform is a great mistake because it does not restore the two-thirds rule. Both parties are dividing the voters of the white and colored population, with the colored vote the deciding factor.

SEN. MURDOCK [Utah]—The platform is good. The foreign policy plank expresses the stand the party must take.

Sen. McKellar Critical.

SEN. McKELLAR [TENN.]—The platform? Our delegation voted against it.

GOV. C. W. DARDEN [VA.]—I am fearful of the Atlantic charter provisions. We have to have naval bases and we can't get them without doing violence to the Atlantic charter. The activities of our fleet in the Atlantic and especially in the Pacific are dependent upon bases. Unless we take them we'll have to buy back our security again, with the lives of American boys.

Post-War Foreign Relations Planks

REPUBLICAN.

"We shall seek to achieve such aims [winning the war and attaining peace] thru organized international coöperation and not by joining a world state.

"We favor responsible participation by the United States in post-war coöperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world.

"Such organization should develop effective coöperative means to direct peace forces to prevent or repel military aggression."

A paragraph here calls for just treaties, for promotion of world opinion to influence the nations to right conduct, for development of international law, and an interenational tribunal.

"We shall seek, in our relations with other nations, conditions calculated to promote world-wide economic stability, not only for the sake of the world, but also to the end that our own people may enjoy a high level of employment in an increasingly prosperous world.

"We shall keep the American people informed concerning all agreements with foreign nations. In all of these undertakings we favor the widest consultation of the gallant men and women in our armed forces who have a special right to speak with authority in behalf of the security and liberty for which they fight.

"We shall sustain the Constitution of the United States in the attainment of our international aims; and pursuant to the Constitution of the United States any treaty or agreement to attain such aims made on behalf of the United States with any other nation or association of nationss, shall be made only by and with the consent of the senate of the United States, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur.

"We shall at all times protect the essential interests and resources of the United States."

DEMOCRATIC.

"That the world may not again be drenched in blood by international outlaws and criminals, we pledge:

"To join with the other united nations in the establishment of an international organization based on the principle of sovereign equality of all peace loving states, open to membership by all such states, large and small, for the prevention of aggression and the maintenance of international peace and security.

"To make all necessary and effective agreements and arrangements thru which the nations would maintain adequate forces to meet the needs of preventing war and of making impossible the preparation for war and which would have such forces available for joint action when necessary.

"Such organization must be endowed with power to employ armed forces when necessary to prevent aggression and preserve peace.

"We favor the maintenance of an international court of justice of which the United States shall be a member and the employment of diplomacy, conciliation, arbitration, and other like methods where appropriate in the settlement of international disputes.

"World peace is of transcendent importance. Our gallant sons are dying on land, on sea, and in the air. They do not die as Republicans. They do not die as Democrats. They die as Americans. We pledge that their blood shall not have been shed in vain. America has the opportunity to lead the world in this great service to mankind. The United States must meet the challenge. Under Divine Providence, she must move forward to her high destiny."

Text of Race Issue Stand in Platforms of Two Parties

REPUBLICAN.

"We unreservedly condemn the injection into American life of appeals to racial or religious prejudice.

"We pledge an immediate congressional inquiry to ascertain the extent to which mistreatment, segregation, and discrimination against Negroes who are in our armed forces are impairing morale and efficiency, and the adoption of corrective legislation."

"We pledge the establishment by federal legislation of a permanent Fair Employment Practice commission.

"The payment of any poll tax should not be a condition of voting in federal elections and we favor immediate submission of a constitutional amendment for its abolition.

"We favor legislation against lynching and pledge our sincere efforts in behalf of its early enactment."

DEMOCRATIC.

"We believe that racial and religious minorities have the right to live, develop, and vote equally with all citizens and share the rights that are guaranteed by our Constitution. Congress should exert its full constitutional powers to protect those rights."

FORECAST DECREASE IN CIVILIAN BUTTER SUPPLIES THIS YEAR

Americans were asked yesterday to spread their butter a little thinner during the rest of this year, altho there was no indication of an increase in the 12 points a pound required for the creamery kind. The American Butter institute said the dry hot weather this month in most of the butter producing areas had burned up pastures and cut production.

Last year civilians had about 12 pounds per person on the average, but are likely to get only 10 pounds each in 1944. Army and navy demands are higher, and the services are taking 45 per cent of all July creamery butter production, leaving only about ¾ pound per civilian.

Lose your ration book? It is no longer mandatory that you advertise for it, the office of price administration said. Just see your ration board.

Shoes damaged in manufacture can be sold ration free soon at $1.80 a pair, the OPA said. The first permits authorizing dealers to sell them will be issued early next month.

NEGROES ASSAIL PLANK

Negro leaders thruout the country yesterday denounced as evasive and worthless the Democratic party's plank intended to cover the issue of racial discrimination.

The platform, which neglected to mention the Negro by name, included none of the rights the race had asked for, they asserted. Some stated the Republican party had met the issue squarely with promises of a congressional investigation, corrective legislation against discrimination against Negroes in military service, opposition to the southern poll tax laws, and anti-lynching legislation.

Plank Called Mere Splinter.

"To call the section on the Negro a plank is a misnomer; it is best characterized as a splinter," said a statement issued in New York by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. "Badgered by professional bigots from the south and dictated to by northern political machines more interested in votes than principle, the Democratic mountain labored and brought forth a mouse of evasion . . .

"The platform says nothing regarding a fair employment practice committee, the poll tax, lynching, mistreatment of Negroes in the armed services, discrimination in employment, or segregation.

Small Comfort in Omissions.

"It is little comfort to know that the Democratic convention did not go farther and yield to the southern demand for a 'white supremacy' plank, restoration of the two-third rule, and repudiation of the Supreme court's decision in the Texas white primary case.

"Neither party platform is satisfactory to intelligent Negroes."

William E. King, member of the Illinois Industrial commission, Republican committeeman of the 3d ward, and congressional candidate from the 1st district said:

"The Democrats sidestepped all of the real issues and made a general statement which did not even mention the Negroes by name. The platform contains nothing Negro groups had asked. In contrast, the Republican platform did contain planks they had asked. I would say the President has let the Negroes down."

De Priest Says It's Meaningless.

"The Democratic platform is a general statement that means nothing," said Oscar De Priest, alderman of the 3d ward and former congressman. "It is too evasive to deserve comment. The Republicans, on the other hand, met the racial questions in their platform."

"The platform was distressingly disappointing in its evasion of the vital issues of the ballot for 10 million Negroes in the south whose sons are among America's heroes, too," said Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council. "The G. O. P. platform was forthright on these vital issues and Gov. Dewey has been foresquare in backing them up with his personal enforcement."

LOSES WALLET WITH $90.

Daniel O'Neil, 7829 Langley av., reported to police yesterday that he lost his wallet, containing $90, at 99th st. and Langley av.

END CONVENTION AS IT BEGAN—AMID CONFUSION

BY THOMAS MORROW.

The Democratic national convention ended last night in the Chicago Stadium as it had begun—in a state of confusion.

Sen. Truman, the Democrats were assured, was their candidate for Vice President but no one ever did find out officially by what vote he had been elected. After one tally had been announced there came an anguished appeal from the Tennessee microphone on the floor.

"What became," a delegate pleaded to know, "of the 26 votes Tennessee cast for its great governor?"

Sen. Jackson of Indiana, permanent chairman, conceded the 26 votes had been bestowed on the governor from Tennessee, but he could offer no clews where they had gone. No one else had any ideas so the convention ended in a blare of band and organ music and bewilderment in Tennessee.

Hear a Barrage of Oratory.

It had been an eight hour session and the delegates had listened to a barrage of booming oratory and perused 17 candidates before finding a Vice Presidential nominee.

As the lights glared on for the business of the day, the organist, apparently in the best form of the convention, bore down with enthusiasm on "Beer Barrel Polka" and "Alabamy Bound."

It was 12:12 p. m. when Sen. Jackson of Indiana, permanent chairman, banged the gavel and pleaded for "a semblance of attention." He seemed upset by the confusion on the floor and in the gallery.

His plea for order, one of the most impassioned speeches of the convention, brought quiet. He called Dr. John Thompson, retired pastor of the Methodist Temple, to the microphone to pronounce the invocation.

Barbara Scully Sings.

The prayer finished, Jackson again asked the delegates to use the "aisles as aisles and not as a football scrimmage." Barbara Scully of the Chicago Civic Opera company appeared to sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

She presented to the convention a wealth of blonde hair, and a pleasing voice. The delegates came to expectant attention when Jackson told them the convention was ready for the major business of the day.

The call of "Alabama" started the parade of Vice Presidential candidates before the Democrats.

Sen. Hill of that state strode to the microphone and placed in nomination the name of John H. Bankhead.

The Alabama delegation whooped and waved the state standard. Arizona yielded to Missouri.

Boo Comes from Galleries.

The apparent intention of Missouri to nominate Sen. Truman of that state brought the first indication that a Henry A. Wallace-CIO cheering section had found its way into the balconies. A boo from the balconies caused Chairman Jackson to object.

"We had a session yesterday when cat-calls and boos were heard," he told the convention. "The delegates have a right to any demonstration they wish to make. As to the galleries, their demonstrations will be under the limitations of good taste."

Sen. Clark of Missouri made the nominating speech in Truman's behalf. His candidate, said Clark, has the qualifications necessary for the Vice Presidency and Presidency, "has been a friend of agriculture, a superb soldier, and the senate's leading expert on transportation."

Ohio's Plans Go Awry.

Ohio announced that Rep. Coffey would second the nomination of Truman but something went amiss. After peering about the speaker's stand and searching the Ohio delegation, Jackson gave up and turned to Colorado.

"The cool state of Colorado yields to wonderful Wyoming," came the announcement from the floor. It appeared for a time that Gov. Hunt of Wyoming, who had everything but some new cliches, would have to borrow a voice before he got thru nominating Sen. O'Mahoney of that state.

He started boldly enough but began to cough like a faulty motor in mid-speech. Water was rushed to his aid and he began to pick up again.

The convention was puzzled for a time as to whether he proposed to sell a carpet sweeper or indorse some brand of ink. Toward the end, tho, he brightened considerably and lit on Sen. O'Mahoney, whom he pronounced 100 per cent liberal and a New Dealer in philosophy for 20 years.

Coffey Finally Shows Up.

As he finished Rep. Coffey of Ohio found the platform. He got his oral chore done without much difficulty and Jackson again turned to the condition of the hall.

He said that alternate delegates get little consideration at conventions and asked them to stand. The standing revealed that many who were not alternates were in the section and Jackson asked them to leave. The strategy pleased the chairman and he chuckled.

California, which had passed, got back into the roll call by vote of the convention and yielded to Iowa. This indication that Wallace was about to be nominated brought a cheer from the CIO cheering section of the galleries. There were cowbells, Wallace signs popped up about the hall, and the galleries loosed a flow of confetti.

Iowa Supreme Court Judge Richard F. Mitchell, red of face, baldish, and bespectacled, went to work in behalf of the Vice President.

Praises Part in War.

By renominating the President, Judge Mitchell said, the convention had done conscientiously the first duty of the meeting. His candidate, said the speaker, did not let the commander in chief shoulder the burden of war alone.

"He became a special messenger and carried the American way of life to the Russians and Chinese," Mitchell told the delegates. "He worked for higher production at lowered cost.

"He has faith in the common man and believes in his rights. He came from the farm and loves the farmers, but he sees the whole picture. I like his candor and I like the way he gets along with all sorts and classes of people."

15 Minute Demonstration.

As he finished and pronounced with fervor the name of Wallace, the galleries and backing states unfolded a 15 minute demonstration. There was more confetti and much noise from the galleries.

Standard Wallace signs, augmented by new ones, broke forth on the floor. One of the added starters said, "Frank and Hank."

A parasol brigade appeared, bearing brightly colored umbrellas decorated for Wallace. Minnesota joined Iowa in the parade, and North Dakota, Georgia, Virgin Islands, Oregon, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, and Utah fell in.

There was no music, apparently on convention order, until the band yielded after five minutes and played "Iowa." One gallery group equipped with megaphones chanted the name of "Wallace."

Galleries Drown Out Voice.

Each time that Jackson sought to restore order, the galleries drowned his efforts. He finally brought the convention back to order.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, national committeewoman from Pennsylvania, had a pleasant chat with the convention. When she finished, it developed that she was seconding the nomination of Wallace.

For this she received a bouquet of American Beauty roses. This made her and the photographers mildly happy.

Sen. Pepper of Florida, ardent New Dealer, adopted a new technique and seconded Wallace from the floor. Gov. Arnall of Georgia agreed with Pepper that Wallace "is a fine man" and said he'd made a good Vice President.

Kelly Nominates Lucas.

Mayor Kelly, over a chant of "We want Wallace," put the name of Sen. Lucas in nomination. The mayor praised Sen. Lucas as a man with no political ties, and a champion of the service man.

As he finished the Illinois delegation whipped up a demonstration for Lucas which drowned the demands for Wallace from the galleries.

Frank McHale, national chairman of Indiana, got Paul V. McNutt into the Vice Presidential free for all, and termed his candidate half urban and half rural.

A Kansas delegate told the convention that the Democrats didn't change pitchers so why change catchers. He seconded Wallace.

Barkley's Name Entered.

Sen. Barkley swelled the growing list of candidates when Keen Johnson of Kentucky offered his name to the convention.

Gov. Jimmy Davis of Louisiana didn't sing. He just seconded Truman and sat down. Gov. McGrath of Rhode Island joined Davis in supporting Truman.

Richard Frankensteen of the CIO and Michigan attacked bossism, said "Wallace's heart is pure," and confided to the convention that a few men in Jersey City, Chicago, Tammany, and Kansas City do not speak for the American people, but Roosevelt does. He made the convention official at 3:12 p. m. when he introduced the phrase "smoke filled room" into proceedings.

Murphy Seventh Entry.

Associate Justice Frank Murphy of Michigan swelled the entry list to seven when Rep. O'Brien called him a man who "believes in justice and fair play to all men" and a man "whose political career has been built on tolerance and brotherly love." Lunch time past, delegates munched sandwiches as they heard the O'Brien speech.

A Minnesota delegate announced that the state group was instructed for Wallace and "furthermore has not heard one reasonably sound word advanced why he should not be nominated." Mississippi seconded Bankhead, and Montana drew a cheer of relief by passing without comment.

Nevada seconded O'Mahoney, New Hampshire passed, and New Mexico approved Truman. New York passed and reserved the right to be recognized.

Gov. Broughton Lauded.

Clyde R. Hoey, former governor of North Carolina, was equipped with tall coat, button hole carnation, and an unbounded enthusiasm for Gov. Broughton as a Vice President.

North Dakota seconded Wallace from the floor. Oklahoma offered William G. Stigler to make a nominating speech. He placed the state's approval on Gov. Kerr, raising the number of candidates to 10.

There were 11 candidates in the field when Estes Kefauver of Tennessee departed from the microphone. He championed the cause of Gov. Cooper of Tennessee.

Pennsylvania for Truman.

Truman gathered up the votes of Pennsylvania when that state seconded his nomination. A representative of Texas announced that state, represented by two delegations, had agreed to pass.

Sen. Murdock of Utah brought to an even dozen the candidates for Vice Presidential nomination when he named his colleague, Sen. Thomas. Vermont and Virginia passed, while Washington seconded the nomination of Wallace.

When the roll call on candidates was finished, Jackson announced that the convention would go immediately into the balloting on the Vice Presidency. He outlined the procedure and ordered the clerk to call the roll.

Balloting Put Under Way.

The call of Alabama got the balloting under way.

Balloting halted when the Massachusetts vote was challenged and a poll of the delegates was demanded. Rep. McCormack, majority leader of the house, gave his vote to Truman.

Added to the 12 candidates placed in nomination during the voting were Speaker Rayburn of Texas, Sen. Pepper of Florida, and Gov. O'Conor of Maryland. Bascom M. Timmons, Washington newspaper man, drew a vote from the Texas delegation.

With all votes recorded save Puerto Rico, Wallace had an unofficial count of 437, and Truman 310. A roar of dismay went up from spectators and delegates when the New York delegation, with 95 votes, brought forth a challenge and a poll of the delegation. James A. Farley recorded his vote for Sen. Barkley.

Delaware First to Switch.

As 589 is needed for nomination, Sen. Jackson prepared to call the roll for the second ballot. Alabama began the second time around by adding two to the Wallace total. Colorado gave the Vice President 8½ more than on the first ballot.

The first switch came from Delaware, which had given eight to Wallace, but this time turned them to Truman.

A roar greeted the announcement of Gov. O'Conor of Maryland that he had polled the delegation and was authorized to switch the votes cast in his behalf to Sen. Truman. Michigan held that Sen. Jackson, permanent chairman, was entitled to one vote for running the convention so fairly but the Indiana senator refused the honor.

Mississippi in Caucus.

Mississippi announced the delegation was caucusing when called and desired to switch to Truman from Barkley. The state was told to wait for the end of the roll call.

A break came when Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma released 22 votes, which had gone to him on the first ballot, to Sen. Truman. Oregon made it 17 candidates by casting one vote for Supreme Court Justice Douglas.

Sensing the voting was turning against their candidate, the CIO cheering section in the gallery started a "We Want Wallace" chant. Sen. Jackson gaveled the demonstration to silence and told the noisemakers the delegates must be allowed to name the Vice Presidential nominee.

After his nomination had been officially announced Sen. Truman climbed to the speakers' stand and was congratulated by party leaders. He shook hands with Sen. Barkley, who had gone to the microphone and changed the Kentucky vote from himself to the successful candidate.

Kelly and Truman Pose.

Mayor Kelly, at the request of photographers, held hands with Truman while pictures were snapped. The tally clerks, after a thoro perusal of the situation, came to the conclusion the vote was: Truman, 1,100; Wallace, 66; Douglas, 4.

Then Truman posed for pictures with Jackson and with his brother, A. V. Truman.

After a benediction Sen. Jackson gave a final rap of the gavel and declared the convention closed.

DEMOCRAT ADDS BLURB TO ARMY BALLOT BLANKS

Sends Own Vote Plea with Applications.

Evansville, Ind., July 21 [Special].—Protests to state and federal officials have been made concerning the practice of Charles J. Eichel of Evansville, Democratic candidate for congress, in sending to service men reproductions of war ballot applications that contain his personal advertising, it was disclosed today.

Eichel was said to have sent out some 200,000 reproductions of the official application. Attached to each reproduction was a stub on which was printed Eichel's vote ballyhoo.

"Save this stub as a reminder to vote for Eichel," it said. "He is an advocate of an immediate increase of $100 a month minimum pay for service men and a corresponding increase for their dependents. The service men's cause is championed by Eichel. Write your friends and family back home to vote for him."

Practice Termed Unethical.

Mayor Manson L. Reichert, chairman of the Vanderburg county Republican committee, branded the practice unethical if not illegal.

"When soldiers return this form to the secretary of state with Eichel's ad still attached to it, as some of them already have done," Reichert said, "public money is then being used, under soldier franking privileges, to carry the campaign literature of a Democratic candidate.

"Furthermore, sending a reproduction of an official form to a soldier and advising him, on an attached stub, to vote for a certain candidate may lead the soldier into the mistaken belief that some authorities connected with the handling of ballots are indorsing that candidate."

Legality Rulings Asked.

The mayor said that Secretary of State Rue Alexander has asked Atty. Gen. James Emmert for a ruling on the matter. Rulings also have been asked of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, the war ballots commission, and the house of representatives committee on campaign expenses by Rep. Charles M. La Follette, Republican opponent of Eichel in the 8th congressional district race.

Both La Follette and Eichel are Evansville attorneys. Eichel formerly was a city judge and now is chairman of the county Democratic committee.

Republican leaders also have charged that Eichel has used another improper campaign practice by inducing official investigators of vote registrations to conduct a personal poll for him. The investigators are paid with public funds to make a house to house check of registrations.

DISMISS NMU'S $1,000,000 SUIT AGAINST PAPER

Cleveland, O., July 21 [Special].—Federal Judge Paul Jones today dismissed a one million dollar libel suit filed against the Akron Beacon Journal by two officers of the national maritime union, who charged that the union had been maligned by two news stories stating members of the NMU had refused to unload a merchant ship during the battle of Guadalcanal.

Judge Jones ruled the court did not have jurisdiction and that union officials had not complied with court procedures in the suit.

In the suit, Joseph Curran, NMU president, and H. Medley Stone, treasurer, charged that Beacon Journal stories on Jan. 21 and 22 last year said "the strike forced six marines to unload their own supplies" because NMU members refused to violate a union rule against Sunday work. The union officials said the union clause in war contracts does not forbid Sunday work. The story later was denied by navy and marine authorities.

A similar suit against the Beacon Journal and the Associated Press, filed in Toledo, O., was dismissed in November, 1943, for lack of jurisdiction.

DISLOYAL JAPS' CAMP POLICE QUIT IN FEAR

San Francisco, Cal., July 21 [Special].—The Tule lake segregation center for disloyal persons of Japanese ancestry, was operating today without the services of a Japanese police force of about 70 members, all of whom quit last night because of threats against their lives made by fellow evacuees.

A war relocation authority spokesman explained that Japanese were used as "colonial police" to preserve order in their own blocks in the camp residential area. In addition, however, there are 44 internal security men, all Caucasians, who have the right to make arrests. This internal security force was still on the job today. Military police are stationed outside the camp.

Originally the "colonial police" numbered 115, but the chief and several of his "assistants" resigned July 2 when Yazo Hitomi, general manager of the center's cooperative enterprises, was found dead with his throat cut. Since then the police have been quitting in small groups, on receipt of threats.

Marion Isbell Will Take His New OPA Post Oct. 1

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP)—The office of price administration said today that Marion W. Isbell, newly appointed director of the Chicago OPA district office, will take his new post Oct. 1. Isbell will continue to serve, meanwhile, as chief of the national OPA restaurant rationing branch, pending the appointment of a successor.

ILLINOIS NAVY FLYERS SET POST-WAR AIMS: THEY'LL BE CIVILIANS!

ABOARD A CARRIER, Central Pacific, July 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Ask navy flyers what they're going to be after war and most of them shout happily: "Civilians!" Some pilots who have made remarkable combat records—in air group 16, for instance—plan to continue navy careers. But not all.

"The trouble is, war just doesn't fit a man for any peacetime job," said Lt. [j. g.] O. B. Pace, a small town lawyer from Lacon, Ill., who became an aviation gunnery officer.

Lt. Elmer A. Kraft, of R. R. 1, Gilman, Ill., executive officer of air group 16, figures prices after the war will be terrific and farmers ought to do all right. "So maybe I'll just go back to the farm and sit down and eat fresh ham and eggs," he said.

CRITICAL WMC AID FIRED FROM CLEVELAND POST

Cleveland, O., July 21—[Special].—Dr. William P. Edmunds, director of the Cleveland area of the war man power commission, who had opposed what he termed the "labor draft," was removed from his office today by Robert C. Goodwin, regional WMC director, on charges of insubordination.

"I'm surprised I lasted as long as I did simply because I always have maintained that the fewer restrictions clamped on labor and management the better," Dr. Edmunds commented.

His opposition was directed at new employment controls that went into effect July 1 here and in other critical labor areas. An outspoken critic of labor hoarding, he has been critical of extensive man power in army camps which he said had an excess of 20,000 civilian workers.

BROWNELL HITS F. D. R. POLITICAL USE OF U. S. BASE

Thinks Action Will Cause Great Resentment.

Bricker to See Dewey

Columbus, O., July 21 (AP).—Gov. Bricker, Republican nominee for Vice President, said today he would go to Albany next week to confer with Thomas E. Dewey, the party's standard bearer. The exact date for his visit will be arranged later, Bricker added.

New York, July 21 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., Republican national chairman, said today President Roosevelt's action in delivering his acceptance speech from a naval base would cause resentment among the people of the United States.

"The American people," Brownell said at a press conference, "will deeply resent President Roosevelt's effort to exploit the armed forces of the United States by using a naval base as a platform for a partisan speech to a political convention."

Criticises Timing.

The chairman said he made the statement without the knowledge of Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

"In his long-planned effort to perpetuate himself for 16 years in the White House, Mr. Roosevelt has known for months that he had a date to make a political speech last night to the Democratic convention," Brownell continued. "Yet he chose that particular night to visit a naval base on the Pacific coast. It was, in fact, his first visit to any army or navy base outside Washington in 15 months."

Dewey Sees Johnston.

Albany, N. Y., July 21 (AP).—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said tonight he had told Gov. Dewey that Russia offers "great trade opportunities" for the United States, but that "it will be essential to grant long term credits" to the soviet union.

Johnston, who returned July 13 from Russia where he toured factories, observed front line activities of the Red army and conferred with Premier Josef Stalin, visited with the Republican Presidential nominee for more than an hour.

"We were discussing the Russian trip, foreign trade with Russia, long term credits, and all the other things essential to discuss if we are going to do business with the soviet union," he told reporters after the conference.

While Johnston said he did not seek or get Dewey's reaction to his views, he reported the Presidential nominee "much interested in Russian production, the attitude of Russians toward American people and my impressions of the Red army."

96 MORE NAMED AS CASUALTIES IN ARMS BLAST

San Francisco, Cal., July 21 (AP).—The 12th naval district today announced the names of 30 members of armed guard crews missing and presumed to be lost in the explosion of two ammunition ships at the Port Chicago naval magazine Monday. The blast killed a total of 322 men and caused more than 6 million dollars' property damage.

The 30 are in addition to the 213 naval personnel previously announced as lost. They include:

Cebella, Rudy Joseph, seaman 1st class, 19, mother, Eleanor Machnic Cebella, 2426 N. Talman av., Chicago, Ill.; Chase, Robert Edward, seaman 1st class, wife, Elizabeth Roush Chase, Gilman, Ill.; Mulryan, William Harry, seaman 2d class, 18, mother, Ann Mulryan, Route 1, Portage, Wis.; Myers, Henry Joseph, seaman 1st class, 30, wife, Caroline Bellobich Myers, Route 1, Staunton, Ill., and Saint, Woodrow Wilson, seaman 1st class, 25, Waterloo, Ia., wife, Helen Virginia Saint, Eldora, Ia.

Also announced were the names of 66 merchant seamen missing and believed to have been killed in the explosion. None of the men was from Chicagoland. The Coast Guard announced more names of men listed officially as missing in the blast. They included Edward Portz, 23, Brownstown, Ill.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR LAWYER IN SEDITION CASE

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—A bench warrant for the arrest and return from New York City of Henry H. Klein, a defense attorney in the mass sedition conspiracy trial, was issued today by Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of the District of Columbia Federal court.

Klein, who walked out of the trial July 5, leaving with Justice Eicher a note accusing the court of ignoring the rights of the defendants and their attorneys, has failed to reappear in response to a contempt citation.

The citation charged the New York attorney with quitting the case without the court's permission. The warrant will be sent to the United States marshal in New York City. Klein was defending Eugene N. Sanctuary, retired army colonel. He had been fined twice for contempt before his departure.

DEWEY TO REAP BUMPER VOTE ON MIDWEST FARMS

BY GAIL COMPTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—Two hurdles stand in the way of a Republican sweep of the midwestern farm vote, a tour of the corn belt discloses.

First, some farmers view Gov. Dewey with suspicion because he is an "easterner." They ask if he understands midwestern agricultural problems.

Second, the farmers are well off financially and some will not switch from an administration that has catered to their every whim. They want to be assured that Dewey will offer them a farm program containing support prices, easy credit, and other aids, but without the restrictions and red tape with which the New Deal has entangled its benefits.

Majority Want Change.

A majority of the farmers are visibly angry at the present administration and want a change. They are angry because they feel they have not received what was due them.

They saw their normal markets completely disrupted. They saw egg prices break in December when the usual drop was due in January or February. They saw the hog markets so glutted that they were forced to get permits to market their hogs at a time when the nation was asking for meat. Many farmers took sharp losses when government floor prices failed to function.

They resent being asked to produce more food, only to have the government take their labor and ration their machinery, the survey disclosed.

Turn Conservative.

Oddly enough, their prosperity is causing many farmers to turn Republican. They are paying off their mortgages at a rapid rate. When a farmer owns his own land and has a heavy investment in live stock and machinery, he is one of the most conservative men in the world.

Many of the farmers interviewed termed the prolific spending of the New Deal a direct threat to their security and they want it stopped.

Roughly 10 per cent of the farmers interviewed thruout Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana, are undecided as to how they will vote. Most of them are waiting to see how the war progresses. Every victory produces more Republican votes, for some believe there should be no change in the Presidency if there is a chance of suffering military reversals.

SECOND ANNUAL WAR FUND DRIVE TO OPEN OCT. 2

The second annual drive of the Community and War Fund, Inc., of Chicago, will be opened Oct. 2, Clarence B. Randall, general chairman, announced at a dinner meeting of fund leaders in the Palmer House last night. The exact amount to be sought will not be announced until next week, Randall said, but it will be larger than the 1943 goal of $12,800,000.

"The need will be greater this year as countries are liberated by our arms," he said.

Randall said 60,000 volunteer workers will be required to carry on the drive. Money collected is apportioned in three main categories. Part goes to the national war fund which supports the United Service organizations and assists allied relief. Part goes to the Community Fund of Chicago, representing 187 local welfare and health agencies. Part also goes to the Jewish welfare for war relief and refugee assistance overseas.

FARMERS WORRY OVER CROPS IN 5 WEEK DROUTH

Need Rain in 10 Days, Expert Says.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Cook county farmers, particularly vegetable growers, are becoming increasingly worried about crop prospects as a result of a 5 week drouth. C. A. Hughes, Cook county farm adviser, said yesterday that unless rain falls in the next 10 days the tomato crop will be approximately 20 per cent below last year's yield, the snap bean yield may be 50 per cent lower, carrot production about 30 per cent lower, and other truck crops correspondingly reduced.

There have been no heavy rains in Cook county since June 12. During the period from June 13 thru June 30 only .62 of an inch of rain fell. The normal rainfall for that period is two inches.

Three Showers This Month.

So far this month three showers have measured only .98 of an inch, with 2.37 inches normal for the first 21 days of July.

Hughes said that local farmers were fortunate in getting an excellent first cutting of alfalfa, because second cuttings will be light as a result of the drouth. The oat and wheat crops matured well before the drouth struck, but field corn and sweet corn leaves are beginning to "fire." Hughes believes the corn will yield well if there is a heavy rain in the next 10 days.

Forced to Bring Herds in.

Many dairy operators, their pastures burned out by the drouth, have been forced to bring their herds into feedlots for ensilage six weeks before this usually is necessary.

The county's vegetable production effort has had two severe blows this season—first excessive spring rains and then the drouth. The rains, which came just after planting time, kept the truck farmers out of their fields and permitted weeds to crowd out hundreds of tons of vegetables.

Hughes estimated that 10 per cent of the county's spring vegetable plantings were abandoned.

CHINESE FORCES MOVE IN TO LIFT HENGYANG SIEGE

CHUNGKING, China, July 21 (AP).—Japanese forces attacking Hengyang were estimated today to have been increased to four divisions, perhaps 60,000 men, but the defenders held with the help of Chinese-American war planes and one Chinese relief column was reported only a mile and a quarter from the strategic Hunan province rail city.

A high army officer reported severe fighting west and south of Hengyang, where Chinese units were trying to break thru siege lines and end the enemy assault, now in its 25th day.

Fighter-bombers roared down on enemy positions south of Hengyang, blew up 11 supply dumps, and damaged 70 others.

Ranging almost unchallenged along the Siang river, a channel of reënforcement for the enemy assailing Hengyang, other fighter-bombers sank 75 small supply boats, hit 30 others, and damaged two steamboats carrying troops.

Loot Jap Base in India.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., KANDY, Ceylon, July 21 (AP).—Giving no rest to beaten Japanese straggling thru the monsoon rains out of eastern India, allied raiders have struck at the enemy's staging camp at Meiring and captured much equipment, Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

The camp at Meiring, 26 miles south of Ukhrul, was an important link in the Japan withdrawal system out of Manipur state.

MOTHERS URGED TO FLEE LONDON ROBOT ATTACKS

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—Warning that Nazi flying bomb attacks "may get worse," Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison today advised mothers and children evacuated from danger areas to stay put and those still in London to leave at once.

"Don't be influenced by a quiet night now and then or even by a few quiet days," he said. "We are tackling this new weapon with all we have, but the strain on the housewife and her child may get worse before it is finally removed."

He claimed the evacuation of mothers and children from London and southern England danger areas has been the biggest and fastest ever carried out under war conditions.

Many Bombs Shot Down.

Pointing out that registrations under the government evacuation scheme in London and southern England danger areas had fallen off, he said that mothers and families still in the capital "will be far better off out of London until the battle is won."

His advice to the evacuated was to "stay where you are until you are told it is safe for you to come back."

He said stay-at-home Londoners would be "astonished" to know how many robot bombs are brought down before they reach the capital, but admitted "there is no point in making light" of the "trying attack."

Lending emphasis to Morrison's grave warnings, more salvos of flying bombs crashed in London today after the Germans had sent over both robot and regular raiders during the night.

Tells of Accurate British Bomb.

A charge that the British government impeded development of a British flying bomb superior to the Germans' was made in the house of commons by Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid, an Independent.

Asserting many persons had wondered why the British had not constructed robot bombs, he said: "Early in the war the man who invented tanks, Maj. W. G. Wilson, invented a jet-propelled flying bomb simpler than the German one, but with a bombing accuracy never before heard of. The government put every obstacle in the way of developing this robot invention, with the result that we have been caught napping."

Action Against Looters Seen.

Drastic steps will be taken by the government to halt looting of premises damaged by flying bombs, it was predicted today, as four men were sentenced to long jail terms at hard labor for stealing from a wrecked tenement block.

Under war time regulations looting may be punishable by death but no court has imposed the maximum sentence.

3,000 AMERICAN WAR PLANES RIP KEY NAZI BASES

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—United States air forces flung 3,000 warplanes—paced by more than 1,600 heavy bombers—against high priority targets in Germany today.

British Mosquito planes attacked Berlin at night.

Thirty-five British-based American bombers and 11 fighters were lost.

Seven American bombers were forced by Swiss fighters to land at Dubendorf, the Swiss radio said, and another crashed after the crew bailed out.

Sixteen enemy planes were shot down by the big task force from Britain.

Under an escort of 800 fighters, more than 1,100 heavies from Britain bombed ballbearing works at Schweinfurt and Ebelsbach, a bomber assembly plant at Neuaubing, and an aircraft assembly plant at Regensburg.

For the fourth consecutive day, the blows from Britain were coördinated with attacks from Italy, in which 500 four-engined bombers attacked unidentified targets within 125 miles of Berlin at Brux in the Sudetenland.

Lt. William T. Kemp of 1020 Washington st., Peoria, Ill., downed two planes in yesterday's fighting over Germany.

GLENVIEW FLYER DIES IN JUMP AS PLANES COLLIDE

Lt. [j. g.] Arthur E. Sheehan, 23, a primary flight instructor at the Glenview naval air station, was killed yesterday when he bailed out after his training plane collided with one of two other navy planes flying in formation near Half Day in Lake county. His plane crashed near buildings on the Christ Fritz farm in Vernon township, Lake county.

A Lane county coroner's jury impaneled later was told Sheehan's parachute failed to open because of the low altitude of his jump. The pilot of the other plane in the collision, Lt. [j. g.] George Dloughy, 22, of Newark, N. J., made a forced landing.

Lt. Sheehan's home was in Haverhill, Mass. He enlisted in the navy in 1942 and had been stationed at Glenview since May 17.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN WHEN TANKS COLLIDE!

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT, July 21—(AP).—A British manned Sherman tank tore around a corner in a shell wrecked village and crashed head-on into a German Tiger tank.

"Both crews boiled out of their turrets," said Maj. H. P. Bell, the British leader. "In the confusion, both our men and the Germans had forgotten their small arms and there they stood a few feet apart just staring at each other."

The British tank commander spoke first: "Beat it, before I change my mind."

With a gutteral "danke schoen" (thank you), the Germans took to their heels.

Soldiers' Mother

Mrs. Mary Sposito, who has three sons in service. Two have been injured and one is missing.

Pvt. Frank (left), Pvt. Dan Joseph (center), and Sgt. Anthony Sposito, Mrs. Sposito's sons. The first two have been injured in service, the third is missing.

Neighbors yesterday were hailing Mrs. Mary Sposito, 410 Market st., Waukegan, as a real war mother. Their reasons were threefold.

Last November, Mrs. Sposito's son, Marine Pvt. Joseph Sposito, 22, was severely wounded in the epic assault on Tarawa, and is now recuperating at Oceanside, Cal. Early last month, another son, Pvt. Frank Sposito, 21, was wounded in the invasion of France.

Then yesterday, Mrs. Sposito received word from the war department that a third son, Sgt. Anthony Sposito, 19, an air force gunner, was missing in action over Hungary as of July 12. "It's not easy, but I'm proud of my sons," said Mrs. Sposito. These casualties were not her only burden, for last month her husband, Andrew, died. She Spositos, natives of Italy, settled in Waukegan in 1912. Another son and four daughters work in war plants.

SMASH JAP RAID IN NIGHT ON U.S. LINES IN GUINEA

105 of Foe Slain; 8 Enemy Vessels Sunk.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 22 [Saturday]—(AP).—American troops still firmly held their British New Guinea jungle lines after sharply repulsing a Japanese night probing attack, headquarters announced today.

The assault was made Wednesday night and Thursday morning in the foothills of the Torricelli mountains. This is the southern end of the American line along the Driniumor river, 21 miles east of Aitape.

The attack followed probing efforts to outflank the Yanks' main lines in this rugged country.

Slay 105 More Japs.

One hundred and five Japs were killed, raising the known Nipponese dead to 1,474 since their effort to escape the allied trap began July 10.

Australian cruisers and destroyers and American PT boats bombarded Jap concentrations in the Harech river area, eight miles east of the Driniumor.

Mitchell bombers on Thursday sank a 1,000 ton oil ship, three coastal vessels and four barges near Timor Island and Sorong, at the western tip of Dutch New Guinea.

Down Jap Plane at Darwin.

A Jap reconnaissance plane was shot down over Darwin, Australia, on Thursday. It was the first reported enemy flight over this area in weeks.

Liberators blasted the Jap base at Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea, with 60 tons of bombs. Other heavy bombers raided Yap in the western Carolines on Wednesday, unloading 36 tons of explosives. One Liberator was lost. Two of 18 interceptors were destroyed.

Camp Bowie Technician Loses Wallet and Pay

Technician Richard E. Small, en route from Camp Bowie, Tex., to his home in Terre Haute, Ind., stopped in Chicago yesterday long enough to lose his wallet, containing a couple of months' pay, furlough papers and his return train ticket, he said last night. He said that if the finder would return the wallet and all the contents, the money could be kept as a reward. The loss, he said, was discovered as he rode the Englewood "L" to see a friend who subsequently loaned him the money to continue home.

FRESH TROOPS LAND ON GUAM; FIGHT STIFFENS

bomb and shell battered Japanese coast defenses.

The landings were on beaches north and south of the mangificent harbor of Port Apra.

Dig in at Beachheads.

At nightfall, Maj. Gen. Roy Geiger's troops dug in on perimeters between Adlup and Asan, a point north of Orote peninsula and from the shattered town of Agat to Bangi Point, south of the rocky finger of land.

The northern beachhead, where the terrain was most rugged, stretched in an arc several thousand yards. The southern force shoved inland and established a substantial beachhead.

Troops flowed ashore with negligible initial resistance and in record time.

Despite sprinkling enemy fire, they rolled thru a charred and tattered palm grove across what remained of the enemy's strongest positions of fixed defense.

Blasted Japs into Trees.

Rear Adm. Richard W. Conolly explained the lack of a bloody shoreline fight. He adjusted his green GI fatigue cap and said:

"We simply blasted the Japs to hell out of there and up into the trees."

Howling leathernecks and army troops smashed on into the foliaged areas, using rifle fire, tanks, and squirts of flamethrowers to wipe out the hidden "sons of heaven" who were sniping from the remaining pillboxes and trenchworks.

At midafternoon, Geiger's men were climbing toward the hills in an effort to seize quickly a range of high ground.

You could see troops crouching in a large crater on the hillside, carrying on a grenade and rifle duel with the enemy across the knoll, then steadily moving on.

Supplies Rushed to Beaches.

On the road, tanks blasted away into a Jap strongpoint on Adlup point.

The beaches by noon were crammed with incoming ammunition, rations, water, and medical supplies, and gasoline.

Twenty waves of troops landed swiftly and supplies followed fast—so fast that trucks drove out on the reef, picking them up from landing craft. Tanks were on the beaches by midday.

And dead Americans were hard to find!

The landing began at 8:28 a. m. in the northern sector, and at 8:31 a. m. to the south. From there it clicked off with the precision timing that had been set when the first rumble of navy gunfire broke the stillness of the dawn.

Rainbow Over Airstrip.

The transports hove into view, as did the jagged, hilly silhouette of Guam, against drizzly gray skies which broke into a rainbow. One tip of it rested on the Orote airstrip.

Thunderous naval fire and screaming strikes by carrier aircraft soon shrouded the beaches in smoke.

The warships hurled 500 tons of explosive steel at the Japanese during the last eight minutes prior to the landings and during the day laid down a total of 1,100 tons.

The planes dropped 300 tons of bombs and carried out 1,000 sorties.

Conolly ordered the warships to proceed to the closest range, as the landing craft pushed off from alongside their home warships.

Enemy Shells Vessels.

Packed with denim clad fighting men, the tiny boats looked like columns of ducks. Then the enemy shells began to fall. One hit an amphibious tractor, overturning it. But the marching ducks moved on.

As the troops moved forward tonight toward the liberation of this former American territory, an island 32 miles long and 4 to 10 miles wide, and its 20,000 Chamorro inhabitants, Col. W. A. Wachter, corps staff officer, said:

"Most of us think the operation proceeded smoother than anything before it, due in a large measure to the excellence and wisdom of the preparation."

A HARD HITTING ADMIRAL LEADS ATTACK ON GUAM

Rear Adm. Richard Lansing Conolly, commanding the amphibious operations against Guam, is a native of Waukegan and was the first Lake county man to be graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis. He has been one of the hardest hitting, farthest ranging admirals of the war, and he holds numerous decorations.

Adm. Conolly has participated in the attacks on the Gilberts, Marshalls, Wake, Marcus, Tokyo [with the task forces accompanying the carrier Hornet from which Gen. Doolittle took off to bomb Japan], Sicily, Salerno, Roi, Namur, and now Guam.

The admiral's mother lives at 509 Julian st., Waukegan. A sister, a brother, and an uncle also live in Waukegan.

The admiral's wife, Mrs. Helen Jacobs Conolly, and his family are living in Washington, D. C.

RUSSIANS SPAN BUG RIVER IN WARSAW DRIVE

Four Spearheads Aim at Poland's Capital.

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Russian troops smashed across the Bug river in force on a front more than 37 miles wide today and advanced nine miles, aided by a mass of tanks deployed on the rolling Lublin plain for a drive on Warsaw.

The Bug was the last big water barrier before the Wisla [Vistula] river, which flows thru Warsaw, 130 to 160 miles above the points where Red army engineers flung pontoons across.

The soviet midnight war bulletin, announcing the thrust over the Bug, said the railroad and highway between besieged Brest Litovsk and Chelm had been cut. Chelm, 65 miles south of Brest Litovsk, was the first big objective on the route to Warsaw, and soviet troops already were less than 12 miles from it on the north and east.

This was the most notable of a series of successes announced by the Russians. Previously Marshal Stalin, in an order of the day, announced the fall of Ostrov, 475 air line miles north of the Bug crossings.

Capture 40 Finnish Towns.

That large rail and communication center 10 miles east of the Latvian border fell to the 3d Baltic army, along with 150 other towns and villages, after a long holdout by the German garrison. Only a narrow strip of pre-1940 Russian territory remained in Nazi hands.

The Russians were silent concerning their drives thru old Lithuania and toward East Prussia, but told of capture of 40 more towns on the Finnish front in Karelia, and said that both Brest Litovsk and Lwow in old Poland were tottering as the soviet forces struck steadily nearer.

Among the towns taken near Brest Litovsk was a railway station nine miles to the southeast, completing a half-circle around that big German defensive point. The Russians also announced they had extended their offensive in the Lwow area to the sector southwest of Tarnopol, taking more than 60 towns.

Farmers Aid Engineers.

But the bridging of the Bug was the biggest threat to the whole German position. Some elements already had crossed the river north and south of Sokal and were in possession of Rawa Ruska. They were expected to join forces farther north for an advance on Lublin. Both forces would be reënforced by another soviet spearhead which thrust seven miles west of the 1939 German-Russian demarcation line in Poland.

The major crossings of the Bug were described by Moscow dispatches as a spectacular undertaking, in which fishermen and farmers from many miles around volunteered to help thousands of engineers connect the pre-fabricated bridges.

Warplanes of every description kept the Germans from interfering, while soviet artillery hurled a thunderous fire into the enemy and soviet tanks and infantry crossed the bridges.

West of the one time German hinge position of Grodno, the Germans stuck to their unconfirmed story that the Russians had reached within eight miles of the East Prussian border at Augustow. London experts viewed this campaign as a successful feint which drew off German armor to the northward and left the road open for the Warsaw drive.

In the Baltic area, three Russian armies were bearing down thru northern Lithuania and toward southern Latvia, arriving within 85 miles of Riga, the port whose capture would cut off all Germans to the north.

The Moscow press already was heralding the coming capture of the three states which became Soviet socialist republics in 1940.

HOW ANTI-NAZIS SPREAD NEWS TOLD STUDENTS

Anti-Nazis in Germany broadcast their underground activities by placing pamphlets in the directories of public telephone booths, Dr. Joachim Sinderman yesterday told the journalism class at Northwestern university.

Dr. Sinderman, formerly political science professor at the University of Berlin, left Germany in 1937 for Utrecht where he worked for a German refugee newspaper in the Netherlands. Two years later he came to the United States.

"The vitality of German refugee newspapers in allied countries and the courage of editors in Germany, who hint at what they cannot say outright, indicates," he said, "that the German people will quickly restore a free and democratic press once the Nazis are overthrown."

Commenting on Sumner Welles' suggestion that Germany be partitioned into three states, Dr. Sinderman said he did not think that would prevent the German people from coöperating for war. War could best be prevented, he said, by helping Germany to establish a strong republic.

Chicagoan Pays Off Germans Over No Man's River in Italy

Quick Triggers

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH A 5TH ARMY OUTPOST ON THE ARNO RIVER, Italy, July 21.—This swift stream is no man's water and any patrol attempting to cross is under fire at once from the enemy.

The Germans are so near that their defenses are visible from an observation post in a house near the edge of the south bank which I visited today. I could see machine gun nests, concrete pillboxes and hay lofts in which the Germans had cut slits for snipers.

The Nazis see our fortifications too; in fact, they are looking down our throats from their high ground. So there is quick trigger work by both sides.

Chicagoan at a Pay-Off.

First Lt. Thomas Polchinski, 6234 Dorchester av., Chicago, on artillery observation duty in the house, told of spying Germans moving carelessly around a machine gun.

"I called for fire by our 155 howitzers," Polchinsky said. "From 14,000 yards back, the howitzers fired four rounds. It was a beautiful to see the fourth round crashed in for the payoff, wiping out the Jerries and their gun."

A German who spoke good English tried to lure doughboys over the river.

"Come on," he yelled across the 25 yards of the Arno. "I've got the Heinies on the run."

G. I. riflemen opened up and killed him.

Now It's Nazis Turn.

The Germans got angry and cut loose with self-propelled guns, tanks, and 88s. It was pretty hot for a few minutes and we flung ourselves on the floor.

One shell hit a slit trench near-by, killing an American soldier and wounding several others. When the fire subsided, 1st Lt. George R. Abrew of Maui, Hawaii, called on the howitzers again and more shells crashed into the enemy defenses.

"This goes on all the time," said Abrew. "I'm so busy at the binoculars and diving for cover that it took me three days to finish a letter to my wife. I've just started one to my mother and hope to get it written within a week."

Among others in this observation post were Privates James Madsen, 557 S. Oak Park ct., Milwaukee, Wis., and Ray Erickson, Ettrick, Wis.

What's Cooking? A Tenor.

Madsen, a lyric tenor, has sung on W-G-N programs. What was more important at the moment was that he is a good cook and he turned out a superb lunch of camouflaged C rations.

"The air force turned me down because I've got a slight heart murmur," Madsen grinned, "so I find myself getting a rest cure on the Arno Riviera."

This intrepid band had a close call the other night. A heavy barrage drove an American unit from the river and Germans crossed over and surrounded the house. They didn't see it in the darkness, however, and a little later Yank infantrymen came in and drove them back across the Arno.

New Yank Gains

ROME, Italy, July 21 (AP).—American infantry and armor have hammered out new gains along a 25 mile stretch of the lower Arno river west of Florence and have sent patrols across the river against a hurricane of fire from Nazi mortars, anti-tank guns and automatic weapons, allied headquarters announced today.

Fifth army units reached the outskirts of Castel-Fiorentina, eight miles from Empoli.

Patrols said the hills north of the Arno were studded with pillboxes and mine fields.

Drive on Toward Pisa.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces pushed rapidly northward from captured Livorno toward Pisa, but Livorno remained under harassing fire from big guns on Mount Pisano, northeast of Pisa.

American engineers found Livorno's harbor had been blocked by 16 sunken ships.

Americans wiped out pockets of the enemy south of the Arno yesterday, but the day was one of the quietest along the 5th army front since the allied offensive began on May 11. Most of the Germans in that sector had withdrawn into the Gothic line.

Poles Press Across River.

Along the Adriatic, the Nazis continued to flee before Polish troops, who reached Montemarciano, 15 miles northwest of Ancona, and crossed the Esino river on a 15 mile front.

Eighth army forces pushing up the Tiber valley began encircling Citta di Castello, 13 miles northwest of Umbertide.

[The broadcast German war bulletin said: "There were major fighting operations yesterday in the Adriatic coastal sector only, where the enemy succeeded in gaining a little ground."]

SHOT AND KILLED BY A POLICEMAN; BYSTANDER HURT

One man was shot and killed and a bystander wounded last night in a gun fight with police in front of 4153 N. Western av. The man slain was identified as Albert B. Ivanic, 25, of 747 N. Oakley blvd.

The shooting followed an inspection visit by Policemen Thomas Owens and Charles Jeffers of the North Damen avenue station to Hans Baumler's tavern at 4201 N. Western av. Ivanic was sitting at the bar with John Gallo, 20, 724 N. Hermitage av. Baumler whispered to the policemen that he didn't "like their looks." Ivanic and Gallo left.

The policemen stopped them 50 feet away. Ivanic pushed Owens aside, then fired two shots. Owens fired two shots, hitting Ivanic in the heart and shoulder. One shot—evidently Ivanic's—went into the tavern and wounded Clyde Pillar, 39, 2240 Berteau av., in both ankles. Gallo was seized by Policeman Jeffers. He said he and Ivanic had merely stopped in the tavern for a drink. He didn't even know, he said, that Ivanic was armed. Ivanic had a minor police record.

PLOT TO SEIZE REINS IN BERLIN FAILS, SAY NAZIS

in his capacity as city president of Berlin is head of the municipal administration. Goebbels immediately summoned Remer to report to him and personally told him the fuehrer was unhurt.

"Soon after that Remer spoke to the fuehrer over the telephone and received orders for his battalion from Hitler himself. Goebbels then addressed Remer's battalion, assuring them that the fuehrer was well and indicating the most urgent tasks of the moment."

In further official accounts of the revolt, Sundermann named Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, chief of the German general staff in 1938, as a leader of the conspiracy and announced that he is "no longer among living persons," and he declared that an "enemy power" which he did not identify was active in the plot.

Enemy Power Blamed.

The Nazi news agency Transocean said the conspirators were "a number of retired generals who made common cause with a handful of officers in important positions in the German reserve army and had been in contact with an enemy power for some time."

The weapon used against Hitler, this account said, was a "time incendiary bomb" which Col. Count von Stauffenberg "placed in the vicinity" of the fuehrer.

Swiss reports said there was unrest in the German navy at Kiel and Stettin but no word of mutinies.

[Max Hill, reporter, radioed from Ankara, Turkey, last night that reports that Adolf Hitler had been arrested were widespread in that city. He added that some Turkish quarters had heard diplomatic reports that Hitler might be under protective custody.]

Leaders Reassure Soldiers.

While the story of the attempted coup d'etat as unfolded by Hitler himself was flashed around the world, Nazi leaders felt called upon to reassure the German soldiers on the fighting fronts.

Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge, in charge of German forces facing the allied Normandy invasion front, issued an order of the day to his men telling of the "mean attempt" on the life of Hitler, declaring that "calm and order prevails at home," and calling for "inflexible determination and unconditional loyalty to the fuehrer."

A similar message was issued to the German army in southeast Europe by its commander, Field Marshal Maximilian von Weichs.

These orders of army leaders paralleled those issued nearly 12 hours previously by Marshal Goering to his air force and by Adm. Doenitz to the navy.

Rumor of Civil War.

In the vacuum created as Germany cut off all telegraph and telephone communications to foreign countries, many rumors were spread. The British Broadcasting corporation reported one that a state of civil war existed inside Germany.

The only definite word on the reported conspiracy and the attempt to take Hitler's life was from official Nazi sources, and there remained the possibility that the sensational news might involve wholly or in part a typical Nazi staged fake like the celebrated reichstag fire in the early days of the Nazis' climb to power.

In any case the developments pointed sharply to unrest existing within Germany and to the fact that at least some of the military leaders have been worried over Germany's fate and that stern steps were necessary to keep the country's uneasy millions in line under the ruthless new home army commander in chief, Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo head.

Rebels at Key Points.

In their elaboration of the conspiracy story as told by Hitler, Nazi commentators said that the generals and colonels who organized the attempted assassination had been stationed "at key points of the home army."

After explosion of the bomb planted at Hitler's side by Col. Count von Stauffenberg, the only man definitely named as a plotter except Gen. Beck, other conspirators "attempted to issue orders which were nowhere obeyed," said a Transocean commentator, Schroeder.

"The only bloodshed in this attempt was the blood of the conspirators, with the exception of that of Hitler's collaborator Berger, who has since died," Schroeder said.

The victim Berger was not further officially identified.

[The Swiss newspaper Berner Tagwacht said Berger was Hitler's double. "Berger confusingly resembled the fuehrer in appearance," it said, "and was appointed as a collaborator by the secret service."]

The free German committee in Moscow broadcast on the Moscow radio an appeal to German military men and civilians alike to "act without delay and come out into the open and overthrow Hitler to save the fatherland at this last moment."

Hear Hitler May Flee.

New York, July 21 (AP).—NBC said today that a clandestine German radio station had reported a four engine transport plane capable of flying 10,000 miles was standing by at a secret air base in Germany at the disposal of Adolf Hitler.

The station "implied that Hitler may be preparing to flee the country, or at least is getting things in readiness for any eventual emergency," NBC said.

The station was Radio Atlantic, reputed to be anti-Nazi.

NBC said the station gave the following account of events in Germany:

The OKH, the headquarters of the German army, is being besieged by SS elite guards. The OKH in revolt is under the command of Gen. Eugen Mueller. One of the initiators in the OKH is Col. Fritz Amel, brother-in-law of Gen. von Brauchitsch.

Many of the German generals are missing, among them Gen. Kessler, Gen. Dalich, Col. Graf von Kirchbach, Maj. Gen. von Griesenberg, Gen. Schweighart, Adm. Schlieben, Gen. Hossbach, Maj. Gen. Wilhelm Borgdorf.

Hitler's headquarters at first did not realize that a planned putsch was under way. They just thought an attempt on Hitler's life was being made. Only when Hitler's headquarters heard that regular orders and proclamations were being issued from OKH did they realize what was up. Gen. Beck was then killed. He had nothing to do with the putsch, but had been on the black list of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler.

Lt. Gen. Wilhelm Thomas, commander of the bodyguard of the fuehrer, has been arrested and brought to Spandau. Also arrested was Brigade Leader Rattenhuber. Both are charged with neglecting the security of Hitler's life.

Report Fighting in Reich.

MADRID, July 21 (AP).—From the German embassy here tonight there came a report, unconfirmed elsewhere, that there was fighting in southern Germany where certain army units were said to have revolted. There also was a report that Nazis here received orders to keep their eyes open on the possibility that high army officers or others might be crossing the frontier. From the frontier region came various rumors that a military government as opposed to the Nazi government had been established somewhere in Germany, but little credence was given to these reports.

San Francisco, Cal., July 21 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur was informed today that he had been awarded the knight's grand cross with swords in the Order of Orange-Nassau by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, said a Melbourne dispatch by Aneta, Dutch news agency.

It is one of the highest royal Netherlands awards.

The decoration was given, the dispatch said, in tribute to MacArthur's "great leadership and the magnificent work achieved by him in the first steps toward liberation of The Netherlands East Indies."

JAPAN NAMES NEW CABINET; KOISO PREMIER

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Tokyo radio announced today that Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, former governor-general of Korea, had been named premier of Japan to succeed Gen. Hideki Tojo, whose resignation followed a series of Japanese military setbacks.

The announcement said Adm. Mitsumasa Yonai becomes minister of the navy and Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama minister of war.

Mamoru Shigemitsu remains foreign minister and takes over the additional portfolio of greater East Asia minister.

VISION OF DEFEAT RISES BEFORE GERMANS: HULL

Crisis Reveals Doom, Says Secretary.

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—Secretary of State Hull said today that Heinrich Himmler would not now be able to "conceal from the German people the fact that many German generals believe that Germany has lost the war."

Hull's comment follows:

"The attack on Hitler and his explanatory speech clearly indicate that a realization of Germany's impending defeat is spreading in the Reich. He and two of his most important military advisers have now denounced as criminal traitors a 'clique of former generals who had to be chased from their posts for a leadership as cowardly as it was incompetent.'

Army-Navy Split Emphasized.

"Hitler has furthermore been compelled to remove the chief of the German general staff and to appoint his chief executioner, Heinrich Himmler, as commander of the army in Germany. These frantic attempts to restore the apparent unity of the German command illustrate the divergence of views between the army and the [Nazi] party which has developed as a result of the steadily deteriorating military position of Germany.

"But no amount of internal reshuffling or repression by Himmler can conceal from the German people the fact that many German generals believe that Germany has lost the war.

"We should not let these apparent developments give rise to overoptimism. The fighting ahead will be hard and we should intensify our efforts here at home."

Army Papers Play Up Story.

ROME, Italy, July 21 (AP).—The attempt on Adolf Hitler's life dominated all headlines in service newspapers here today. Only the Maple Leaf and La Patrie, the Canadian and French equivalents of Stars and Stripes, which held their forms open until 5 a. m. to receive the text of Hitler's address, were able to report the renomination of President Roosevelt.

HENRI CHARPENTIER'S Column

We in the U. S. A. do not claim to be a Master Race. But we are, I believe, intelligent and kind. The mixed seed of humanity as it is represented in America has proven indestructible—and nothing in the whole world ever can destroy it. In the movie, "Tunisian Victory", one sees from the actions of our great leaders, brave soldiers and unbreakable rearguard, a nation not only of grand intelligence and kindness but of inestimable courage as well. The rest of the world should not envy us—they should copy us. America is certainly paradise on earth—may God always bless her. Let's buy more bonds. Henri Charpentier, Cafe de Paris.

YANKS AT LIVORNO FIND OASIS OF BEER, THEN M. P.'S ARRIVE

LIVORNO, Italy, July 21 (AP).—In the capture of Livorno [Leghorn] the allies took possession of a brewery which had been turning out choice beer for Nazi troops in Italy.

Some of the very first American troops to enter the city discovered the brewery. They tasted some of the cool "suds" they found in underground vats—and pronounced it delightful.

Word of their find spread rapidly thru the ranks, but soon two military police officers, Lt. L. J. Charboneau of Houston, Tex., and Lt. Jack B. Colbert of Hill City, S. D., got one of the most thankless assignments ever known in war:

They had to say no to hundreds of soldiers who stood before the brewery in the scorching sun with their tongues hanging out.

PAY OF BRITONS NOW IS HIGHEST SINCE WAR BEGAN

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—More Britons are making more money now than at any time since 1938, except for the class receiving more than $50,000 yearly, British Minister of Reconstruction Woolton, said yesterday in a house of lords discussion of post-war taxation and income. He said the increases ran as follows: Those with incomes between $1,000 and $2,000 increased from 1,745,000 to 5,500,000; incomes between $2,000 and $4,000 increased from 500,000 to 1,100,000; between $4,000 and $8,000, from 195,000 to 295,000; and over $50,000 unchanged at 8,000.

DENIES POPE SENT HITLER FELICITATIONS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

VATICAN CITY, July 21.—The Pucci agency reported today that Pope Pius XXII "is presumed to have sent a telegram to Adolf Hitler expressing pleasure that he escaped death." This evening, however, a Vatican authority denied the report.

"It is true," said this authority, "that on questions of diplomatic form and protocol, the pontiff, as head of a neutral state, could send such a telegram to the head of another state with which there are normal diplomatic relations, but protocol is one thing and practice is another. When Hitler escaped death in the beer house explosion in 1939 no telegram of any sort was sent to him by Pope Pius.

"When Hitler came to Rome to see Mussolini it would have been protocol for the fuehrer to see the pope, but he did not. In this case protocol also has been overlooked."

ALLIES GAIN IN RAIN AND MUD OF NORMANDY

British Repel Attack; Yanks Advance.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 22—[Saturday].—Despite 36 hours of heavy rainfall which turned the fields of Normandy into a morass, making movement of infantry and armored forces difficult, advances were registered today on both the British and American fronts.

On the eastern end of the front, British forces advanced beyond St. Andre sur Orne, more than five miles south of Caen, and held the railroad station 500 yards from Troarn eight miles east of Caen. Gains also were made in flanking movements both north and south of Troarn.

South of St. Andre sur Orne, headquarters said, heavy enemy resistance developed into a counter-attack near St. Martin de Fontenay. This attack, supported by armor, "was repulsed with loss to the enemy," headquarters reported.

Yanks Press on Periers.

American forces won a foothold on the road from St. Lo to Periers south of Remilly sur Lozon and increased pressure on Periers after repulsing a German counter-attack near Raids. East of St. Lo an advance of less than a mile was reported.

Patrols outside Lessay, anchor of the German line on the west coast, reported hearing explosions as the enemy ammunition dumps were being blown up.

In the battle for Troarn, heavy fighting was going on in the woods north of the town, with the British advancing within 1,000 yards of Bures. German guns laid down a powerful fire from the woods.

Below Caen the British and Germans were battling at close range around Verrieres, with the British in a commanding position along a ridge running east of the Orne river. Here, where the allied troops fired from trenches half filled with water, they were 1,000 yards west of Verrieres.

British Capture Monts.

Other British units have moved about 1,000 yards westward on a two mile front, south of the road from Caumont to Tilly-sur-Seulles. They captured positions 1,500 yards south of the highway and took the village of Monts against slight opposition. Monts is 3½ miles northwest of Villers-Bocage. The outskirts of the village of Ste. Croix des Landes have been reached without encountering serious opposition.

The first phase of the Caen operation appeared to be concluded. The allies are now consolidating their gains and any further advance on a large scale is unlikely at the moment, particularly in view of the extraordinarily bad weather.

It is anticipated that it may take some time to penetrate the very strong screen of anti-tank guns which the Germans have established south of Cagny, about five miles southeast of Caen.

Nazi Armor Still Intact.

The main body of the German armor still is intact and it is believed unlikely that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel will risk any of these forces so long as he can hold up the allies with his powerful anti-tank screen.

Correspondents at the front reported that Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey has attained the limited objectives he planned to secure. He has smashed thru a strong German defensive position to establish himself on the edge of the open country south of Caen.

The allies now hold about 30 square miles of open country ideal for use by tanks.

Bad weather tied up all air operations over France. There was a 600 foot ceiling with visibility limited to half a mile.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Following is the German Friday war bulletin as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"Southeast and south of Caen the enemy with major infantry and tank forces continued his attack without being able to achieve an essential gain of ground.

"In the area northwest of St. Lo, too, our troops smashed all enemy attacking groups. Two hundred enemy tanks were destroyed in Normandy in fighting July 18 and 19.

"Bombers sank one enemy destroyer and damaged two others severely in waters west of Brest."

VICHY REPORTS TURKS CALL IN ALL SHIPPING

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—A broadcast by the German-controled Vichy radio said today that all Turkish ships had been ordered into Turkish harbors without delay and that all navigation in Turkish waters of the Black Sea had been suspended.

There was a growing belief in London that Turkey might soon hand axis diplomats their walking papers.

Expulsion of Nazi agents has been at the top of allied requests to the Turks ever since they agreed to end shipping of chrome to Germany, with all parties believing this would mean a break in relations and possibly war.

Nazis Reported Leaving Two Ports on Black Sea

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 20 [Delayed]—(AP).—The Germans appear to be evacuating the Bulgarian Black sea ports of Varna and Burgas, a traveler from Eastern Bulgaria said today. He added that during the last week he had seen trainloads of German troops moving west from the vicinity of both ports. German evacuation of the ports was believed to be one of the Russian demands for continued soviet-Bulgarian diplomatic relations.

TOUGH DIVISION OF WORLD WAR I PROVES IT AGAIN

29th Is Revealed as Conqueror of St. Lo.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 21.—The heroes of St. Lo, the soldiers who slugged it out among Normandy's hedgerows against Germany's best troops in the costliest battle since D-day, were the men of the 29th infantry division, it was officially announced tonight.

This division provided the regiment which assaulted the Germans' strongest fortified coast near Vierville-sur-Mer alongside the 1st division's experienced assault team. The 29th was the division which kept fighting inland from that beach and fought almost continuously, including the eight day battle for strategic St. Lo which fell July 18.

Cited by Commander.

At the same time the division's name was released, it was announced that the 29th had received an official commendation from its corps commander. It said:

"The capture of St. Lo climaxes the operation which began June 6 on the Normandy beachhead and carried the 29th infantry division deep into enemy territory in an extended drive which adds a new and brilliant chapter to American military history.

"It was marked by repeated instances of personal and group heroism of the highest order and by unflagging devotion to duty which overcame discomfiture, fatigue, and the determined resistance of the resourceful enemy.

"Please convey to your officers and men my pride in their achievements and my sincere congratulations on a job superbly done."

Won World War Honors.

Organized during World War I, the 29th's first battle honors came soon after it landed in France July 16, 1918. On the Meuse river on Oct. 8 the division attacked and during the next 21 days advanced nearly 4½ miles and captured 2,500 prisoners, incurring casualties amounting to 5,546 officers and men.

When historians write the complete story of this division's first 43 days of combat in this war they will find a record even more impressive. For the 29th has been in the line a longer period and against tougher opposition than any other division. It has advanced more than 17 miles and taken many prisoners against severe opposition.

Officer casualties in the beach assault were heavy. Since then, as the fighting intensified, the replacement system has kept a stream of trained men pouring in over the beaches, gaps were filled, and the division went on.

It's General Son of a General.

One reason it went on was its commander, Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt of Macon, Ga., a 49 year old "bantam rooster." Son of Brig. Gen. Charles Gerhardt, he saw action in the World war at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne battle. He took command of the 29th a year ago July in England, nine months after the division landed there.

His division proved itself first on the beaches off Vierville. It plowed inland along the valley of the Aure river, captured Isigny, rushed down along the Vire river, working closer and closer to St. Lo until it finally was in position to open the final attack.

Then came eight days and nights of bloody battle against crack German paratroopers until the 29th's 115th regiment finally punched into St. Lo.

FRENCH LEADER TELLS AIMS FOR A FREE PRESS

ALGIERS, July 21 (AP).—Henry Bonnet, information minister of the French committee of national liberation, said today the committee's June 22 decree concerning distribution of information during liberation in France was "apparently misunderstood abroad."

The committee had announced that the Agence Francaise would be the sole authorized news distributing agency in France. Bonnet insisted this decree was only a temporary measure.

"It is the aim of France to have a free, independent press," he said. "It is our aim to see that the French press is operated by professional newspaper men and not by politicians or financiers."

He asserted that ultimately all papers will be allowed to get information on an equal basis from Agence Française or on other news agencies.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. C. Monroe Bennett, 7344 Ridge av.]

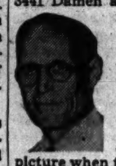
THE QUESTION.

What has been your most amusing or unforgettable experience taking pictures?

WHERE ASKED.

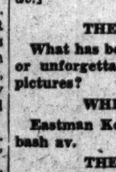
Eastman Kodak store, 133 N. Wabash av.

THE ANSWERS.



Elmer L. Fahrney, photographer, 3441 Damen av.—A bride came into my studio to have her picture taken in her wedding gown. Also waiting were a mother with her child. I gave the child a toy phonograph to amuse him. I had the bride posed and about to snap her picture when the child played "Waiting at the Church" and the bride fainted.

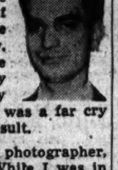
Andrew S. Nichols, theater manager, 9 E. Walton pl.—I was taking pictures of two girls and a boy in a hayloft. There was a huge pile of hay on the floor of the loft and up above was some winter hay. Just as I snapped the picture a slide of hay completely buried my subjects. The picture was a far cry from the expected result.



Alden Scott Boyer, photographer, 845 Drexel Square—While I was in the Catskills a friend asked me to take some pictures at a mountain dance. I spotted a real mountain girl and tried to get her to pose. She wouldn't, so I followed her around all evening trying to sneak a shot. I finally got one, but developing revealed I had a blank.

Mrs. Bill Clark, bookkeeper, 5633 N. Kenmore av.—At a football game one afternoon I thought I'd get some action shots of the players. I was squatting on the edge of the field. The ball carrier was coming straight at me. Before I could snap him and run he jumped over me and four players trailing him piled right into me.

Edward Anderson, photographer, 330 S. Chandler st., Rantoul—When Sen. Brooks, Gov. Green, and a high army official were in my town I was sent to photograph them. They posed for several shots. I rushed back to my shop, developed my negatives, and had eight beautiful blanks. I had forgotten to take the slide out of my camera.



Dr. J. Coughlin, M. D., 1013 Ridge av., Evanston—Every Christmas eve when our children were young I used to take moving pictures of them around the Christmas tree. Last Christmas I was showing some of the old films. My 21 year old daughter was chagrined because her fiance saw pictures of her as a child in her pajamas.

MEXICANS RIOT AGAINST SOCIAL SECURITY LAW

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, July 21—(AP).—Thousands of workers rioted in Mexico City's Constitution square, where the National Palace is situated, in protest against the new social security law. Private autos were overturned and burned and shop windows were broken during the disturbances yesterday.

The disorders originated during a demonstration by the National Proletarian front, a workers union group, protesting against the social security law. They were broken up shortly after the demonstration started.

Salvador Martinez Mancera, president of the National Proletarian front, said he believed the social security law is injurious to the workers' interests and that it is not as advanced as similar laws in other countries.

ONLY WRECKAGE MARKS TOWNS AFTER BOMBING

Tells of Ruins After Attack Near Caen.

BY JAMES MacDONALD.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN THE CAEN SECTOR, July 20 [Delayed].—The territory east of the Orne river was laid waste last Tuesday morning by the allied air forces in a prelude to Gen. Montgomery's drive beyond Caen, a survey of the area today showed.

Once placid hamlets and fairly large villages with their dominating church spires were no more. The whole land was pock marked with shell holes and bomb craters that had made the roads impassable except on foot. Community after community was found obliterated, what roads were left were strewn with bodies of German soldiers.

The iron ore and cement factories at Colombelles were riddled wrecks and were hardly worth the trouble of salvage work. Workers' homes near-by, like the factories, are now worthless.

Officer Tells of Fight.

Typical of the scenes in the front line is the village of Banneville. In the village street were bomb craters big enough to swallow a bus. Its houses were battered into match wood. What had been orchards were merely misshapen stumps of now dead trees.

In the ruins of what formerly was the village postoffice a pipe smoking lieutenant colonel told about the entry of his men into this community immediately after the aerial bombardment.

He said it was "somewhat hot." Enemy sharpshooters were everywhere. Bomb torn houses were collapsing on all sides and from behind the enemy lines came a stream of artillery shells. Snipers were the most troublesome, but one major dealt with them in short order. This major captured a German officer in the outskirts of Banneville, prodded the Nazi in the back with his pistol, and made him march thru the main street from one end of the town to the other. The snipers did not dare to fire on the British major for fear of missing him and having their own officer shot by the British officer. They spilled out into the street with their hands up and surrendered.

Find Dazed Women.

The lieutenant colonel said his men discovered in a trench two German soldiers and two French women who were completely dazed. The women had clung to their homes until the last and it was mere accident that both German soldiers had jumped into the trench beside them.

A chicken with many of its feathers missing stood dolefully on the wreckage of a German amphibious automobile.

The street dipped downward toward a streamlet on the other side of which was what had been a road leading up to a small hill where there were clumps of branchless trees. The stumps looked devoid of life but they hid German observation posts. Enemy machine guns sent clouds of dirt into the air but patrols found easy shelter behind wrecked tanks.

On the journey back to Caen one could see Faubourg de Vaucelles, or what was left of it. The word "shambles" does not begin to express it. It was pile after pile of timber, stones, and dirt and a place of horrible smells.

MOTHER LEARNS SON IS MISSING ON 19TH MISSION

Staff Sgt. Edward J. Hein, 30, flight engineer on a heavy bomber in Italy, was reported missing in action June 23, his mother, Mrs. Joseph J. Hein, of 5304 S. Artesian av., said yesterday. He was employed as a mechanic in the Pennsylvania railroad yards at 59th and Leavitt sts. when he entered the army in July, 1942. He had received the air medal, and was on his 19th bombing mission when his plane was lost.

BY HIS BATTERED BONNET YOU PICK THE 'HOT PILOT'

BY HOWARD WHITMAN.
[Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

AN 8TH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, July 21.—You've observed no doubt that some of the boys in the air force wear sloppy hats these days—the sloppier the better. In fact, if the hat is crushed, bent and shrunk beyond all recognition, it has the distinction of being known as a "hot pilot hat."

There's an art to the creation of one of these chapeaux. You start with an ordinary elastic army hat and first you remove the grommet, the circular wire which keeps the crown rigid. Next you remove the wire near the peak known as the front stiffener. After that you immerse the crown in boiling water, let it soak for five minutes and then hang it out to dry. This leaves the crown beautifully puckered and wrinkled.

Acquiring a Backsweep.

You then take the bottom of a fruit juice can and fasten it behind the eagle emblem at the front of the hat. You bend back the eagle and the tin support behind it so that the entire hat has a backsweep effect. If it has any semblance of neatness left after all this you can always throw it on the floor and jump on it a couple of times.

When it is finally sloppy, shrunk, puckered and swept back like a hurricane hit it, then you have a hot pilot chapeau.

The hat tradition of the air forces began in the early days when the flyers found they couldn't fit earphones over a hat with the grommet in it, so they simply removed these wire circles and crushed the earphones down over their hats. Thus grommetless sloppy hats became a flight tradition.

Badge of Distinction.

Today flyers mildly resent it when ground officers of the air forces, whom they call "paddlefeet," wear these crushed hats which, to pilots, are their exclusive membership cards to the club of the clear blue yonder.

Fighter pilots have recently introduced a new sartorial wrinkle. If they've knocked down five or more enemy planes they're entitled to have bright red lining put in their battlejackets. The Flying Fortress boys at this base haven't gotten around that way yet, altho many of the gunners here have several Jerry planes to their credit. The ranking gunner in the European theater, Sgt. Donald Crossley of Wellsburg, W. Va., shot down an even dozen while flying with this bomb group.

An "Individualist" Texan.

The air forces don't go in for strait laced regulations in dress that prevail in other branches of the army. This group has a number of sartorial individualists, including a pilot from Texas, who, until killed in a crash several months ago, wore a double breasted battle jacket, frontier pants, cowboy boots and silver mounted western belt.

Many of the boys who come overseas by way of South America bring good boots with them from Brazil and gaucho boots from the Pampas.

There seems to be a strange kinship somehow between boots and saddles and the formidable gadget infested metallic steeds these boys ride to roundup over Germany.

Col. Carl Truesdell, junior commander of this bombardment group, has a goodluck talisman he carries with him on his mission and this, too, reflects the horse and airplane affinity. It's a silverplated horseshoe which was once worn by the racing champion Man O' War.

Underwear for Missions.

You find a good deal of superstition at a base like this where every few days some of the fellows fly away and don't come back. There's the underwear superstition, for example. If a man makes out all right on his first mission he puts the underwear he was wearing carefully away, and after that wears it on missions only. He keeps wearing the same underwear until the missions are completed.

Many of these crews have dogs for mascots, and these dogs get passed on or inherited when the crew fails to return. If the dog gets inherited too often he gets increasingly unpopular. In fact there's one dog wandering around here pretty disconsolately. None of the crew wants him, simply because too many crews have had him.

One of the ground crew chiefs got his reputation ruined because after he had painted his name on a ship it usually went down. Finally it was decided not to name the ships in his care and there's a "no name" ship on the base today.

REVEAL MISSING HIGHWOOD FLYER HELD BY NAZIS

Staff Sgt. Harry Walz, 20, an army air forces tail gunner who on July 7 was reported as missing in a raid over Germany, is a prisoner of war in Germany, the war department yesterday informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Walz, 220 Sheridan av., Highwood. He formerly was employed by the state highway department.

Mrs. Frances Messec, 1031 McAlister av., North Chicago, a widow, was informed yesterday that her son, Pvt. Henry Messec, 26, has been missing in France since June 12.

REFUGEES FIND USE FOR GERMAN UNIFORMS: SHOES

Tribune Writer Visits Normandy Camp.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN NORMANDY, July 21.—The plight of French refugees is a heartbreaking one, altho allied civil units are doing their best to bring together broken families and to alleviate their sufferings.

Yesterday a group of newsmen visited a typical refugee transient camp, where the homeless are fed, sheltered, and clothed until it is safe for them to return to their villages or new homes are found.

300 Persons in Camp.

This camp is a refuge for about 300 persons of all ages, including a handful who originally came to France as refugees from Loyalist Spain. The camp is on the grounds of a former convent once occupied by the Germans. The refugees sleep in barracks on straw and eat from a communal kitchen presided over by Corp. Joseph Stephenson, Montreal, Que., who says, "I never even heated canned beans before and now look at me."

Refugee women have found a novel use for parts of discarded German uniforms, cutting them up and shaping them into shoes for youngsters.

Red Cross Aids Families.

The French Red Cross is aiding by trying to locate missing members of families. One father yesterday rejoined his family from whom he was separated since July 1 thru the efforts of the Red Cross. The principal difficulty in aiding the refugees seems to be the lack of sufficient transportation. It is a usual sight along the roads crammed with vehicles loaded with men and guns and other equipment to see a family pulling its sole remaining possessions in a small cart, or trouping stolidly along, sometimes heading away from the combat zone, sometimes toward it.

Late yesterday we saw a French woman carrying a small child on her back, his arms clasped tightly around her neck, while another child of about 5 walked beside her.

3 U. S. GENERALS DECORATED BY 'IKE' IN FRANCE

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 21 (AP).—During a tour of the Normandy battle front Gen. Eisenhower personally awarded oak leaf clusters to distinguished service medals already held by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander of the American 5th corps, and Maj. Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins, commander of the American 7th corps.

The decorations were conferred at the direction of Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

"When Gen. Marshall visited Normandy he studied the beaches and terrain where the great battles had been fought," Gen. Eisenhower said in a short speech to the three generals. He quoted Marshall as saying this study indicated clearly that the battles were directed by great commanders. Eisenhower flew back to England last night. It was his fifth visit to the beachhead.

NEARING THE END.

There appears to be no doubt that the attempt on Hitler's life was the work of high ranking officers in the German army, some of whom have already been shot as conspirators. Hitler on the radio spoke of them as "an extremely small clique of ambitious, unscrupulous, and at the same time foolish and criminally stupid officers." Goering in his turn called them a "miserable clique of former generals who had to be chased from their posts for a leadership that was as cowardly as it was incompetent."

It is impossible to believe that this kind of language or any other kind can be of much avail to the Nazis. Nobody in or out of Germany can believe for a moment Hitler's story that these conspirators were palace assassins seeking to kill him in order to succeed to his power and privilege. That could have happened when the Germans were winning and the mastery of Europe was the prize of a successful coup d'etat. There is nothing in Hitler's present position to tempt the ambitious; it is the last office the opportunist would seek.

Goering's thesis is equally preposterous. He says the assassination was attempted by officers who had been removed from command because of cowardice and incompetence, and were disgruntled at being publicly disgraced. The very statement discloses the bankruptcy of German propaganda because the answer to it is obvious. If Hitler is the great leader he pretends to be, why did he entrust important commands to ninnies and nitwits and allow them to remain in command until disaster had overtaken German arms?

It looks as if the German military machine is going to crack up before long. The German command cannot be unaware that the situation is hopeless, tho opinions may vary about the time required to crush the German army in the field. The rank and file have been fighting desperately in the west, but the allies have been making progress everywhere and have retained the initiative from the moment of the landing in Normandy. The German soldier is dogged, but he must be filled with despair and he must be war weary to the limit of endurance after nearly five years of campaigning and much more than a year of unbroken defeat.

Few soldiers like to fight. What keeps them going is pride, habit, the hope of victory, and the fear of punishment for disobeying commands. The German soldiers in the ranks may retain some vestige of pride in their regiments and they have known years of discipline, but the hope of victory is lost and they have the example before them of men of the highest rank who have revolted against a blundering and faltering leadership. In the circumstances it is difficult to believe that the infection will not spread downward thru the army. If that happens, the war in Europe will soon be over.

The only close precedent for the recent turn of events in Germany that comes to mind is the story of 1918. In August the German high command, with less cause for despair than it has today, notified the government in Berlin that the jig was up and the time had come to make peace on the best terms available. Hitler may well have received such a notification about the time of the landing in Normandy, if not months before, but chose to ignore it. He has survived the attempt on his life, but there will be no Doorn to which he can flee, as the kaiser did, once the catastrophe was upon him. Hitler and Goering can fool no one with their stories about cliques of ambitious and disgruntled subordinates. The truth is that the allies have the upper hand and the end is approaching.

A NEW HIGH IN IMPUDENCE.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that he would accept a fourth term roused the Montreal Daily Star to a panegyric. Not content merely to echo the plea not to change horses, the Star even suggested that we Americans would be well advised to call off our election.

"It seems a pity," said its editor, "that there should be a contested election. The inevitable dislocation of commerce, the raising of animosities that might well be left for settlement till the war is over, and ordinary interference with the smooth flow of business, coming at the present time, when it is more than ever necessary that the allied nations should concentrate on their war effort free from any disturbing factors, will be regretted by many American citizens."

This is a new high in impudent interference by foreigners in American domestic affairs. It is particularly obnoxious because the Canadian government and the Montreal banking coterie that dictates its policies have between them such tight control of Canadian newspapers that their editorial pronouncements are virtually official pronouncements.

With supreme inconsistency, the Star comments upon a pending election in its own province of Quebec on the same page on which it deplores that Roosevelt must face the voters. Its assumption is ridiculous that "many millions of American citizens" share the regret that he cannot, like Churchill, maintain himself in office by the fiat of an unrepresentative legislature. No American regrets that we still have the protection of the Constitution. Such regrets are held only by those in this country who have forfeited their right to be called Americans by their efforts to destroy the Republic.

The Star's apprehension that the orderly conduct of a Presidential election will result in "inevitable dislocations in commerce" is incomprehensible, unless the "commerce" over which it is concerned is the indefinite continuation of lend-lease charity after the war. It is that which makes Roosevelt the candidate of the Montreal Star and Churchill, of Pravda, Stalin, Browder, and Hillman. He is the Good Time Charlie candidate.

REP. THOMAS DISCLOSES SOME NEWS.

Rep. Thomas, a Texas Democrat, said in an address before the Lions club in his home district at Houston the other day that the United States will build 110 new B-29 Super Fortresses during July. He added that we now have 85 aircraft carriers and that 34 carriers have been "leased" to allied nations. He told about visiting east coast shipyards, where he saw two 45,000 ton aircraft carriers under construction.

This sounds like first rate military information, and the congressman certainly scooped all the newspapers with most of it. If it is secret military information, he ought to be prosecuted the way any other loose lipped citizen would be.

If these facts do not constitute secret military information and have been cleared for public consumption by the censor, the American people have a right to know why an obscure Roosevelt congressman got the right to run a sneak preview on them. A lot of the most interesting and encouraging news of the war is coming out that way. Somebody in the administration hoards up these fascinating little kernels and parcels them out to worthy New Deal law-makers and job holders for use in speeches to wow the local Lions, Kiwanis, or political action groups, or for use in signed magazine articles at space rates.

This may be good vote catching material for the congressmen and pocket money for the job holders, but it isn't fair to other Americans. If military information is printable, it ought to be released by competent military authorities to the accredited correspondents of newspapers and radio stations so that all of the people will know about it and will be assured it is accurate. If the New Dealers must have killer-diller paragraphs for their speeches, let them root them out by their own effort, the way Martin Dies, Jessie Sumner, Ralph Brewster, Clare Hoffman, and some others in congress do.

THE GREAT DECEIVER.

Mr. Roosevelt, accepting the draft that his palace guard has so carefully nurtured, the draft that his leaders in the convention did not seek to have made unanimous because they dared not, sought to wrap about his shoulders the mantle of Lincoln.

He chose the wrong quotation. The words that fit him are not the magnificent wisdom and charity of the second inaugural. They are earthier, and more frequently remembered.

"You can't fool all of the people all of the time."

To a nonexistent person who had been completely cloistered from the world for the last 12 years the acceptance speech would have been tremendously impressive. It was written to deceive, and it was delivered by the greatest master of political deception this nation has ever known. But it could not deceive the American people who have suffered thru those 12 years of the New Deal.

They heard a man claim as his constitutional duties that "decisions must be made—plans must be laid—strategy must be carried out" in the military sphere. This from the man whose decisions, plans, and strategy opened the war with the disgraceful blunder of Pearl Harbor and the abandonment of the gallant defenders of the Philippines.

They heard a man pledge that he will "build an economy for our returning veterans and for all Americans which will provide employment and decent standards of living." This from the man who, in peace time, was never able to provide useful employment for 8 to 10 million workers. What is his post-war employment plan—another war, or the husks and political slavery of another WPA? Those have been his only remedies for 12 years.

They heard a man plead against turning the peace over to "inexperienced and immature hands." This from the man who is the favored candidate for President of the United States of Churchill and the British press, of Stalin and the Communist press. Do they think Churchill and Stalin want Roosevelt reelected because he would persuade them to concede the most to the United States at the peace table?

The Roosevelt leaders did not dare ask the convention to make the nomination unanimous because there were still a few Democrats seated in it. Those Democrats had to come to Chicago to see how completely their party has been torn from their control. They saw Sidney Hillman, his political power inflated by a slush fund checked off the pay of workers by Communist-run unions, vetoing candidates for Vice President. They saw the Kellys, and Hagues, and Flynns, and Crumps, whose interest is in spoils and not principles, manipulating their delegates to carry out the mandates from the Presidential train, without which the convention managers could not turn around.

But they did not see the Democratic party in action, because the Democratic party is dead.

Everybody knows that Roosevelt is the Communist candidate, but even the Communists cannot be sure where their place will be if he wins. His purpose is to overthrow the Republic for his own selfish ambitions and those who serve the purposes of that ambition know from examples furnished this week that they may expect to be discarded whenever their usefulness in attaining that objective ends.

In spite of the millions of New Deal payrollers, in spite of the attempts to poison the minds of the soldiers and sailors overseas, to regiment their voting and furnish them fraudulent ballots, this will still be a free election. We have not yet lost our power of self-preservation. It is the holy duty of every American to oppose the Great Deceiver.

A great form player, Jack Warwick points out that no native of Owosso, Mich., was ever defeated for the office of President of the United States.—Detroit News.

MR. PEPYS ON ORATORS.

22d July—Had a quiet week, enjoying the coolness and a few blasts of political oratory by radio. Noted that statesmen, when holding forth on national affairs, raise their voices at almost every breath, as if hollering "Fire!" and then pause for cheers. Wonder if this method of declamation is taught in schools of speech, or if it just comes natural to Americans. Experts call it the whangdoodle style, and maybe it is based upon the strange shrieks of the whangdoodle bird, once numerous in our native forests.

Must congratulate the weather man on being kind to the Democrats, and on nominating day the wind was so cold I put on a topcoat. Now the delegates can go home and say that Chicago is located on Hudson bay, thus starting another row with the Republicans, who will claim that it is on the banks of the Amazon. On that same afternoon, a bomb in Germany, aimed at Hitler, blew the Democrats off the first pages for a few hours.

Went shopping for summer neckties, and saw so many gaudy ones that I am suffering from eyestrain. Wish the psychologists would explain the relation between wars and wild fashions for men. In the other war, silk shirts with candy stripes were the rage, especially among teamsters. Maybe when men are in warlike mood, an urge comes over them to dress like roosters.

Am beginning to think about a vacation, and also about more sessions with my dentist, who is finding me a good customer this year. Know quite a few fellows who hope to be patched up by doctors and dentists during their vacations. Well, it's one way of getting gas without coupons.

POEMS FOR PAM—XXXI.

[To celebrate her third birthday.]

Some like the bright ones—some like the light ones—
Some folks prefer the "busy-day-and-night" ones.
Some like the dumb ones—some like the numb ones—
[You know, the "I eat ev-er-y crumb" ones.]

Some like the cute ones—
Some like the smart ones—
Some, astute ones,
Break-your-heart ones.

I find that my choice
Is very simple;
I won't swerve from it
One dot or dimple.

No longer care I for age one—
[They're too fragile and frail for fun].
No longer care I for age two—
[They find much too much to do].

And so today
I set the stage
To change my affection
To another age,

I still like them shy—
I still like them bold—
But gosh, I love them
Three years old!

"Can you tell me how to get to the postoffice?"

"Sure. You can't miss it. Just go down this street two blocks—"

"Thanks."

"Not so fast. Two blocks down you'll find three streets branching out in different directions."

"Yes?"

"You can identify the street on the right by the remains of a gas station—I don't recall what kind of gas they used to sell there—"

"So I follow that street—"

"No, you don't take that street. You can identify the street in the center by the weeds growing up on each side—"

"I see. So I follow—"

"No, you don't take that street. You can easily identify the other street because it's the only one left."

"I see. At last I'm on the right street."

"Yes, it's a circuitous street and you follow it round and round—"

"And it takes me right to the postoffice?"

"Not exactly. You finally wind up right where you're standing now."

"Well, what do I do next?"

"The rest is easy. You walk straight across the street to the postoffice. You can't miss it."

CHICAGO'S PARTHENON.

The glory that was Greece relives today,
Our great possession for all time to come;
Beside our inland sea, sprung from our clay,
Fulfilment of faith's long millennium.
A pageant of proportion, hewn in space,
The verity of dreams that would not die,
These stately columns march in classic grace,
Exultant and serene, against the sky.
Cloud shadows soft caress the faithful stone
In changeful loveliness, unchanging still,
And seem a hymn to beauty, nearer known
Now we have formed this temple to fulfill,
Thru art and industry conjoined in thought,
The golden age the centuries have sought.

Friend of the Yanks

[This department answers questions about draft, military, and veterans' problems, here and by mail, if a self-addressed envelope is sent.]

H. E. A. asks: "Can I borrow money from the government for homesteading? I am drawing $100 per month for a service connected disability and have drawn $300 severance pay, but I need some money to get started."

Loan provisions of the G. I. law seem to be restricted to purchase of a home or farm or business with a ceiling of $2,000 guaranteed by the government. Homestead land is not sold and, since the cost involved is largely confined to legal work and "proving up," it is doubtful whether a loan might be obtained. Under section 502, "purchase of farm and farm equipment," you might borrow sufficient money for required equipment, and under section 501 you might be able to borrow money with which to build a dwelling. Our data sheets, "Homesteads for Yanks" and those on "Loans for Yanks" might give you some ideas. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Loan applications will be available on or about Aug. 1.

THE MEANING OF VOMITING AND DIARRHEA.

AMONG children of all ages, vomiting with fever may mean almost anything. Scores of maladies will start off in this fashion and the physician may be puzzled to find the exact cause. The assumption is that an infection exists somewhere.

Occasionally, the focus will be found in the bladder or the kidneys and these structures must not be overlooked. If a simple examination of the urine discloses bacteria and pus, the answer is clear. But other areas will need to be investigated as the trouble may be sore throat [tonsillitis], bronchitis, pneumonia, scarlet fever, or any other ailment, even measles. We must not forget that an emotional upset may bring on vomiting, without elevation in temperature. If the child is frightened, he may react in this manner.

If pain in the abdomen is present we must always think of appendicitis. In this condition the little one will usually lie curled up in bed with the thighs resting against the abdomen.

When diarrhea accompanies ejection of the stomach contents we assume that something has so disturbed the digestive tract that inflammation is obliging the intestine to contract violently. If there is no fever, we can look to an indiscretion in diet. But, as a rule, temperature will develop within a few hours and again every part of the body will require study. Middle ear disease, a respiratory disorder, or food poisoning may be responsible.

When will loose stools be dangerous? Frequent discharges carry an element of hazard because fluids may be lost so rapidly that within a very few hours the tot may be in a serious condition. So much liquid may depart from the circulation that the skin will take on an ashen gray pallor. When this is accompanied by slow deep breathing, we must realize that the youngster is toxic and that prompt relief is necessary. As movements become more frequent, they will change in character. Mucus mixed with blood and pus points clearly to a dysentery of bacterial origin and here it may be desirable to employ antitoxin or one of the powerful sulfonamides to full effect.

Naturally, our first concern will be to restore water. As a rule, it is useless to give liquids by mouth. It just will not be absorbed. The only way we can fill depleted blood vessels is by means of transfusions, plasma, or glucose solution.

Raw scraped apple or banana powder may prove valuable. Sometimes bismuth subcarbonate, mixed with kaolin, will be helpful. The old notion that diarrhea is a good thing as it seeps away poison may be all right for a few hours, but it will force the victim to hug the danger zone unless fluid replacement can be accomplished promptly.

Only now and then will young children present chronic diarrhea. In such cases, we must consider upset metabolism, lack of calcium assimilation, or poor digestion of fat. In other words, the youngster has formed a habit of failing to dissolve certain edibles. For all these disorders, physicians have at their command effective remedies.

BOTH RAT BORNE.

L. S. writes: Is Weil's disease the same as bubonic plague?

REPLY.

No, they differ. The former is characterized by jaundice, fever, muscle pain, and swelling of the liver and spleen. It is due to a spirochete spread by rats. The latter is a highly fatal malady, produced by the Pasteurella pestis. The lymphatic glands are involved, with the formation of buboes [enlargements] in the groin, beneath the arm, and other regions. Fleas which have fed on diseased rats are the carriers.

CLOSED JAWS.

F. K. B. writes: Some mornings, upon arising, I don't seem to have control over my jaws. I can hardly open them enough to get food into my mouth. Would this be due to a goiter?

REPLY.

Probably not. Investigate arthritis, an impacted molar, spasm of the muscles, or some mechanical obstruction to movement.

UNLIKELY.

P. W. writes: I have a low blood sugar level and some one told me that I would never develop diabetes. Is this true?

REPLY.

The chances are that you will not.

THE HEAD COMMANDS

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Wind-Up.

The 48 booster clubs of the 48 sovereign states of the United States did very well for themselves during the Democratic nominations for President. Each asserted itself vehemently and magnificently, sometimes at such great length that Chairman Jackson had to cut short the self-directed eulogies.

Our favorites were "the sturdy state of New Hampshire," "the voteless but not voiceless" District of Columbia, which said it wished to extend a warm welcome to Mr. Roosevelt to "spend four more years with us"; Washington, the state "closest to Tokyo . . . and home of the Boeing bomber," and Wyoming which again and again called itself "wonderful Wyoming." All paled, however, during the nominations yesterday for the Vice Presidency, when Colorado yielded to Wyoming with the glorious alliteration, "cool Colorado yields to wonderful Wyoming!"

The name of Roosevelt was pronounced more ways than it had hitherto been thought possible, including the slip where South Dakota said it was happy to second the nomination of "our great President, Theodore Roosevelt." His last name was given the long O, the short O, and the moose pronunciation. His middle name was pronounced variously Delahno, Delane-o, Delaney, and Dell-anoo. But only the Virgin Islands attempted to change his first name. "The Virgin Islands," cried its chairman, "gives its two votes to Frankling D. Roosevelt."

Convention news photographers have a hard time getting any victim to hold a dignified or undignified stance long enough for all of them to catch it. This, too, reached a new peak when one yelled to Vice President Wallace [whose forelock, it should be noted, is as rebellious as that of Mr. Willkie]: "Wait a minute, Mr. Wallace! You had your eyes closed that time." Wallace apparently did not hear him, so the photographer continued, in a labyrinth of supplicant confusion: "Mr. Wallace . . .! Mr-r. President!"

The only rhyming sign of the day was the one that said: "We want Hank and Frank." Sorry, that was a slip. It was: "We want Frank and Blank."

Unlike the 1936 Republican national convention, when every man came with a nominating speech and went home a mute Milton, his speech not given, almost every man here came with one speech and made three. Out of all this came some surprising reasons for a man's name being put into the cauldron for the Vice Presidency. Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, in outlining the background of Sen. Truman, extoled him as a transportation expert, certainly a departure from noble qualifications. Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama, in nominating Sen. Bankhead, extoled him as the father of rural free delivery. ["FDR in reverse," quipped a press gallery wit.] Gov. Hunt of Wyoming went back to 1924 to state that his candidate Sen. O'Mahoney [Note to dictionaries: this is pronounced O-maa (as in cat) 'hunney], was even then for "a New Deal and a new day." He also said Mr. O'Mahoney was a 100 per cent liberal, and even the press gallery agreed that this was as far as any man could go. Mayor Kelly was the only nominator to read a poem.

The two League of Women Voter ladies were in the dressing room. The subject of their conversation was the Democratic platform. "But," complained one, "I do wish they had said something about keeping the peace as well as winning it. Even the Republicans put that in."

Add signs: The prettiest signs in the Stadium were for Lucas. They had colored, as well as white, backgrounds.

All in all, it was a frantic session. As far as we could see, the only person who got thru the day well was the newspaper man who bundled his head on his arms and slept tranquilly during Gov. Hunt's long, long dissertation on America, wonderful Wyoming, and its wonderful Sen. O'Mahoney.

WHY HE SOUNDS THAT WAY.

Chicago, July 18.—It is futile to chide Mr. Roosevelt about those discrepancies which occasionally appear between his spoken word and his subsequent action. The President is a busy man, and does not remember all that he reads; and being a busy man he does not have much time to write; hence the ghost writers, those fellows who fabricate the Roosevelt letters, messages, speeches, statements, greetings, bed-time stories, etc. Some of them have confessed and have long been in the doghouse. But their places have been filled with equally worthy or unworthy successors. Another and quite different group formulate the Roosevelt policies. They are the authors of the 4,000 [approximately] executive orders issued in the last 11 years. This is the group that seeks to change our form of government. Mr. Roosevelt's part in this program is to furnish the vocal effort. He is the sound effects man. Today, the most certain thing about a Roosevelt statement is the uncertainty about who wrote it.

A. R. Drow.

"ROOSEVELT PROSPERITY."

Chicago, July 10.—Mr. G. J. Hart from Milwaukee is for Roosevelt from now on because [he says] Mr. Roosevelt took us out of the depression. This is news to me. Of course we have a national debt larger than any country ever had, made by Mr. Roosevelt spending the people's money, which he didn't have and which we now owe, all of us, including Mr. Hart. If that's his idea of being prosperous, he can have it. The clique that has been throwing America up for grabs is all washed up and will be snowed under next November. And that's for sure.

GIVE HIM HIS REST.

Cleveland, O., July 18.—Our President and commander-in-chief has served us well for 12 long years. Now he is tired and everything within him cries out for his home on the Hudson. He says, and we must believe, that this is what he wants most of all. He would not lie to us again and again. The least that we who have his welfare at heart can do is to give him his most ardent wish and a well earned rest by voting for Thomas E. Dewey in the forthcoming election.

Marine Corps Sergeant.

WHY BOTHER WITH A PLATFORM?

Chicago, June 10.—In 1932, President Roosevelt was elected upon one of the best party platforms ever dreamed of. He declared he was in complete accord with it.

Eighteen months after election, as Sen. Carter Glass said, Roosevelt had "repudiated four-fifths of it and had taken his party with him." His record was not much better in 1936 or 1940.

SOME SOUTHERN DELEGATES WONDER, TOO.

COMMENT ON STRIKES.

Mount Vernon, Ill., July 11.—Reading the communication of Tech. Sgt. J. H. concerning the employes of the Greyhound Bus company going on strike because they didn't want to wear ties, I am moved to suggest that the ties were probably the least important of the grievances which caused the strike.

As a matter of fact, I am pretty cranky about wearing these vestigial drawstrings which were designed to close the neck of a cloth or leather tunic in the middle ages. Their only function today is that of giving the male costume a little color. They correspond to the hackle feathers and wattles of a rooster.

After several years of handling labor relations for a manufacturing concern I would suggest that there are two wrong sides to this controversy. I couldn't possibly blame the employes for not wanting to wear ties. On the other hand, I can't see why they should strike over such a trivial matter. I can't see why the company should insist on their doing so.

The answer is, that the strike was not due to the causes given either by the employes or the management. More likely it was a matter of fatigue, physical or mental, on the part of both of them.

WANTS A SHOW DOWN.

Chicago, July 20. — Now that Sen. Pepper is in our town we should attempt to secure some valuable information he is withholding from our people. When the senator was whooping it up for war on all sides, he said that we would lick the Japs in six weeks! Now he is very unpatriotic in not disclosing the know-how to his perpetual commander in chief. Our boys in the sweating jungles are entitled to it. So are the mothers of these boys. If he doesn't know, then his guess was so poor he should not be at this convention giving advice. Out with him!

CABARET TAX.

Chicago, July 8.—The other night I went to a night club with friends. There was to be a floor show but we didn't have time to see it; we just ate, had our coffee, and left. Under the circumstances, was the cabaret tax added to our bill a legitimate charge? I do not mind paying taxes but, on the other hand, I do not care to get rooked.

News Arrives of Chicagoans Serving in Diplomatic Posts

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOME of the most unusual tales of the war eventually will be shared with Chicago families who have relatives in the diplomatic service, but for the time being news from these distant posts is scarce. At present the Knight C. Cowles' son-in-law, Joseph N. Greene Jr., is in the vicinity of Naples, Italy, where he is serving on the staff of Alexander C. Kirk, American representative on the allied advisory council in Italy. The Cowleses are looking forward to the arrival next Saturday of their daughter and granddaughter, Wendy, who have been visiting Mr. Greene's mother, Mrs. Everett W. Pervere, in North Andover, Mass. Young Mrs. Greene and the baby will be in Lake Forest for the duration.

Some time next month S. Douglas Flood will come from Washington, D. C., to visit his mother, Mrs. Samuel D. Flood, and sister, Mrs. Robert H. Gardner. Since his return last year from his European diplomatic post, he has been living in a little house in Georgetown. Still with two weeks' leave due, he plans to spend them in Chicago before going abroad again this fall.

Since the news from Norway is strictly censored, it has been some time since Mrs. Jens A. Paascne had word of her younger daughter, Mrs. Johannes Zimmer. The Zimmers are living in Oslo, Norway, where Dr. Zimmer is a practicing physician. Mrs. Zimmer's sister, Mrs. Ditlief Knudsen, expects to bring her two boys from Montreal about the second week in August for a visit with the Paasches in Wilmette, and if Mr. Knudsen's duties as secretary to the Norwegian legation there permit, he will accompany them. Recently the Knudsens moved from New York to Montreal, having been stationed previously in San Francisco and in Ankara, Turkey.

As soon as Mrs. Henry O. Ramsey can arrange passage, she hopes to join her husband and daughter, Mrs. Roy H. Munsey, in England. Mr. Ramsey, an American consul, is traveling between diplomatic posts in England, which allows him frequent visits with his daughter, wife of a royal air force flying officer. Mrs. Ramsey has been living in Oak Park.

The George Voevodskys have not heard from their nephew and niece, the Ned Russells, since word came that they had been bombed out of their London apartment. Mr. Russell, a war correspondent, and the former Mary Voevodsky were married last fall in England.

On the Calendar.

Now that the Democratic convention is over, out of town visitors will find a number of pleasant week-end diversions, including the 16th running of the Arlington Classic today and tonight's and tomorrow's concerts at Ravinia. The rich track event, which carries an $80,000 purse, will attract a large crowd of racing fans to Washington Park in time for the 2:15 p. m. opening. The Warren Wrights will entertain at a box party. Some of the many others who plan to be present are Mrs. Bert L. Atwater, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Allen, Maj. and Mrs. Ednyfed Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Lobdell, Mrs. Frank Lagorio, Gen. Roy D. Keehn, and Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell Hutchins.

Mrs. Louis Eckstein will have an informal family dinner tonight, later taking her guests to hear Rudolph Serkin, who will be piano soloist on tonight's all-Beethoven program at Ravinia. Tomorrow the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the baton of George Szell, will repeat Mahler's "The Song of the Earth," with Kerstin Thorborg and John Garris as soloists.

The coming week-end will be especially busy for the members of the Service league of the Evanston Infant Welfare, who have taken time from their regular duties to plan two parties for their families. The barbecue pit in the garden of the Charles C. Searles' home in Indian Hill will be the center of attraction at 5 p. m. today, when the league's members and their husbands gather for a barbecued dinner. The second event on the calendar is a circus party for the children Monday in the Richard D. Mason home in Winnetka.

Wedding News.

The marriage of Miss Geraldine Margaret Ferstel to Lt. [j. g.] Joseph A Reising, son of Mrs. Joseph A. Reising of Aurora, will take place at 10:30 a. m. today in St. Francis Xavier church in Wilmette. Later the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Ferstel of Wilmette, will give a breakfast in the Michigan Shores club. Miss Ferstel was graduated cum laude from Mundelein college. Lt. Reising was graduated from the University of Southern California, at which he played on the championship basketball team, as well as on the Great Lakes team.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Helen Neal to Fred Vincent Solana, which will take place next Saturday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Neal, is of interest here because the Neals formerly lived in Evanston. Miss Neal attended Pine Manor and Stephens college. Her fiancé, son of Fred B. Solana of Houston, Tex., is a chief mate in the merchant marine.

Lana Jelke's Engagement Is Announced

At a tea yesterday afternoon in their home in Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke announced the engagement of their only daughter, Mary Louanna, to Michael James Brody of Mexico City, the young man who has been the Jelkes' house guest for the last week.

Miss Lana Jelke.

Miss Jelke, who always is called Lana, met her fiancé last winter in Mexico City, where he is engaged in business and where she was studying at the University of Mexico.

Miss Jelke, who attended the Greenwood school in Maryland and Finch Junior college, was a debutante of the 1941 season, making her bow at a tea at home and a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia club. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Brody of Pitsburgh, Pa., was graduated from Harvard university.

The younger Jelke boys, Charles and Minot, who attend the Taft school, were present at yesterday's party, but Flight Officer John F. Jelke III. was unable to come from his post at Dale Mabry field in Tallahassee, Fla. Mr. Brody is leaving today to fly back to Mexico, and no date has been set for the wedding.

The engagement of Miss Mary Lea Griggs to Lt. Edward Henry Morgan of the army medical corps was announced recently while Lt. Morgan stopped off en route from Camp Haan, Cal., to the east coast to be the house guest of Miss Griggs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Griggs II. of Tacoma, Wash. Miss Griggs, who attended the Annie Wright seminary and the Katharine Branson school in Ross, Cal., will return to Smith college in the fall for her senior year. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Morgan of Oak Park, was a Rector scholar at De Pauw university and was graduated in 1942 from Northwestern university's medical school. Following an internship at the University of Pennsylvania hospital, he was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Army Aviation Cadet Theodore B. Fossberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Fossberg of Wilmette, is being made by Mr. and Mrs. John Yeoman Crompton of Highland Park. Miss Crompton is a graduate of Great Moreton Hall, Cheshire, England. Cadet Fossberg is receiving bombing training at Victorville, Cal., at the completion of which he will receive his silver air force wings. The wedding will take place about the first of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Thomson of N. Campbell av. announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to John P. DeCicco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis DeCicco of Minerva av. The wedding will take place Aug. 19 in St. Hilary's church, and Mr. DeCicco and his bride will live in Chicago. Miss Thomson attended St. Scholastica's academy and Mundelein college. Following two and one-half years of service her fiancé received an honorable discharge from the army, having been decorated with the Purple Heart and silver star citation for duty in the South Pacific.

Doctor's Assistant.

She holds a white collar job which keeps her busy the early part of the day. Recently she offered to help her doctor in his late afternoon and early evening office hours—one of those generous, unostentatious services that gladdens your heart to hear about.

It's been good experience, she says, and offers this list of "Don'ts for patients—and for me, too, in the future":

DON'T telephone your doctor during office hours and talk interminably about trivial matters that will keep till your next visit.

DON'T go into the office without an appointment insisting that you'll ask the doctor only one question and leave. That "one question" may lead to protracted conversation throwing awry the whole afternoon's schedule.

DON'T elect yourself "doctor's pet" and expect special privileges, such as sneaking in the laboratory entrance, rushing in ahead of turn, or you'll become doctor's anathema.

DON'T tell your doctor about the wonderful new treatment Mrs. Jones next door is getting and demand it for yourself. It may be all wrong for you.

DON'T wear your most complicated clothing with dozens of fancy buttons if you are having a physical examination.

DON'T linger after your visit is over to detain the doctor with personal chatter, or gossip with the laboratory technician.

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The San Carlo's "Aida" drew ideal weather and about 8,000 customers to Soldiers' field last night, opening the week-end cycle of three Verdi performances at popular prices. The air was fresh, the deep blue sky circled the improvised stage like a limitless cyclorama, and at either side of the curving stadium searchlights from the army show lit pillared colonnades and a lone sailor who seemed to like sitting in solitary splendor. In general, the army and the opera synchronized their rival shows admirably. It was not the army's fault that a longwinded speechmaker threw the schedule a bit out of joint, so that fireworks punctured the sky just as Elda Ercole launched into "Ritorna Vincitor." But at least they both had to do with victory.

This was an "Aida" reasonably typical of San Carlo procedure. Most of it was well sung, the orchestra under the direction of George Schick was competent, the acting was routine, the staging crude but with none of that nonsense about interminable intermissions. It wasn't an "Aida" such as Fortune Gallo could stage when his good company of a decade ago held Blanca Saroya, but it was adequate, and bolstered by a far more than adequate guest star in Anna Kaskas, who had distinction, beauty, and a rich contralto as assets for Amneris.

Three veterans of the San Carlo group kept her excellent vocal company. Sydney Rayner's lush tenor copes so admirably with Rhadames' heroic outpourings you forgive him a convex figure and whiskers that look like a misplaced chin strap. Mostyn Thomas still sings Amonasro magnificently, and Harold Kravitt's beautiful bass remains one of the finest the opera world has to offer the unheeded forebodings of Ramfis.

Miss Ercole, Mr. Gallo's new Aida, still has a large question mark in her operatic figure. She has a young dramatic soprano, fresh and full of range, but she uses it awkwardly so that much of its potentialities are lost. She needs vocal and dramatic training, and someone to explain about makeup and costume.

Reinhold Schmidt, the Chicago bass, did a good job with Egypt's king, Frieda Bleicher was an adequate priestess, and the ballet danced well in the triumph scene, tho why in the temple the girls made a ring around Rhadames, I couldn't tell you. The chorus sang better than it looked, and it looked better than the supers.

Tonight's "La Traviata" will have Stella Andreva, Mario Palermo, and George Czaplicki heading the cast, while tomorrow night's "Il Trovatore" will be sung by Giovanni Martinelli, Mobley Lushanya, Margery Mayer, and Stephan Ballarini.

Belfry Players Giving Milne's 'Perfect Alibi'

The Belfry players, who are celebrating their 10th anniversary season, will continue performances of A. A. Milne's three act play, "The Perfect Alibi," tonight and tomorrow night, and Wednesday thru the following Sunday evening in the playhouse at Williams Bay, Wis., on Lake Geneva. The theater was converted from an old Mormon church, founded in 1852 by refugees from Nauvoo, Ill., and it was from the ringing of the bell which signals the opening of each new performance that the players derived their name. Other plays on this season's calendar include "Guest in the House," which opens Aug. 10, and "Papa Is All," opening Aug. 24.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Dorothy M. Lang, 1202 Woodbine av., Oak Park, was sworn into the WAC yesterday, her 20th birthday, and left for basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., after which she will enter the army school for WAC medical and surgical technicians at Camp Atterbury, Ind.

The class, to open Sept. 8, will be the first such course for army women, and will cover a school period of 60 to 90 days. WACs so trained will be assigned to army hospitals. The WAC procurement office in room A-333, 166 W. Van Buren st., now is recruiting women for these assignments and others of equal importance to army operations. Women between 20 and 50, with two years of high school education, are eligible for the hospital billets.

Tomorrow will be WAC day at the Weapons of War show in Burnham park, being presented by the United States treasury with the cooperation of the army service forces in behalf of the 5th war loan.

Approximately 200 army women from Fort Sheridan will visit the grounds during the day. WAC activities will be stressed at all exhibits from noon to 11 p. m., closing time. A full military parade and review will take place at 5:30 p. m., climaxed by a retreat ceremony, seldom seen except on military posts. It will be the first such ceremony staged only by women in Chicago. Lt. Col. Sidney Z. Eleveld, director of the show, and his staff will review the retreat.

WACs are regularly scheduled for duty at the show with the quartermaster corps, the medical department, the signal corps, the transportation unit, the administration offices, and the WAC exhibit. The admission-free show will close Monday night.

The Midway U. S. O., 975 E. 60th st., will give its third annual picnic for men and women in uniform from 3 p. m. to 9 p. m. tomorrow at the 55th street promontory. Athletic contests, baseball, touch football, movies, dancing, and music will be included in the entertainment program, to be followed by a picnic supper. Junior hostesses and residents of the Kenwood, Woodlawn, and Hyde Park communities, who serve as U. S. O. volunteers also will attend the party.

E. Hector Coates is general chairman. Paul Derr, H. W. Nepo, and Byron Mingus are on the arrangements committee. Mrs. Robert Hann, Mrs. Virgil Herrick, Mrs. R. C. Goodrich, and Mrs. Walter Smith comprise the foods committee.

Approximately 200,000 service personnel have received hospitality at the Midway U. S. O. staffed entirely by volunteers headed by Mrs. H. B. Dunkel as executive chairman.

Mrs. Lyman Flook is chairman of the more than 1,000 junior hostesses who attend the center's Sunday afternoon parties in Ida Noyes hall on the University of Chicago campus. Mrs. Truman Miller, Mrs. Ronald Crane, and Mrs. H. C. Cardick serve on the program committee. Mrs. Arthur Funk schedules the volunteers' hours.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 21.—Over the years, many mementos have come to me from far and wide, but one I prize most came in a letter from Normandy. It was a triangular piece of spotted green silk of finest quality. 'Twas sent by a former co-worker who enlisted when war started. His letter follows: "Inclosed silk is a piece from one of the chutes used by an American paratrooper in their original landings here in Normandy. It blends beautifully with the countryside hereabouts. Whether the man it bore to earth is alive or dead, I do not know. But from evidence left on the field from which it was gathered, that man stood briefly, at least, on ground where only fire and blood, guts and steel counted. Perhaps you can fashion this bit of his wings into a scarf and wear it in his memory. My love, Spec McClure."

We'll Miss Her a Lot.

When the preview of "Thin Man Goes Home" is over, Myrna Loy leaves for New York to resume her Red Cross work. She'll go via Mexico for a little vacation first. Metro has nothing ready for her. Before shoving off she'll stage a big cocktail party for the Mandels of Chicago. . . . Damon Runyon has decided to free lance. Since his operation he's been working for Metro on a story that will suit either Clark Gable or William Powell. This means Damon is practically well. . . . Pat Clark, an El Morocco blond who toured with "Room Service," has been signed by Warners and probably will wind up in "Hollywood Canteen." . . . Doug Morrow, who came west to get ads for a screen magazine, is being tested for Sonja Henie's leading man in "It's a Pleasure." . . . The Andrews Sisters go to Mexico City for four weeks in September. . . . Charles Boyer and Bill Goetz's luncheon dates haven't been entirely social. They're talking a deal for International.

Could It Be a Mistake?

I thought an agreement was made between film exhibitors and movie companies about showing revivals of stars now in service. Yet "Pot of Gold," with Jimmy Stewart starred, is being shown as "Jimmy Steps Out." . . . The Nunnally Johnsons give a lifting of the elbow party for Ethel Butterworth Heyn Sunday. Nunnally tells me Producer Gary Cooper already is shopping for cowboy clothes. Comes in daily to see how the story's coming on. . . . Elliot Paul has the strangest writing hours—6 to 11 a. m. . . . The Johnny Weissmullers' neighbors are none other than Gov. Earl Warren and his family. Hope the governor's sons don't come out as little Tarzans. . . . The Dennis Morgans and four children have moved into Adrian's Valley road home. Kids are having the time of their lives in that mirrored dressing room and bath tub.

They're a Couple of Pals.

Since Greta Garbo's burglary, she's never returned to her own home. She's been putting up with Minna Wallis. . . . Bill Deem of the army air forces sat thru six showings of "Home in Indiana," now wants to know more about Lon McCallister. Lon is back here playing in "Winged Victory." He's not married nor engaged. Before joining the army, he'd just finished paying for a beach home for his mother and grandmother. Need I add, he's one of the best?

Here and There in Hollywood.

Mrs. Pat Smart and Anita Colby are living together, so it's natural for Pat to give a birthday party for Anita. It takes place in the old Marion Davies house where Anita played nursemaid to cover girls. . . . Katina Paxinou is entertaining for Conductor Dimitri Metropoulos of the Minneapolis orchestra at the Dolly Walker home. Paxinou is one of the most enthusiastic attendees at bowl concerts. . . . Ezio Pinza, Met star, is showing his new wife the town. . . . Bing Crosby is lining up his pals to sub for him when he takes 13 weeks away from the Music Hall program. They'll include Lum 'n' Abner, George Murphy, Sonny Tufts, and many others. . . . Since Lena Horne is set on the screen, it would pay our producers to listen to Savannah Churchill singing "I Lost My Sugar in Salt Lake City."

Licia Albanese Stirs Memories of Great Bori

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

A soloist again lightly wrested honors from the 75 stalwarts of the Grant Park Symphony orchestra last night, and once more the winner was a comely young soprano of the type predominantly favored on the lake front this season.

Licia Albanese of the Metropolitan Opera was the young woman—no stranger hereabouts—and you could not blame the photographer who defied Conductor Nicolai Malko's wrath to obtain a shot of her, tho he would have been equally judicious if he had brought along his recording equipment.

Something always tugs at our memory when we hear Albanese sing, and as nearly as we can localize the signals they concern one of the most haunting of all musical memories—Lucrezia Bori. Albanese, with a new hair job we shall not crawl out on a limb to describe, physically resembled the inimitable Bori less than on some other occasions, but again there was in her voice that touch of burnished gold which will forever echo down the corridor of the years for those who once sat under Bori's spell. Albanese has not yet Bori's razor-edged artistry, nor her passionate, ecstatic abandonment to the music she sang, but she has great gifts and an undeniably hopeful future.

She sang Marguerite's Jewel song from "Faust" in brilliant vocal style, with little of the perfunctoriness which most present day sopranos bring to this essay in innocence, and followed it with Micaela's air from "Carmen," an equally neat bit of vocalizing. Her songs to Robert MacDonald's piano accompaniments were no more happily chosen than those of her predecessors this summer. Take away the soaring phrase that Campbell-Tipton lifted from Chopin's Funeral March for his "Spirit Flower" and no one would dream of singing it. Oley Speaks' "Morning" simply doesn't belong on a symphony program, and it is almost as difficult to make out a case for "La Paloma" in such an environment.

Mr. Malko offered Russianized versions of Schubert's "Rosamunde" overture and Beethoven's Fifth symphony that unavoidably suggested national vengeance on these monuments of German culture. The orchestra's most distinguished moment came with Sibelius' "Swon of Tuonela," which was lifted to arresting beauty by the superb artistry of Alfred Barthel, one of the world's great oboists who is confined to the brief opportunities of the English horn at Grant park, and by the passing solos of the concertmaster, Samuel Thaviu, and the first cellist, Theodore Ratzer.

"I'd like directions for canning orange juice," said a caller who had received a crate of California oranges.

We replied that home canning of orange juice is not recommended, even by the fruit growers themselves, and that it would be far better to use the oranges in a variety of other ways—in salads and desserts, and freshly squeezed for breakfast. When orange juice is canned, there is decided flavor deterioration which results in a bitter tasting and unpalatable product.

Questions on the canning of mixed vegetable juices also come our way frequently. Canning vegetable juices, other than tomato juice, is not too practical. First of all, an extractor for preparing the juices from the raw vegetables is necessary. The juices would need processing in the pressure cooker the length of time required for canning vegetables, and the quality of the resulting product would be questionable. There are some items better left to the commercial packers.

"Can ground cinnamon be substituted for stick cinnamon in pickle making?"

Yes. The amount to use depends somewhat on the length of time the stick cinnamon is to be left in the sirup. In general, about 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon is substituted for each cinnamon stick [standard size]. Of course the ground spice darkens the sirup somewhat, but it's either a case of that or foregoing that popular spice flavor, as cinnamon sticks are hard to find these days.

"What kind of cookies can be sent overseas?"

Commercial vacuum-packed cookies only are satisfactory for overseas trips. The homemade variety dry out in transit. For cookies to send to boys stationed in this country, pick the moist, substantial types—bars, squares, drop cookies—and forget the brittle, dainty kinds.

'One Is Missing' . . . . By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

INSTALMENT XXIV.

A REVELATION.

Jed leaned his elbows on the table and asked, "How about your end?"

St. John nodded toward the sketch. Down one margin was a whole series of penciled notations. "I have it pretty well figured out," he said. "So much nitro, so much wire, so many caps, so much of everything."

Jed examined the notations and frowned. "Doesn't seem like very much nitro to me."

"I believe it will be enough to do the job, properly placed. The difficulty will be in stringing the wire. And another thing: what about the power to set it off?"

"I'll take care of that right now."

Jed got to his feet and went back to the aft stateroom. He squeezed thru the narrow opening into the cramped engine room and pried a board loose from the floor. He lifted out the missing injectors and screwed them into the engine. It took him the better part of an hour to get it started. When it finally barked into life, he was covered with oil and dirt, and soaked with perspiration. Then he threw on the generator switch and crawled out of the engine room. The batteries should be fully charged by the following night.

Tom Riddell was waiting for him, seated on the port bunk, with his chin cupped in his hands. He stared at Jed.

Jed glanced indifferently at him, then started to rip off his clothes. He stepped into the bathroom and turned on the shower. Riddell got up from the bunk and stood in the doorway, leaning against the wall.

"You take a lot of chances," he said.

"How do you mean?"

"Well, right now you're helpless." He touched the revolver hanging at his side. "If I were so inclined, I could fill you full of holes."

"Yes," Jed smiled. "If you were so inclined. What's on your mind?"

Riddell chuckled. "What about Banning?"

Jed stepped from the shower, finished his toweling, and walked into the stateroom. He opened a closet, took out a clean suit of clothes, and started dressing. "You didn't come in here to talk about Scott Banning."

Riddell dropped into a chair and shook his head. "No, I didn't. It's about Ellen. It's hard for a guy like me to explain this. I'm supposed to be pretty tough. But I have a soft spot."

Jed nodded.

"Sure," Riddell said. "You know, I'm in love with her. Have been ever since I first met her. She's selfish and self-centered, and I guess she's a lot of things, but I'm the sucker who has to fall for them all."

Jed said, "Go ahead."

Riddell looked up, but his eyes were fixed on the wall. "Well," he said, "I tried to take her away from Scott as soon as I knew. Now, Scott is probably thru with her, anyway. He's out to save his own skin. Ellen would be in the way. Everything's worked out fine, up to that point."

"And beyond that point?"

"You step into the picture. She thinks she's in love with you. Told me so this morning. Said it's the first time in her life she's ever been in love with any one."

Jed chuckled, "It's possible, you know."

"O, no. She's going to be mine, and I'm not kidding. Look, Captain, she's not for you. You've been in the jungle a long time, and Ellen comes along with plenty of lush beauty, and sort of turns your head."

Jed got to his feet, his face as hard as a rock. "A thing I detest," he said, "is to see a man grovel."

"You don't know what it's like, that's why. You get on fire inside. I detest it myself."

He stood up and faced Jed and then turned away. Jed said, "Wait a minute."

Riddell stopped and turned around. "Okay."

Jed watched him closely. "Look, Riddell. There isn't a prize package aboard this boat, except the Malayan. Not one of us."

Riddell grinned. "No doubt about that."

"Sure. But there's something else. The reason I suddenly made up my mind to help all of you. I'm not God, Riddell, but I've been acting like God. I assumed the power of life and death, and judgment, over any one with whom I came in contact, you people included. You were in the way, excess baggage, as far as I was concerned. But suddenly that baggage became important. Within each of you lies the right to decide his own destiny. And that is exactly what the mortal gods are seeking to destroy. So that if I am fighting against them, it necessarily follows that I am fighting to preserve that individual right."

Riddell stared at him, and shook his head. "You got me in a flat spin. What has this to do with Ellen, or me, or——"

Jed said, "Everything. I'm not coming out of this fight. I've been in too many of them, Richard. It's a hunch, a soldier's hunch."

"I know it is. Pilots get them. A friend of mine had a hunch he'd played out his luck in PBY's. He asked for a transfer. The week before it arrived, he was killed in a simple night take-off. You have a hunch like that?"

Jed nodded. "Keep it to yourself. I just wanted you to know. So, you see, I have no interest in Ellen, Banning's temporary insanity, or her lush beauty, or anything else about her. I'm not in your way."

"No. Guess not. Ellen will get over it," he said. "Nothing ever sticks long with her, anyway. But if you don't pull thru, it's sure going to raise the devil with the other gal."

Jed was puzzled. "Who?"

"Mae Nolan. She's head over heels."

Jed shook his head. "I don't understand."

"She's in love with you. With her, it means something. It always does with a gal like that. When they fall, they go all the way. For keeps."

Jed shouted: "What are you talking about?"

Riddell snorted: "If you can't figure it out, brother, I can't explain it. See you later."

He pulled the door open and walked out of the stateroom. Jed looked down the narrow passageway leading forward, and saw Mae Nolan by the phonograph, playing a record for the Malayan. She was smiling and talking to Omar. Her eyes came up and she saw Jed standing in the aft stateroom. The smile faded. Jed shook his head and closed the door.

Jed had to assume that Bart had made it thru to the submarine. Any other assumption would have defeated him. He and St. John worked far into the night, breaking out cases of T. N. T. from below the floorboards of the main salon, stripping the sticks and molding the explosive substance into round, jelly like balls, easier to handle.

St. John's engineering skill took immediate effect. He was painstakingly thoro about the job, and caught up all the minor details that Jed missed.

According to Culbertson

(Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.)

Most players have the idea that they always should play their highest card in the suit that partner opens, assuming of course that dummy's play is inconsequential. That this idea falls considerably short of the fact is proved by such a deal as today's.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.

SOUTH
♥K Q 7
♦A K 9 5
♣A J 8

At every table of this duplicate game South became the declarer at no trump contracts ranging from three to six. Invariably the opening lead was the jack of hearts. In five cases declarer was promptly assured of 12 tricks by East's going up with the heart ace. The return lead did not matter, inasmuch as there were now two spade tricks, two hearts, four diamonds, and four clubs that could be shown by the declarer.

Only two Easts displayed common sense in this situation, and they were rewarded with "ties for top score on the board." They played low on the first trick. This meant that their opponents could win only one heart trick instead of two, and since the 12th trick could not be established in any other quarter, these two declarers had to be satisfied with five odd.

The logic of refusing to part with the heart ace on the opening lead should be clear. Every South had announced great strength in the bidding, usually by starting with two no trump, and in view of dummy's high cards it was inconceivable that declarer had only the queen in hearts—that West's lead might have been from K-J-10-x-x. Hence, there was nothing to be gained by putting up the ace, and, as we have seen, there was a good deal to be lost!

Friends of Service Men Will Be Hosts at Huge Barbecue

"Food and Fun for Every One" is the slogan for a "Republocrat" convention to be staged for service men and women tomorrow, beginning at 5 p. m., at the Chicago service men's summer center on the lake front at Fullerton av.

Host organization for the G. I. "raucous caucus" is the Friends of Service Men, Inc., whose contributions to the party will include two pigs, 1,000 pounds of beef, and 1,500 ears of corn, all "candidate material" for the barbecue pits, and toasted buns, relishes, cold drinks, and ice cream. Each state "delegation" will choose a floor leader, who will have the privilege of making a free telephone call to his favorite constituent at home.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. George H., Chicago—Last week I salvaged a couple of lift front tin bread cans from attic and enameled them inside and out—to give to some neighbors who happen to be without bread boxes. The odor of the enamel stayed on and I tried old "onion stunt." I sliced a big onion thin, set slices on a saucer and put it inside bread box. After 24 hours I aired bread boxes for a day or so outdoors and—got rid of smell!

Mrs. Rob N., Rockford, Ill.—When wasp nests get under eaves of a roof or equally hard to reach place we turn hose on them and—that's the end of our trouble.

Mrs. Anna H., Chicago—I managed to give some artificial leather cushions and upholstery in our basement game room quite a new look by applying a thin coat of quick drying enamel. This enamel seemed flexible enough to do a good job of renewal.

Mrs. Sam G., Chicago—We moved into a rather old house and the tiles in bathroom had a grayish look from the soiling of the cement in the joints. My husband did a good job of cleaning this cement with a bleaching liquid containing chlorine. He said javelle water would have done the work, too.

Spy Film Spins Thrilling Tale of War Intrigue

"SECRETS OF SCOTLAND YARD."

A Republic picture, directed by George Blair, featuring Edgar Barrier and Stephanie Bachelor, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

It's not often that I advocate increased length for a picture, but, in the case of this movie, more time was needed for the development of the meaty story than the 68 minutes allowed.

Action stems from "Room 40, O. B."—the British admiralty code room in London where enemy code messages are deciphered by experts. These experts, the tale relates, were largely blamed for Germany's fall in the first World war. . . .

"But Germany will strike again," declares an officer, back in 1918, "and when she does she will have a trusted agent in Room 40, one who will have been trained intensively for just that responsibility, one to whom no suspicion could be attached. . . ."

And so you come to the present war and the "room" and its occupants. Which of the intent men is the Nazi spy? Could it be the young woman admitted to their company thru the wish of their leader? A murdered decipherer, his little son, who, at school in Switzerland had been friendly with the son of a prominent Nazi, and the twin brother who impersonates the deceased after the latter's death play potent parts in the drama which unfolds.

Acting is deft and so, for the most part, was direction. . . . Much of the action occurs in "Room 40" and the interior used is to be, with its high ceilings, blackboards, desks, and phones, an authentic copy of the original.

Just a few more scenes should have been added [I think] in the interests of smoothness and suspense.

See you tomorrow.

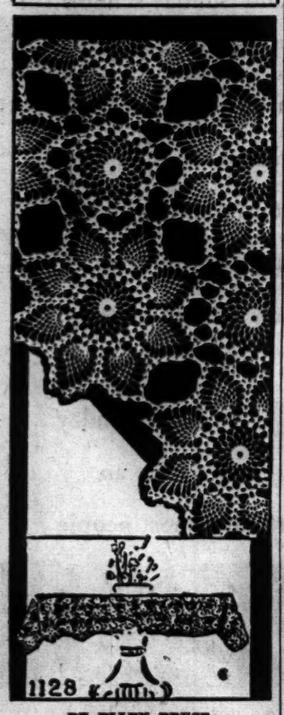
International Groups Will Mark Birthday of Colombia's Bolivar

Two centers dedicated to the furthering of friendly relations between nations have planned programs in celebration of the 151st anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America.

Today the Pan-American council will hear the story of Bolivar's life related by Blanca Fallon at its weekly tea at 3:30 p. m. in the Woodrow Wilson room at 84 E. Randolph st. Mrs. Fallon will repeat her talk tomorrow at the Sunday soiree at International house, University of Chicago.

At the council meeting, Modesto Rivera, Mauricio Piatta, and Rafael de Castro will give a musical program, and Mr. Piatta, who is a Colombian pianist and composer, also will play at International house.

Dainty Tablecloth



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Lovely crocheted pineapple medallions are joined to create a handsome tablecloth. The pattern is not difficult, and white or ecru mercerized cotton may be used. The motifs are joined with a fill-in design which is made like the first few rounds of the large medallion.

For instructions in crocheting the pineapple tablecloth, No. 1128, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Suppose you look back to last night or the night before. How did you sleep? If both those nights were serene for you all night thru, choose some other occasion on which you had a restless, disurbed night. Then look back to what happened during the day or that evening just before you went to sleep. Did you, perhaps, quarrel with your husband? Or did you get an upsetting telegram? And what did those two things do to your night's rest? If you're like most human beings, your night's rest was disturbed. Now tie up an adult experience like that with your children, and I think you will find that quite a helpful light is cast upon how to conduct their bed time.

If you have been having real bed time problems with your children and you have checked most of the causes we have described in recent articles and given yourself a high mark, just go over this advice: You may have done practically everything during the day and at night to make your child sleep well, except that you may both have gotten stirred up at the end of the day.

Mothers have to be rather consciously on guard against this because as the day comes to a close they usually find themselves tired and busy, too. It is when they are in this stage that their poise wobbles, their self-control slips, and behavior which they would otherwise overlook in the children gets on their nerves, then they go off the deep end.

A good way to avoid this is to make a resolution that you will not make an issue of your child's behavior at that time of day when he, too, is tired. Decide that you will avoid scolding and punishment. Instead, overlook anything that is out of the ordinary. Even unpleasant scenes or arguments between grown-ups which don't actually involve the child, and taking place at his bed time, may sometimes greatly disturb him.

In general, I would say avoid undue excitement immediately before bed time, whether it has to do with the kind of story you read or tell, or a wild prolonged romp with Daddy when he comes home. This doesn't mean that some active, jolly play or antics with Mother or Father may not be conducive to contented sleep. As a matter of fact, they may be, if they don't come too close to bed time, and if they don't end up by leaving a child in a tense state. If you have been seriously disturbed by your child's behavior thruout the day, bed time is a poor time to discipline a child out of some undesirable habit, either in talk or by scolding. Day time, when everything is quiet and cheerful, is a much better time for this.

One more item: If there happens to be a new baby, a new maid, or any big change in the "family personnel," make it a point to preserve rather deliberately a leisurely friendliness during going-to-bed time.

Officers Club Party.

Opening a monthly series of formal dancing parties for commissioned men and women, the Officers club will entertain tonight in the grand ballroom of the Knickerbocker hotel.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Scalloped Potatoes with Pork.

[Serves four.]

- 1 pound pork shoulder, cut in 1 inch cubes
- 1 small onion, chopped fine
- 6 medium potatoes
- Salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons fat from pork
- Milk

Brown pork and onions in skillet, draining off all but 3 tablespoons fat. Pare potatoes and slice thin. Place in greased baking dish in alternate layers with pork and onion. Sprinkle each layer of potatoes with salt, pepper, and flour. Add 1 cup milk to fat remaining in skillet and heat to scalding. Pour over all, using enough more milk to cover potatoes. Bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven for about 1 hour or until potatoes are tender.

Smart Blouses

High-necked or low-necked, blouses have a definite affinity for summer and autumn suits. These two are in the latest manner. Style No. 3818 is designed for sizes 12 to 44, and makes both versions. Size 36 requires, for blouse with tie-collar, 1⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric; U-neck version requires 1¾ yards.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

U. of C. to Hold Annual Folk Dancing Festival

The tennis courts of International house at the University of Chicago will present a lively and colorful picture tonight as house members and visiting groups assemble for an annual folk dance festival. Among visiting groups participating with the International house dancers will be the Music Arts associates, who will give Byzantine, Portuguese, Spanish, and Mexican numbers, and the Eitel Brosseit Czech orchestra. Among soloists will be Miss Mildred Yee, Hawaiian student at the university, who will dance the hula.

School Men Told of Ways to Meet Population Shifts

Methods of dealing with school problems arising from shifts in population were advanced yesterday by Prof. William C. Reavis of the University of Chicago in an address to administrative officers of public and private schools, meeting on the Midway.

Much of the trouble has arisen because administrators have dealt with the situation as tho it were an emergency, instead of examining the causes and preparing to anticipate future changes, said Prof. Reavis.

Friction arising from a school's failure to meet community needs takes various forms, he continued. For instance, he said, if population shifts away from the school, the distance the pupils must travel grows too great, and when population increases about the school, overcrowding results unless the growth is foreseen.

Prof. Reavis said the nation is four years behind in school construction because of war time restrictions.

Thru the Looking Glass

Heady, heavy perfumes have their place in the word, we know, but we are firmly convinced that that place, during the muggily hot months, is on a high, dark closet shelf, the flacons stoppered tightly. They're just not for hot weather wear.

Perfume of the right sort helps a woman's freshness in the summer; it bolsters her own spirit and it makes a good impression on her public. By "right" we probably mean "light." The best summer scents we've ever sniffed have been the airy kind.

A good lily of the valley, for example, is airy and cool—and pretty, too. Which probably accounts for the fact that this summer it's one of the most popular of fragrances marching off the cosmetic counters. Then, too, we have in town this year one of the loveliest translations of this scent that has yet been produced.

One hot weather specialty in this lily of the valley family that we adore is the bath oil. Ordinarily we don't care for oils in the summer, but this one we could wallow in. At the end of a bad day, a warm bath into which just a few drops of this have been tossed, is a little bit of heaven on earth. The cool, sweet [but not sugary] perfume scents the water, the room, and the skin. And it does wonderful things for drooping spirits. It gives us all the lift we'd get if some fairy godmother suddenly filled the house with the dainty little flowers themselves.

This oil is of excellent quality, but its fidelity of scent is what we think particularly noteworthy. For summer, it's just what you want—cool and uplifting.

Illinois Committee Organized to Help Tubercular Veterans

Methods of aiding war veterans who emerge from service afflicted with tuberculosis were discussed last night by representatives of anti-tuberculosis agencies and veterans' groups who completed organization of the tuberculosis veterans committee of Illinois.

Basford Q. Shields, chairman of the committee, which met in the Tuberculosis institute, 343 S. Dearborn st., disclosed the disease has been detected in veterans who left government hospitals without obtaining a final medical discharge.

The committee adopted an educational program intended to encourage veterans to check on their physical condition and apply for treatment if necessary. Col. Paul Armstrong, director of selective service in Illinois, said rounding up veterans in need of treatment is difficult because their case records are treated as confidential.

College Togs Leaning to the Conservative

BY REA SEEGER.

Previews of college clothes disclose that sloppy costumes are on the way out. Neatness, snap, and precision in dress, probably the result of G. I. Joe's regard for sleek perfection and pressed smoothness, will be the rule if you wish to be a sartorial success on the campus next fall.

There are sweaters, but they're no longer the bulky atrocities of a few years back. Pleated skirts are here, but the pleats are skimpy because of the limits prescribed for the use of fabric. These teammates will go on forever, but the outline of the girls inside will be seen in such a way as not to offend the campus equivalent of the Hays office. New and going strong are the smart one piece wool dresses and jumpers. Jumper models are the particular delight of college girls because they can be worn with pull-over short sleeved models, with long sleeved striped shirts, and with dazzling white cotton washable shirts and blouses. Of course they all feature the popular wrap-over skirt.

Suits have a more feminine flavor, with such effective accents as huge, decorative buttons, crocheted yarn frills along the side or front closing, cuffs, braid trim, tassels, and ruffles of woolen material, and bright belts. They come in big patterns—dots, stripes, and plaids. Colors are riotous. Coats are smart at three-quarter length with cinched-in belts, wide revers, and notched collars, and big pockets. Knitted materials in precision striped patterns make ideal contrasts for the plain solid shades—gray-black-tulip, deep green, scarlet, copper, all the neutrals, and winter navy.

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Good soldiers... the WAC

5 IN HAUPT CASE SLATED TO FACE U.S. JUDGE TODAY

The remaining five defendants in the Herbert Haupt saboteur case are expected to appear today before Judge John P. Barnes of the federal District court for final adjudication of their cases.

Young Haupt, who landed in Florida on a sabotage mission, two years ago, was executed. Later his parents, Hans Max and Mrs. Erna Haupt, his uncle and aunt, Walter and Mrs. Lucille Froehling, and two friends, Otto and Mrs. Kate Wergin, were convicted of treason in sheltering him.

The elder Haupt, Froehling, and Wergin were condemned to death, and their wives sentenced to 25 years in prison. The convictions later were reversed, with instructions by the appeals court that all six were to be tried one at a time. Hans Haupt was tried first last month, and saved from death by a mercy recommendation of the jury. Judge Barnes sentenced him to life imprisonment.

What will happen today when Mrs. Haupt, the Wergins, and the Froehlings appear before Judge Barnes is problematical. Belief in unofficial circles is that disposition of the cases of all five in one day might mean a much better fate for them than the original sentences. United States Atty. Woll would not admit the cases will be heard today.

BARRY, OUSTED POLICE CAPTAIN, ASKS REHEARING

A petition for a rehearing was filed with the civil service commission yesterday in behalf of Eugene A. Barry, former police captain at the Shakespeare av. station. He was one of seven captains discharged last month on charges of negligence in the suppression of gambling. Like the rehearing petitions filed last week by two other dismissed captains, Thomas Harrison and Walter F. Healy, Barry's petition charged that the commission was prejudiced.

DELAY INQUEST IN AUTO DEATH OF POLICY KING

An inquest into the automobile death early yesterday of McKissack McHenry Jones, 39, Negro, one of three brothers who amassed a fortune in the operation of the policy racket on the south side, was continued later in the day until Aug. 2 for further investigation.

Jones was killed when the car in which he was riding collided with another car at 40th st. and Drexel blvd. The driver of the car in which Jones was riding was Harry Smith, Negro, 6142 South Park way. Three other persons in the car were hurt.

Smith reported his car was struck by an automobile which failed to stop after the accident. Police, however, said the car that figured in the accident belonged to Edward Meuse, who said it was parked in front of his home at the time of the crash. Jones lived at 2945 Michigan av.

But what do we do on Sunday ? . . . Some people go to church and Sunday school. Some go to baseball games, or picnics. Some golf, fish, sail, ride, swim, skate, ski. Some take walks, take the baby out, take the dog out, take the screens out, take the boat out, take a bus. Some work in the garden, cut grass, chop wood. Some have big Sunday dinners or barbecues in their own backyards. Some visit, or get visited. Some go to concerts, clambakes, cocktail parties, public dinners, culture clubs, museums, movies. Some sing in choirs. Some play bridge. Some catch up on reading, study, sleep, correspondence. Some cook, clean out drawers, mend socks, sew and do knitting. Some take candid camera shots, make boat models, clean the car. Some just sit! . . . BUT most people read the Sunday comics—three out of four adults, and virtually all the children! Most Sunday activities, occupations, diversions and recreations have minorities but the Sunday comics have an overwhelming majority! So if you want to reach people through something that reaches most people . . . the Sunday comics section as an advertising medium is a sure thing, a cinch choice!

Metropolitan Group makes a national habit a national medium, with a network of Sunday comics sections in forty-one leading Sunday newspapers a total circulation of more than 15,000,000, more concentrated in more better markets than any other national vehicle . . . and reaches half the better families in the whole country, at home, on Sunday, every Sunday! . . . Big space unit, four colors, low costs. One order, one piece of copy, one bill! Make a note to find out more, soon, about . . .

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Buck Ross went all the way for the White Sox to win his first victory of the year—5 to 3, yesterday in Comiskey park—and what better victims could he pick for the occasion than his team's main 1944 parasites, the Boston Red Sox?

Not the least of Ross' talents was making the Red Sox hit into double plays when the heat was on, and it may be said that the infield responded skilfully and eagerly when such opportunities offered. The said infield not only reeled off four double plays when disaster loomed, but Ralph Hodgin threw out two runners at the plate.

Buck Has One Bad Inning.

Tom Turner was the main opportunist on the Sox offense. He knocked two singles and drove in four of Chicago's five runs. Hodgin, in addition to accepting eight fielding chances faultlessly, had a perfect day at bat. He made three hits and drew a pass in four trips to the plate, scored two runs, and drove in the one which was not sent home by Turner.

The White Sox got the first two runs of the game. Hodgin opened against Yank Terry in the second inning with a single and later scored. Leroy Schalk singled with one out in the third, advanced on Eddie Carnett's out, and scored on a single by Hodgin.

Hodgin Gets Third Hits.

In the fifth inning, Ross' only bad session, the score became 3 to 2 in favor of the Red Sox. Bobby Doerr's single, a pass to Jim Tabor, and singles by Hal Wagner, Terry, and Lou Finney gave the Bostons all their runs for the day.

The White Sox resumed the lead for keeps in the sixth. With one out, Hodgin lined out his third essential single and Hal Trosky drew his second pass. The runners advanced on Thurman Tucker's out and scored on Turner's single to center.

Ross stayed right in there when his one run lead seemed in jeopardy in the eighth. Finney opened with his third straight single. Tom McBride sacrificed and was safe when Trosky failed to handle the ball. Pete Fox also sacrificed but Bob Johnson bounced to Hodgin. Ralph threw to Turner and Tom tagged Finney after running him back toward third. Then Doerr, the American league's leading hitter, fanned.

Losers Threaten in Ninth.

Carnett's double and Turner's single gave the Chicago Sox a 5 to 3 lead in the home eighth but this did not mean anxiety had ended. Wagner singled with one out in the Boston ninth and Jim Bucher, batting for Eddie Lake, also singled. Manager Joe Cronin then batted for Terry and obligingly grounded into a double play, Skeeter Webb to Schalk to Trosky.

Champion Again

Mrs. Bernice Sick, who won her second women's Cook county golf tournament title by defeating Mrs. Floyd Zimmerman, 5 and 4, in the 36 hole finals at Jackson park yesterday. Mrs. Sick, wife of Heinie Sick, Big Run professional, first won the title in 1940.

County Golf Title Is Won by Mrs. Sick

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Mrs. Bernice Sick of Joliet returned to the golfing championship lists yesterday by defeating Mrs. Floyd Zimmerman of Edgewater, 5 and 4, in the 36 hole final match for the women's Cook county victory title over the venerable Jackson park course. The new champion, wife of Heinie Sick, the Big Run professional, put on one of the best rallies of the season to duplicate her triumph in the 1940 version of the same event.

After winning the first hole, Mrs. Sick lost four of the next five, and was two down at the turn. She then fired a morning back nine of 37, one over par, which included a seven on the 14th. Thus, she went into the afternoon 18 with a one up advantage.

Putter Fails Mrs. Zimmerman.

Mrs. Zimmerman, runner-up in last year's 38 hole final for the championship, found her putter playing her false thruout the afternoon, and by the time they made the afternoon turn, she was three down. The cards, in which the Jackson park men's par of 70 was used:

Mrs. Sick leads, 3 up.

Mrs. Sick—In	344	35
Mrs. Zimmerman—In	454	35

Mrs. Sick wins, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Sick took the lead on the first hole, where her opponent was in the rough and short with her recovery. Then the complexion of the match changed quite abruptly, the north side golfer taking the next three holes, and going 3 up with a par on the 183 yard sixth.

Mrs. Sick Rallies.

They halved the seventh in bogey 5s. Then Mrs. Zimmerman missed the ninth green, surrendered a stroke at the water 11th, and Mrs. Sick squared it by sinking a 4 foot putt for a deuce on the 119 yard 13th. A misjudged shot at No. 14, measuring 560 yards, cost her that, but she took the next two with pars for her ultimate intermission advantage.

Mrs. Sick three putted the 20th, second of the afternoon round, but went up again with a par on the 21st. A 14 foot putt for a winning par fell at the 363 yard 25th, and a par was sufficed to give her the 27th, where her opponent was short and then overran the green with her chip. The Joliet golfer added to her margin on the 28th, where she holed a 16 foot birdie putt. She was five up after No. 29, where Mrs. Zimmerman took a bogey five. The match ended on the 560 yard 14th, where Mrs. Sick ran down a seven footer for a half in par fives.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 21.—Charles Grimm unveiled Japhet Lynn, the railroading pitcher, for the entertainment of the Braves this afternoon and the ceremony, with proper seasoning in the shape of a pair of home runs, was such a success that the Cubs broke out of the National league basement after languishing there for 24 hours. The escape was affected by 4 to 2, giving the Chicagoans their lone success in the series and also terminating a losing streak that had reached four games.

The victory enabled the Cubs to climb to sixth place, ahead of Boston and Brooklyn.

Lynn, a coast league graduate, took care of his first start by doing an artful dodging act in all except one of numerous difficult spots he encountered and for extra help found willing collaborators in Bill Nicholson and Dom Dallessandro.

Dallessandro Settles It.

Nicholoson notched a two run homer, No. 16 of the year, in the first inning, an edge that subsequently was reduced to a tie by Ab Wright's round tripper with a mate on. But Dallessandro was heard from in the eighth with his No. 6, also with a man on base, and this proved sufficient to hang a beating on Armand Cardoni.

Lynn set out at such a dizzy pace that he fanned three of the first four Braves to face him. He handed his first pass to Tommy Holmes to open the sixth and Wright promptly homered to tie the score.

Hack made preparations for Nicholson's homer by opening the game with a single to center, but he was forced by Phil Cavarretta for the second out. The next pitch was the one Nicholson slapped well over the barrier in right center.

Nicholson Out at Plate.

The Cubs quickly learned that Cardoni hadn't been disturbed to any extent by the first inning blast. They didn't produce another threat until the fourth when Cardoni passed Nicholson in preference to risking another robust clout. With one out, Andy Pafko singled to put Nicholson on third, but the latter tried to sneak home on Merullo's tap to Cardoni and was nailed.

After the fourth inning flurry Cardoni handled the Cubs just about as he wished until Cavarretta singled to deep short with one out in the eighth. Cardoni got the worrisome Nicholson out of the way on a pop to Connie Ryan and just to show he was more than a little relieved he let loose a first pitch that Dallessandro thought looked inviting. He knocked it over the little wall that was erected in right to simplify the home run art.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ALL-STARS' LINE STRENGTHENED BY EASTERNERS

Gaziano, Cushing to Face Bears.

All-Star Roster

THE list of college football players who have accepted invitations to join the All-Stars for the game Aug. 30 in Dyche stadium against the Chicago Bears follows:

END—Abe Croft, Southern Methodist.
GUARD—Frank Gaziano, Holy Cross.
CENTERS—John Tavener, Indiana; Vic Lindskog, Stanford; Meredith Cushing, Cornell.
BACKS—Ralph Park and Pete Layden, Texas; Gene Fekete, Ohio State; Billy Reinhard, California; Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The eastern section of the nation today contributes two outstanding football players to the All-Star squad, which meets the Chicago Bears, champions of professional football, in Dyche stadium Aug. 30. These men are Meredith Cushing, captain and center of the 1943 Cornell university eleven, and Frank Gaziano, 226 pound guard on the Holy Cross team.

Cushing played varsity football at Ithaca for three years and while he is listed as a center, he also has had experience as a blocking back. That Coach Carl Snavely would single out Cushing for this important offensive assignment is ready proof of Cushing's ability. Cushing also has had experience backing up the line, his normal defensive assignment, regardless of whether he was the center or blocking back when Cornell had possession of the ball.

Interception Provided Thrill.

Cushing's greatest thrill was the result of a forward pass by Syracuse which he intercepted on Cornell's 4 yard line after the Orange had marched more than 50 yards and apparently was ready to score. Cornell won the game, 6 to 0.

Cushing weighs 190 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. His home is Buffalo, N. Y., where his father is a general contractor. Cushing was graduated with the degree of bachelor of electrical engineering and he now is employed in Eggertsville, N. Y. He anticipates an early draft call now that he has finished his engineering course.

While Cushing did not compete in other varsity sports at Cornell, he is an expert swimmer. His favorite football player, incidentally, is Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's famed forward passer.

Played with Service Team.

Rugged Frank Gaziano played three years at guard for Holy Cross. He was graduated with the degree of bachelor of science and majored in economics. His home is in Waltham, Mass. After nine months' service in the army air corps Gaziano received a medical discharge. He now is employed as an expediter in a defense plant.

While in service Gaziano continued playing football last fall and against the College of Pacific team he grabbed a loose ball and ran 40 yards before being tackled. This, he says, was his greatest thrill in football until he received an invitation to join the 1944 All-Star squad.

Tickets in the $4.40 and $3.30 sections of Dyche stadium may be purchased by mail [make checks payable to The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.] or they may be obtained at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st., and the lobby of Tribune Tower.

DOUGHERTY TO PLAY ESPOSITO IN GOLF FINAL

Bob Dougherty, defending champion, and Louis Esposito, qualifying medalist, who have taken time out from their night duties in war plants to play in the Midwest amateur golf tournament, will meet today in the 36 hole final on the Waveland course in Lincoln park. The morning round will begin at 9 o'clock, and the second 18 holes will be played after lunch.

In yesterday's semi-final round, Dougherty, who also is football coach at Harrison High school, defeated Norman Mann of Waveland, 4 and 3. Dougherty was out in 40 and 2 up at the turn. Mann had an outgoing 42 and at the finish was 3 over par for seven holes of the incoming nine.

Esposito advanced by beating Al Stacy, also of Waveland, 3 and 2. Esposito had a 38 and Stacy a 39 on the outgoing nine and the match was all square at the turn. Esposito bore down coming in and ended the match at the 16th.

Classic Trio

Twilight Tear, great filly owned by the Calumet farm and trained by Ben Jones, will go to the post the favorite in the rich Arlington Classic to be run at Washington Park today.

Running with Twilight Tear and Miss Keeneland as the Calumet entry will be Pensive, which won the Kentucky Derby and Pimlico Preakness.

The Brolite farm's Challenge Me, winner of the Arkansas Derby, is expected to give the Calumet entry a keen argument for the winner's share of the Classic purse.

Swimmers to Open Tribune Meets Today

Qualifying races in the 15th annual 100 yard free style swimming races sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will be held this afternoon in Cermak pool, 7600 Ogden av., Lyons, Ill., and at Sherman park, 52d st. and Racine av. All swimmers registered for these centers must report at 1 p. m. to be assigned to heats.

Postcards have been mailed to contestants who entered. If a postcard has not been received, the contestant should report anyway for if his name is on the official entry list he will be permitted to compete. The first race at each qualifying center will start as soon as the heats have been arranged.

120 to Qualify for Final.

Tomorrow's trials will be held in Whelan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avs., and California park, 3901 N. California av. Approximately 120 boys and girls will qualify from these four centers for the final meet July 30 in California park.

The Lake Shore club, one of the leading contenders for the team championship, will compete in Sherman park this afternoon. Among the other teams at this pool are the South Side Boys' club, Englewood Y. M. C. A., Lincolnshire Country club, and Washington park.

TWILIGHT TEAR HEADS 3 HORSE CALUMET ENTRY

Miss Keeneland Is Surprise Addition.

Field for Classic

SIX 3 year olds were named overnight for the 16th running of the $50,000 added Arlington Classic over a mile and a quarter at Washington Park today. The field in order of post positions follows:

	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
*Twilight Tear	114	L. Haas	1-10
Challenge Me	119	A. Skuzenski	15-1
*Miss Keen'l'd	114	No boy	1-10

Old Kentuck	119	A. Bodiou	10-1
*Pensive	126	F. A. Smith	1-10

*Calumet farm entry.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

[Sketches of Classic entrants on next page.]

Not satisfied with two strings to his bow, the astute Benjamin A. Jones of the Calumet farm added another yesterday with the surprise naming of Miss Keeneland to run as an entry with Twilight Tear and Pensive in the $81,350 Arlington Classic at Washington Park today.

The addition of Miss Keeneland, winner of $30,975 as a juvenile last year, brings to six the probable starters for the 16th running of the mile and a quarter fixture for 3 year olds and makes the Warren Wright threesome prohibitive 1 to 10 favorites.

Three Colts Oppose Entry.

Three colts were named to start against the Calumet entry—R. W. McIlvain's Old Kentuck, second choice at 12 to 1; Brolite farm's Challenge Me, 15 to 1, and J. V. Maggio's American Eagle, 50 to 1.

Twilight Tear the handsome winebay daughter of Bull Lea-Lady Lark, will be seeking her 11th consecutive victory and the winner's end of the purse, $62,800. She has won $66,740 so far, while a victory for Pensive would shoot his winnings over the $200,000 mark. Five triumphs, including the $75,000 added Kentucky Derby and the Pimlico Preakness, have given him $153,975 this year.

Noted for Upsets.

The Classic, noted for the number of upsets in its long history, is expected to attract a crowd of 27,500 and is certain to record a mutuel handle of over a million dollars for the eighth time during the Arlington Park meeting.

Speaking of upsets, Classic crowds have seen such prime favorites as Whirlaway, Bimelech, Calvalcade, Twenty Grand, Johnstown, and Discovery go down to defeat. There were only five horses in the field when Johnstown was beaten back to third place by Challedon and Sun Lover in 1939 in one of the most spectacular of all previous runnings. That was the smallest of Classic fields. On three other occasions, however, the prestige of outstanding favorites was so great that the number of starters was reduced to six.

Pensive to Carry 126 Pounds.

In 1930 Gallant Fox upheld his fame but prevailed by only a neck over Gallant Knight after a hard stretch drive. But on the other two occasions in which only six horses started, the favorites, Bimelech in 1940 and Whirlaway in 1941, were beaten by Sirocco and Attention, respectively.

Conditions of the race let the fillies, Twilight Tear and Miss Keeneland into the race with 114 pounds each. Pensive carries 126 and the others 119. Buddy Haas will ride Twilight Tear, Freddy Smith will have the mount on Pensive, Joe Cavens will pilot American Eagle, Al Bodiou will be on Old Kentuck and Tony Skoronski will ride Challenge Me. No boy has been named for Miss Keeneland.

$124.80 Daily Double.

Twilight Tear's half sister, Twosy, scored her third victory in six starts as a 2 year old in the third race yesterday.

A crowd of 13,500 turned out for the 29th day of the meeting and daily double winners collected $124.80 for tickets on M. G. Farnsworth's Black Fire in the first race and Brosnan and Halley's Valdina Math in the second. Black Fire paid $6.80 and Valdina Math returned $40.40.

John Marsch's Jezrahel, winner of $49,850 last year, took the $3,500 King Saxon purse by three lengths from M. Vehon's Santa Claus in a field of eight. Woolford's farm's Bull's Eye was third.

The day's co-feature, the mile Balko, went to Hyman Friedberg's Bolo's Choice as Mrs. Ed. McEvoy's Paragram took the place and the Walmac farm's Snack the show.

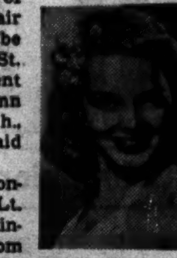
TOM HARMON, ELYSE KNOX TO MARRY AUG. 26

Hollywood, Cal., July 21 (AP).—Movie Actress Elyse Knox and Lt. Tom Harmon of the army air forces plan to be married in St. Mary's student chapel in Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 26, they said today.



Elyse Knox.

The date is contingent upon Lt. Harmon's obtaining leave from his duties as a P-38 instructor.

The former Michigan football star has asked a fellow flyer to serve as his best man, he said, but did not disclose his name. Miss Knox will be attended by Lt. Harmon's oldest sister, Mrs. Bertram Jensen of Gary, Ind.

The nuptial high mass is to be celebrated by the Rev. Frank J. McPhillips, chaplain for Catholic students at the University of Michigan. The matrimonial court of the Los Angeles archdiocese has given Miss Knox an annulment of her marriage to Photographer Paul Hesse, 46, from whom she was divorced last year, Harmon said. She was received into the Catholic church six weeks ago. Miss Knox, a former photographer's model, is blonde and 26. Harmon is 24.

Browns' Potter Suspended on Spitter Charge

Pitcher Nelson Potter of the league leading St. Louis Browns was suspended by President Will Harridge of the American league in Chicago yesterday pending investigation of Umpire Cal Hubbard's charges that Potter had used the outlawed spit ball.

Potter was ejected in the fifth inning of the St. Louis-New York Yankees game in St. Louis Thursday night by Hubbard after the umpire and Luke Sewell, manager of the Browns, engaged in an argument that brought a shower of pop bottles and hats onto the field.

Under the rules, Harridge must suspend Potter for 10 days. Harridge withheld further action or comment pending receipt of Umpire Hubbard's report. In St. Louis, Hubbard said he did not need any more evidence "than what I saw Potter do."

Leadership is no accident . . . nor is it begotten overnight. The fame of Bacardi has been so well established over the years that its very name is synonymous with outstanding quality. Today, however, with the growing popularity of rum in this country, Bacardi leadership is more manifest than ever . . . its superiority all the more emphasized and recognized. That jealously guarded secret — the inimitable Bacardi flavor remains unrivalled. Today, more than ever, you'll find —

STORMY CAREER OF OFFICER ENDS IN SIMPLE RITES

Oberlin M. Carter Finds Peace in Last Rest.

Some one pushed a button near the entrance to Graceland cemetery chapel, and in precise electrical response the strains of hymns, played on a mechanical organ, rolled over the dim green pews.

The dirge ended, and a minister who had never known him rose to read a simple funeral ritual yesterday for Oberlin M. Carter, 88, before 25 old friends and neighbors of the "American Dreyfus" whose death Tuesday closed a 40 year fight to clear his name of defrauding the government.

Fought for Vindication.

A West Point graduate, Carter, as a captain of engineers, was given supervision of a $3,500,000 Savannah, Ga., harbor project, out of which grew charges that he defrauded the government of $2,000,000 thru collusion with contractors. He was court martialed in 1898 and sent to Leavenworth for five years. He served his sentence and ever since had fought to clear his name, going thru 27 rulings of federal courts and reaching the United States Supreme court four times.

However, the funeral speaker, the Rev. Jesse H. Dennis, St. Alban's Episcopal church, made only indirect reference to all that, saying he understood the deceased had felt himself unfairly judged but, as a Christian, had now come before a fair judge. There was no eulogy—the minister noting it would be unfitting for him to deliver one for a man he had not had the privilege of knowing.

Closest Friend Attends.

Only one close relative attended—a nephew, Emerson Lucas of Memphis, Tenn. There were several distant cousins and Carter's closest friend, W. A. Benson.

Carter lived for many years at 2947 Wilson av., and one of his neighbors, George Fink, 4506 N. Francisco av., paid tribute to his work toward community betterment, speaking informally at the end of yesterday's rites. Carter had become a consulting engineer after leaving Leavenworth.

No messages had been received from former army associates, but Lucas said he expected there would be some inasmuch as his uncle had many loyal friends in that group.

MARY, WHO WAS CONTRARY OVER BRAIDS, RETURNS

A little girl who ran away from home because she was tired of wearing her hair in braids was back with her grandmother yesterday and sorry about the whole thing.

She is Mary Margaret Smith, 13, who lives with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Pearl Granger, 1641 North Park av., and whose soldier-father is in Italy.

On June 20 Mary Margaret made up her mind to spend her vacation in Hollywood among the movie stars. She took $670 from her grandmother's purse, scrawled a farewell note in lipstick on the steps of the front porch, and started out. Then followed a string of circumstances, including the loss of her money and clothes, which stranded her in Chicago.

When found by her grandmother Thursday night, the girl was working as a waitress in a drug store.

"It was an answer to my prayers," the grandmother said yesterday. "I'm perfectly happy to have the child back home. We don't care about the money."

Mary Margaret admits that she is a wiser little girl now and that home is the best place after all.

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR 7 IN BLACK MARKET DEALS

Cite Huge Traffic in Gas, Shoes, Food.

Scranton, Pa., July 21 [Special].—Federal Judge Albert L. Watson today issued bench warrants for four ousted key officials of the Scranton district OPA office and three businessmen in a sweeping investigation of black market operations in gasoline, shoes, sugar and meat.

Suspended 10 Days Ago.

The former OPA officials, whose suspensions were announced 10 days ago, are W. Frank Snyder, who was OPA district director; Arthur A. Maskery, rationing chief; Henry C. Walsh, district mileage representative, and Paul F. Gibbons, district enforcement attorney.

One warrant named Snyder and Maskery on eight counts charging illegal issuance of ration certificates for 75,000 meat points and 7,100 pairs of shoes. Maskery was named in 23 additional counts charging he transferred ration coupons for more than 6,000 gallons of gasoline to Walsh.

Charge Bribe Taking.

Walsh, who operates a large gasoline service station here, was charged with unlawful possession and transfer of coupons for 370,000 gallons of gasoline and with possessing and selling illegally coupons for 80,000 gallons of gasoline.

Atty. Gibbons was charged in two counts of soliciting and accepting $250 from a wholesale meat dealer, Robert Swantkowski, president of the Valley Provision company of Pittston, "with intent to influence his official decision" in a case pending against the firm.

The business men named in warrants are:

Joseph S. Bittenbender, Wilkes-Barre sugar broker, charged with obtaining from Maskery ration certificates for more than 250,000 pounds of sugar.

Gas Dealer Named.

George A. Nesbit, Scranton auto parts salesman, charged with illegal possession and sale of coupons for 80,000 gallons of gasoline, allegedly purchased from Walsh.

Sidney Friedman, Scranton gasoline station operator, named in 10 counts charging illegal purchase of coupons for 22,000 gallons of gasoline, allegedly obtained from Nesbit.

STRIKE CLOSES HALF OF LARGE RAIL CAR PLANT

The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company yesterday was forced to shut down half of its large plant in Michigan City, Ind., because of a strike of 120 riveters which began a week ago. Between 500 and 600 employes were thrown out of work because of the partial shutdown.

The strikers, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America [AFL], refuse to work because they are required to drive too many rivets, a spokesman said. Officials of the union said that the strike is unauthorized and that they are making efforts to get the riveteers to return to work.

George O'Brien, international vice president of the union, has called a meeting of the strikers for tomorrow afternoon in the Labor temple in Michigan City. He said that the union members will be urged to return to work and submit their argument to arbitration. The union has a contract with the company.

1,000 STRANDED BY STRIKE AT DETROIT HOTEL

Detroit, Mich., July 21 (AP).—A strike of 35 elevator operators and 10 engineers left 1,000 guests at the Statler hotel without services today. Most of the hotel's remaining 655 employes went out in sympathy or because they could not work when the strike began at 5 p. m. Thursday.

The elevator operators, members of the AFL building service employes union, were asking a 6 cent increase over their 62 cents an hour wage, John N. Anhut, counsel for the hotel association representing the Statler, said. The engineers sought a 15 per cent wage increase.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

July 21, 1944.

THE three greatest things to develop out of the war are plasma, penicillin, and DDT. That is the opinion of many experts and scientists. DDT is the famous insecticide with which the army whipped the typhus plague in Naples, Italy.

The farm has been fortunate enough to secure four pounds of DDT for experimental purposes. As yet none is available for civilian use as it all is going to the army.

Dichloro-diphenyl-trichloroethane—the full name of DDT—is a chemical formula which lay dormant for almost 70 years in a dusty volume of a report of the German Chemical society. It was synthesized by a young German chemist as a routine part of preparing a thesis. Several years ago the formula was rediscovered by a scientist in Switzerland and its amazing insecticidal properties were uncovered.

Developed by Swiss.

DDT was developed by scientists of the J. R. Geigy company in Switzerland and was used to save the potato crop there. The company now has the patents on the product and is making it in this country for the army.

Thousands of experiments with DDT reveal that it is the most powerful insecticide ever discovered. With it a dairyman can spray his cow barn once, and three months later a fly alighting on the wall will die in a short time. White washing and hosing down the walls does not destroy the power of DDT.

Beds properly sprayed with a DDT composition continue to be 100 per cent effective against the bedbug even after 300 days. The formula also can destroy moths, roaches, and silverfish, common household pests.

Perhaps the greatest future for DDT lies in its great effectiveness as a spray for vegetable gardens. Usually a gardener must depend upon two or three different poisons which are applied regularly thruout the season. Experiments now indicate that a truck gardener can use DDT as a spray or dust once or twice during the year and count on controling most of the insects that plague his vegetables.

Kills Orchard Pests.

Orchardists will welcome DDT also for it controls the coddling moth and other enemies of a good fruit crop. It also is deadly to the Japanese beetle, plant lice, and cabbage worms. It works both as a contact poison and a stomach poison, eliminating the necessity of variety of chemicals and constant spraying.

The Geigy company has given the farm four pounds of Neocid A 20 spray from its research allocation of DDT to use as an experiment in the dairy barn. The walls will be sprayed with the compound to check its effectiveness against flies. Flies in any dairy barn are responsible for lowered milk production, nervousness among the animals and the spread of disease. If DDT can control them a long step will have been taken toward perfecting dairy sanitation.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who have sweet corn in the silk stage are reporting the first attacks of the corn ear worm. This insect is not related to the corn borer. Moths of the corn ear worm deposit eggs on the silks, and when the worms hatch they work down into the tips of the ears and feed on the terminal kernels.

The infested portion of the ear can be removed before cooking, but gardeners can reduce corn ear worm damage by the use of mineral oil as an insecticide. Four or five drops of mineral oil dropped into the silks is fairly effective. If gardeners have any commercial insecticide containing pyrethrum it is advisable to put a teaspoonful of the mixture in a quart of mineral oil before application. There also are specially prepared insecticides on the market for use solely against the corn ear worm, on sale at seed and hardware stores. The insecticides are most effective if applied the fourth day after the silks appear.

FBI AID SOUGHT TO TRACE GUN IN WILLIAMS CASE

Chief of Detectives Walter G. Storms has enlisted the aid of the federal bureau of investigation in efforts to trace ownership of the .38 calibre revolver used in the slaying of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams in her Drake hotel room last Jan. 19. In the current issue of the FBI's law enforcement bulletin, sent to almost every law enforcement agency thruout the country, a description of the murder weapon and a short history of the slaying is given with a request that a check of respective department records as well as those of dealers in small firearms in their jurisdictions be made to see if the gun has ever been handled by them. The gun, a five shot, safety hammerless, break-open revolver, was manufactured in 1910.

Commodities

Cotton futures at New York closed $1.50 to $1.90 a bale lower yesterday on heavy liquidation as traders interpreted news of Nazi army purges and other strife in Germany as foreshadowing a shortened war. Traders said the reports from within Germany, some of them unconfirmed, presented the industry with the possibility of heavy cancellations of military cotton textile contracts, which currently account for a large part of operations.

SYLVANIA ELECTRIC.

Please send recent data on the patent situation of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc. R. G.

Answer: Altho the company's nonexclusive license under General Electric patents for manufacture of incandescent lamps expires Dec. 31, 1944, Sylvania has said that "it anticipates, but cannot be certain," that an arrangement for new or extended licenses will be made prior to that date. A new agreement has been delayed, pending disposition of a civil anti-trust suit filed by the department of justice, involving electric lamp licenses by G. E. and others.

The extension arrangement, Sylvania added, may include fluorescent lighting as well. Federal District Judge Leibell last March held certain G. E. fluorescent patents valid in a suit against Sylvania, but a final decree was withheld. A statement by Sylvania said that an adverse final decision would prevent it from continuing its fluorescent business without a license, but that it anticipates no interruption.

Radio licenses are held under patents of Radio Corporation of America.

VACATION ALLOWANCES.

One of our employes interpreted your statement of July 21 regarding vacation allowances to mean that the withholding tax exemption applies both to the regular pay and the sum paid in lieu of a vacation. Please explain.—T. K.

Answer: Such vacation allowances constitute wages and are treated as an addition to the regular pay. If the regular pay for the pay roll period was equal to, or in excess of the exemption, none of the vacation allowance would be exempt from the withholding tax. If the exemption was in excess of the regular salary, this excess would apply to the allowance.

WORLD BANK'S QUOTAS FIXED; REDS WIN CUT

More to Be Put Up by United States.

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 21 (AP).—An initial capital of 8 billion 800 million dollars for the world bank for reconstruction and development was agreed on today by the allied nations monetary conference, completing the work of the three week session except for technical details.

In a table of quotas for the various nations, announced after approval by a plenary session, the soviet union was alloted a total of 900 million dollars, the amount for which the Russians had stubbornly held out during days of discussion over the issue.

U. S. Quota Increased.

The United States quota was set at 3 billion 175 million, Great Britain's at 1 billion 300 million, China's at 600 million, and France's at 450 million. In preliminary talks on the bank, it had been the hope of conference leaders that the quotas for the bank and the international monetary fund would be about the same, but Russia and the Latin-American nations put up a strong fight for lower bank quotas.

The Russians finally got a quota which was 300 million under their fund total and all the Latin-American countries obtained reductions.

The United States, on the other hand, accepted an increase of 425 million over its fund quota, while the United Kingdom subscription was unchanged. In assuming its increased bank quota, the United States departed from its previous position that it would take only one-third of the bank's initial capital.

Total Short of Objective.

China and Canada received increases of 50 million and 25 million, respectively, over their fund quotas.

The total agreed on is 1 billion 200 million short of the goal set in the preliminary draft of the bank, but it was pointed out that additional capital will be provided if other countries join, with the eventual capitalization expected to be 10 billion dollars.

The purpose of the bank is to make loans and guarantee those of private investors in post-war reconstruction and development projects.

With final agreement on the bank capital structure, the conference was ready to clean up its odds and ends with a final plenary session tomorrow night.

Quotas of All Nations.

Following are the world bank quotas, in millions of dollars:

ILLINOIS JUNE CONSTRUCTION VOLUME DROPS

Building operations in Illinois declined during June from May, but showed a substantial increase over June, 1943, State Labor Director Murphy reported yesterday. Building permits issued in 181 Illinois cities in June totaled 2,735 with an estimated valuation of $5,184,845, off 15 per cent in number and 11 per cent in valuation from May.

Only one permit was issued during the month for a large project—a warehouse to be built at Riverdale at a cost of about $175,000.

Murphy reported that during the first six months of this year 13,869 permits were issued for building projects having an estimated cost of $25,102,359. Estimated value of permits issued in the first six months of 1943 was $13,623,561 and in the first six months of 1942 $47,224,249.

OPA TO PROPOSE REVISED RETAIL PRICE CONTROLS

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—A proposed simplified price regulation to apply to most retail stores, except food stores, will be presented to the OPA's retail council in New York City Aug. 29, OPA announced today.

The plan incorporates the principle of price control based on "retailers' historic pricing practice together with necessary safeguards for holding retail prices at levels no higher than present legal levels," OPA said.

The task committee of the retail council will convene in New York a day ahead of the whole council to consider the draft.

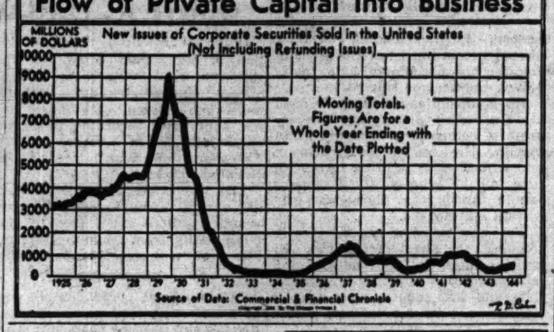
PRODUCTION OF CANDY SETS RECORD DESPITE RATIONING OF SUGAR

Washington, July 21—(AP).—Despite sugar rationing and shortages of other raw materials, candy production in the United States totaled billion 561 million pounds in 1943, the highest on record, the commerce department reported today. It said more than one-fourth of the candy was manufactured in Illinois, and that Illinois, Pennsylvania, and New York accounted for nearly half of the output.

The previous record was 2 billion 536 million pounds in 1941.

Candy imports, mostly from Cuba and Mexico, exceeded 35 million pounds in 1943, also a record.

Flow of Private Capital Into Business



Wheat Prices Mixed; Oats Ceilings Set

Reports of internal dissension in Germany gave the grain markets an easy undertone yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Price changes at the close were confined to fractions of a cent a bushel. Since trading in July contracts will cease at the close of business today, evening up operations had a tendency to restrict dealings in the deferred deliveries.

Wheat futures finished ⅝ cent higher to ⅝ cent lower, the former on July. Oats closed ¾ cent higher on July and unchanged to ⅞ cent higher on the distant months. Rye was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower and barley unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Selling Pressure Light.

Traders construed the developments in Germany as indicating a near end of hostilities in Europe, but there was no material selling pressure other than from cash interests who were hedging against purchases of actual grain. Prices dropped fractionally in the early trading to a new low on the current movement, stiffened later on mill buying, and then eased again.

New ceiling prices on cash oats were announced by the office of price administration. The basic price is 76 cents a bushel for 27 pound No. 3 white, with a scale of premiums and discounts for choicer or poorer quality grades.

ALLOCATE WHEAT

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—The war food administration announced today it will allocate this year's wheat supply even tho the current domestic crop outlook is the best in history.

WFA said that the 1944-'45 wheat supply probably would exceed 1½ billion bushels which should meet all essential requirements for this crop year and provide a substantial carry-over as a protection against possibilities of shorter supplies next year.

WFA said that because production and import estimates must be based on uncertain weather and shipping conditions, the allocations were tentative except for July, August, and September.

DELAY GEORGIA TOBACCO SALES IN PRICE REVOLT

Atlanta, Ga., July 21 (AP).—Protesting government fixed price ceilings, flue cured tobacco growers in the southeast apparently were set tonight for a market holiday. Growers were demanding 41 cents a pound for untied leaf and 45½ cents for tied tobacco against OPA announced weighted average prices of 39 and 43½ cents.

Georgia's commissioner of agriculture, Tom Linder, issued a proclamation late today postponing opening of the state's auctions from July 24 to July 31 but his order was clouded by an announcement by Gov. Ellis Arnall in Chicago that he had asked that action be held up until he could determine whether legal authority for such a move existed.

Linder, who earlier announced that if OPA failed to increase the ceilings during the holiday "we'll stay closed," said he had not heard from Arnall.

AIRCRAFT PART MAKER TO PAY DIVIDEND OF 50C

Directors of Liberty Aircraft Products corporation yesterday declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock. The previous payment was 25 cents. Directors recommended calling a special stockholders meeting to approve a split-up of common stock on a two for one basis, but set no date.

United Paperboard company declared a dividend of $6 on 6 per cent preferred stock. Last year's payment was $4.25. Burroughs Adding Machine company authorized a dividend of 15 cents. The previous payment was 20 cents.

Egg Futures Fall in Most Active Trade in 2½ Years

Egg futures declined as much as 1¼ cents a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday in the most active trading since November, 1941. December futures, the most active contract, closed at 39½ cents. Traders attributed the continued selling to weakness in the market for cash eggs, large storage holdings, and war developments highlighted by the attempt on Hitler's life.

People and Events

Government transport officials and leaders of the trucking industry will meet Monday afternoon in the Medinah club to discuss the tire quota cut announced recently by the OPA. Among those expected to attend are Ben Leventhal, president of Central Motor Freight association; Maj. Alex Baxter, transportation corps; Earle Dunne, OPA tire rationing chief for the Chicago area, and John L. Keeshin, president of Keeshin Freight Lines.

S. I. Carlson has been appointed export sales manager of Nash Motors division of Nash-Kelvinator corporation as part of a program broadening war time dealer service to maintain essential transportation in allied countries and provide for post-war sales requirements, H. A. Lewis, vice president in charge of overseas operations, announced.

The appointment of William C. Macey as assistant to the president of Jewel Tea company was announced yesterday by F. J. Lunding, president. Macey formerly was associated with Sears, Roebuck & Co.

William H. Miller, operations manager, and Willis G. Lipscomb, general traffic manager, were elected assistant vice presidents in charge of operations and traffic, respectively, of American Airlines.

W. F. Drohan, formerly executive vice president of Inter-State Motor Freight system, has been appointed assistant to the president of Keeshin Freight Lines and its subsidiaries.

F. S. Himebauch, manager of the Chicago retail branch of Victor Adding Machine company, has been promoted to central regional manager in charge of all field operations.

H. T. Boulden, sales manager of the Chicago branch of Sonotone corporation, resigned, effective Aug. 15. Stanley Torr of the St. Louis office will succeed him.

WAR GASOLINE USE AGAIN CUTS CIVILIAN SUPPLY

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—Increased diversion of refinery facilities to production of aviation gasoline has reduced the civilian grade gasoline supply more than 1,500,000 barrels in the last thirty days and 4,350,000 barrels since April 1, the petroleum administration for war said today.

"During this period of heightened military activity the petroleum industry has the added responsibility of providing supplies to replenish invasion and war theater inventories of military gasoline," said Deputy Administrator Davies. "Therefore, refineries are able to manufacture less of the civilian grade gasoline which places a greater reliance on accumulated civilian stocks."

On July 8, stocks of civilian gasoline held at refineries and terminals in this country totaled 46,136,000 barrels, compared with 46,274,000 barrels the preceding week.

BRITISH GROUP IN WASHINGTON TO DISCUSS OIL

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—Britain's Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook arrived in Washington today with the British delegation for an Anglo-American conference to conclude a final agreement on international oil policy.

Richard Law, minister of state and a member of the delegation headed by Beaverbrook, has been here for about a week. The talks are expected to begin Tuesday. The American group is headed by Secretary of State Hull and includes Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Beaverbrook flew directly to Washington from London in 19 hours and 44 minutes.

The British and American delegations will put the final stamp of approval on recommendations made recently by groups of technical experts.

American Car Earnings Rise in Fiscal Year

American Car and Foundry company, manufacturer of tanks and other fighting equipment in addition to railway cars, in its annual report to stockholders yesterday disclosed increased profits for the fiscal year ended April 30. Net earnings were $5,591,832, against $5,055,719 the year before, equal to $5.95 and $5.05 a share on common stock in the respective periods.

Gross sales totaled $218,834,838, compared with $289,275,689, and the company closed the year with unfilled orders totaling 190 million dollars, a figure since increased to 218 millions, said Charles J. Hardy, chairman of the board.

Most of War Outlay Amortized.

Hardy said that as of April 30, the company had amortized $11,340,989 of the entire $13,343,832 expended for facilities useful only for the manufacture of combat equipment.

Nash-Kelvinator corporation, another war manufacturer, had consolidated net income of $2,228,875 for the nine months ended June 30, against $2,054,224 a year earlier. Earnings per share were 52 cents, compared with 48 cents. The nine months' sales rose to $210,609,000, from $124,803,586.

June quarter net earnings of the William Wrigley Jr. company were $1,605,982, equal to 82 cents a share, against $1,861,649, or 95 cents a share a year earlier. For the first half of this year, net income was $3,149,935, against $3,574,562 in the 1943 period, equal to $1.60 and $1.82 a share.

Acme, Castle Earn Less.

Acme Steel company, Chicago, announced June quarter net earnings of $436,844, equal to $1.33 a share, against $509,554, or $1.57 a share, in the 1943 period.

A. M. Castle & Co., steel distributor, reported that its June quarter profit was $151,695, against $160,491 in the second 1943 quarter, equal to 63 and 67 cents a share in the respective years. For the half year, net profit was $301,795, equal to $1.26 a share, compared with $297,619, or $1.24 a share, in the 1943 period.

WALKOUT HALTS BRAKES OUTPUT FOR SUPER FORT

Lansing, Mich., July 21 [Special].—Motor Wheel corporation officials in Lansing disclosed today that a two day strike which has halted operations in the Centrifugal Fusing corporation plant has stopped production of brake drums on landing wheels for Super Fortress bombers and threatens Motor Wheel's output of truck wheels for the services.

The fusing plant's employes, members of the United Automobile Workers [AFL], have ignored a plea by International President Lester Washburn to return to work in accordance with a war labor board order.

The strike was voted in an effort to force WLB to exert more pressure toward effecting reinstatement of Emile Jones, former union officer discharged two years ago on a charge of destroying company property. The WLB is under a Circuit court injunction obtained by the company to avoid carrying out a directive that Jones be reinstated.

CENT. NEW YORK POWER PLANNING BOND REFUNDING

Syracuse, N. Y., July 21 (AP).—The Central New York Power corporation petitioned the state public service commission today for authority to issue and sell 50 million dollars in general mortgage bonds to mature in 1974 for the purpose of redeeming 45 million of 3¾ per cent bonds due in 1962, and 5 million of the 3½ per cent series, due in 1965.

The rate of interest of the proposed issue, not to exceed 3 per cent, and the selling and redemption prices will be given in a subsequent petition, a company spokesman said. The issue and sale of bonds also are subject to securities and exchange commission approval.

Central New York Power, a unit of the Niagara Hudson system, furnishes electric and gas service thruout central New York.

Delay Surface Lines Bond Interest for Igoe Approval

Judge Campbell in federal District court yesterday deferred until Aug. 17 a motion to authorize the semi-annual payment of $1,855,575 interest by the surface lines to security holders. The motion at that time will be heard by Judge Igoe, who is on vacation, and who has been hearing the traction case. Motion for the payment was made by one group of attorneys, but opposed by another, who argued the payment should not be made without Judge Igoe's approval.

BIG EXPANSION OF G.M. DIESEL UNIT PLANNED

Electro-Motive Will Segregate Repair.

War demands for its products have made necessary a major expansion at the big plant of the Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation, near La Grange, C. R. Osborn, general manager, disclosed yesterday. These demands come from both the navy, purchaser of diesel engines and other equipment, and the railroads, faced with the problem of keeping their motive power in condition to handle the heavy war traffic.

C. R. Osborn.

The improvements to the plant will include a new building to house the service repair and parts department and another to house the transmission division machine shop, locker room, cafeteria, and receiving inspection and warehouse. New roads and a new parking lot will be built.

Other Details Withheld.

Details as to cost and size of the expansion were withheld. Construction is to be started as soon as materials are made available, but the work is not expected to be completed before next spring.

"The enormous growth of the spare parts and service repair demands upon Electro-Motive has resulted in the development of a situation which seriously interferes with keeping up with the equally heavy demand for the production of engines and locomotives for war purposes," Osborn said.

"Some idea of the nature of the problem can be obtained from the figures on spare parts. In 1941 spare parts shipments of Electro-Motive averaged 790,000 pounds monthly. During March of this year the volume rose to 3,140,000 pounds. There is every indication that this rate will increase."

Line Operations Interrupted.

Osborn explained that the necessity for handling both spare parts and engine and locomotive production in the same operation disturbed the free flow of manufacturing, especially since Electro-Motive has gone a long way toward the establishment of progressive manufacture of diesel engines and locomotives. Such an operation cannot work smoothly, he said, if the routine must be interrupted to get out rush orders of spare parts or to rebuild generators, traction motors, engines, and other items.

In working out the plans to separate the service and parts operations it was found that war production could be served better if transmission equipment fabrication and repair and some other activities were separated and so this also was done.

Electro-Motive, which entered the Chicago area in 1935, already has become one of the area's foremost manufacturers, producing most of the motive power for diesel-electric streamlined passenger trains and many heavy duty diesel-electric freight locomotives. Since the original plant was completed the company has built several large additions.

NAVY CREATES SYSTEM TO END WAR CONTRACTS

Washington, D. C., July 21 (AP).—The navy announced today establishment of a contract termination system designed to provide an "orderly transition from war to peace production," but emphasized there has not been, nor is there contemplated for any early date, any net reduction in the navy's over-all procurement of supplies and materials.

In each bureau, units have been formed for the handling of contract terminations and disposition of property, the navy said. "As and when there is a net reduction in the navy's procurement program, officers presently completely occupied with buying functions will gradually become assigned to termination," it was added.

A major part of the conversion job will be handled by the recently created material redistribution and disposal administration with headquarters in New York City. Subject to directions of the industrial readjustment branch, this agency is responsible for disposition of all navy owned property and material.

HOG PRICES ADVANCE ON SKIDDING RECEIPTS; SOME GAIN 50 CENTS

Hog prices were higher at the Chicago stock yards yesterday, some classes gaining as much as 50 cents. Pressure increased against the $14.00 a hundred pounds ceiling price for medium and heavyweight hogs and stock weighing 240 pounds or less pushed toward the $14.75 light hog ceiling when volume fell to a new nine months' low.

Many hogs weighing 241 to 280 pounds sold steady to 10 cents higher and most went at the $14.00 office of price administration ceiling price for hogs over 240 pounds. Heavier stock and sows that have not reached the permitted maximum, as well as lighter hogs that may be sold up to $14.75 gained 25 to 50 cents.

Eastern interests paid the $14.30 top price, 30 cents more than on Thursday and the highest price since March 27. The average rose 25 cents, to $13.45, highest since April 20. This rise equalled the widest one-day advance since September.

Steady prices were paid for the small supply of steers, yearlings, heifers, cows, bulls, and calves. Best steers available went at $16.25. Canners and cutters were weak to 25 cents lower.

Lambs were mostly steady, with top natives at $14.25.

21 Oil Wells Completed in Illinois During Week

Centralia, Ill., July 21 (AP).—The Midwest Oil Journal said today that 21 new oil wells and 19 dry holes were completed in Illinois fields during the last week. Total initial daily production of the new wells was 1,768 barrels. Wayne and White counties led in first reports and maintained a lead in total number of operations.

Stock Market Breaks Widely on Continued Talk of Peace

New York, July 21 (AP).—In the sharpest reaction in more than three months, the stock market today extended its decline as leaders lost fractions to around 3 points.

Selling again was based partly on continued peace talk, influenced by the report of a revolt in Germany. Accounts were trimmed or shelved by those who believed serious reconversion difficulties would face industry if the war in Europe should end quickly. Altho the battle front news was viewed as bullish for the long pull, uneasy security holders were inclined to adjourn to neutral territory pending further European developments. Technical factors, involved in the recent climb to seven year tops, remained as handicaps.

Late Rallies Attempted.

Principal steels, motors, and rails retreated in volume at the start. Mild rallies followed, with a brisk selloff in the third hour. Dealings slowed toward the last as further recovery attempts appeared.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.6, at 54.8, the widest setback since April 18. The market was broad, 977 issues appearing. Of these, 770 were losers and 93 gainers. Transfers totaled 1,430,770 shares, compared with 1,342,910 yesterday.

Chrysler dropped 3 points to 91. Other prominent casualties were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Santa Fe, United State Rubber, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Western Union A, Westinghouse Electric, Kennecott, du Pont, and Johns-Manville. Modest advances were held by Texas company, Eastman Kodak, and Goodyear.

BONDS FOLLOW STOCKS.

New York, July 21—(AP).—Further declines by stocks brought lower bids for bonds today and closing prices showed many losses of fractions to 2 or more points. Heaviest declines were in some of the recently exploited semi-speculative rails in which selling reached large proportions. Several low yield corporates dropped fractions to around a point. United States government securities were steady.

At lower levels were Baltimore and Ohio 1995s, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, North Western 4½s of 1990, Rock Island 4s of 1934, Childs company 5s of 1957 and Great Northern G 4s of 1946. Exceptions to the downward trend included Great Northern 4½s of 1976 which closed 2 points higher to duplicate yesterday's rise.

CHICAGO LIST DIPS.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange were lower yesterday in turnover of 42,000 shares. Volume leaders included Armour & Co. and New York Central, each down ⅛, Chicago corporation, down ¼, United States Steel, down 1⅛, and Libby, McNeill & Libby, unchanged. Peter Fox Brewing closed at 100½, a gain of ½, for the only new 1944 high.

London Stocks Rise

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—British traders today took a bullish view of the reports of the internal crisis in Germany. In the stock market demand was stimulated for industrials and other issues expected to do better business after the war. A small but general advance in prices followed a week of firm trading. German bonds participated in the gain. A burst of strength was reported on the Liverpool exchange.

ERNEST W. BELL AND COMPANY
CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS
25 Beaver Street, New York

To the Stockholders of American Car and Foundry Company, 30 Church Street, New York City.

We have examined the Consolidated Balance Sheet of the American Car and Foundry Company and its wholly-owned subsidiaries as of April 30, 1944, and the Consolidated Statements of Income and Surplus for the fiscal year then ended, have reviewed the systems of internal control and the accounting procedures of the companies, and without making a detailed audit of the transactions, have examined or tested accounting records of the companies and other supporting evidence, by methods and to the extent we deemed appropriate. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards applicable in the circumstances and included all procedures which we considered necessary.

We were unable to confirm by direct correspondence amounts due from the United States Government, but have satisfied ourselves as to their correctness by extending our tests of the accounting records pertaining to such receivables.

In our opinion, the accompanying Balance Sheet and related Statements of Income and Surplus present fairly the consolidated position of the American Car and Foundry Company and its wholly-owned subsidiaries at April 30, 1944, and the consolidated results of their operations for the fiscal year, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Yours very truly,
Ernest W. Bell and Company
July 3, 1944

HUSBAND ADMITS OTHER WOMEN GO MAD ABOUT HIM

Tells Court He Quit Job to Avoid Them.

George Gowen, 32, handsome, dark, and husky, and his estranged wife, Bessie, 30, who still loves him, agreed in Superior court yesterday that other women are mad about him.

"I can't stand it," Mrs. Gowen told Judge Joseph Sabath.

"Neither can I," said Gowen. "I don't know why it is, but the women chase me to death. They have even forced me to quit a good job and now I am unemployed. Maybe Bessie and I could settle down together again if I can find some small town where the women don't notice me much."

Asks Temporary Support.

Mrs. Gowen, of 6106 S. Parkside av., appeared in court with Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker to petition for temporary support for herself and her daughter, Patricia, 7 months old. She is suing for separate maintenance.

What she really wanted most of all, she said, was a reconciliation with Gowen.

"If he only could get away from other women," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Gowen were married Sept. 21, 1934, and separated June 30, 1944.

They got along fine, Gowen said, until he was promoted to general superintendent in a Chicago war plant.

He Really Matured.

"You mean you really matured then?" Norman Becker asked him.

"Whatever it was, it was tough on me," said Gowen. "They pestered me at the plant, chased me wherever I went, bothered me with telephone calls, and wrote letters to me at home."

Mrs. Gowen had one of the letters in court.

"I have been looking over some small towns where I think Bessie and I can start over again," said Gowen. "I think we can do it in Mendota, in La Salle county."

Judge Sabath said he would give him a week to make sure.

Seeks Reconciliation

(Story in adjoining column.)

Mrs. Bessie Gowen in the county building yesterday to seek a reconciliation with her husband.

GAMBLING CASE DISMISSED.

Gambling charges against Danny Romano, 48, of 411 Fullerton pkwy., and Emilieo Busilo, 53, of 1047 N. Forest av., Oak Park, were dismissed by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in South State Street court yesterday when it was disclosed that police did not have a serach warrant in a raid on the handbook they allegedly were operating at 11 E. Walton st.

BE SURE ALLIES DON'T BILK US: SEN. M'KELLAR

Recommendations that the United States be "exceedingly practical" in post-war financial arrangements with allies as well as with enemies were made yesterday by Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.], chairman of the senate appropriations committee, in a talk before the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman.

The senator urged that America keep naval and air bases all over the world, wherever in the opinion of our military experts these are needed to facilitate defense. He cited as examples the islands now being taken from Japan and those near the Panama canal, both on the Pacific and Atlantic sides in the latter area.

Islands Menace Canal.

"On the Atlantic side, nearly all the strategic isles are owned by foreign nations," he said, "and are a constant menace to the canal. If we are practical we will acquire all of them so we can protect it."

Signatures to treaties limiting armies and navies, he added, have no value and he would never vote to scrap any part of our navy or to limit air power. He expressed the belief that peace for ourselves could be best attained by our own armed forces, and suggested a constitutional amendment be adopted under which needed lands could be held without making their inhabitants territorials.

Briefly discussing lend-lease, Sen. McKellar said that he did not agree with Vice President Wallace that we had any duty to see that all the Chinese, 400 millions of them, should have a pint of milk from our bounty, "delivered on the door step each morning."

See That We Get Benefits.

After the last war, he said, the allies owed us huge sums and paid little. Now, he said, we should in the post-war era see that we get benefits—in trade agreements unhampered by monopolies and cartels, or otherwise—from our loans abroad. Further lending, he said, should be on the principle of helping foreign nations to help themselves and become solvent.

He predicted that within 60 days the Russians ["and I don't like any form of communism"] would be in Berlin. He asserted the Red army was a marvelous fighting force. He also said he believed allied soldiers would finish the European war within six months.

Post-war taxation will be greatly reduced, the senator said, but will still be high. At best, he said, the national debt will be 200 billion dollars and will require more than 4 billions a year for interest alone.

Sales of Individual Bonds Reach 76 Per Cent of Goal

Individual bond sales in the fifth war loan drive total $213,205,000, or 76.85 per cent of the quota for Chicago and Cook county, Philip R. Clarke, chairman, reported yesterday. Corporate sales were $872,941,000, or 141.58 per cent of the 617 million quota. Individual sales will close July 31.

ARMY SPEEDS WORK ON F-M, SHOW REVEALS

Intensive research under direction of the signal corps has resulted in the development of frequency modulated radio equal to more than a dozen years under normal conditions, according to signal corps officers in charge of the "Weapons of War" exhibit in Burnham park.

The war show contains exhibits of seven army service forces branches. It is open free to the public daily from noon to 11 p. m. The show will close Monday night.

Every Device Shown.

In the signal corps exhibit will be found every type of communications device used by the army, with emphasis on radio, especially sending and receiving sets used in combat. The army has stressed development of frequency modulation because it gives interference free two way communication.

Neither Germany nor Japan used frequency modulation in their military radios, altho the Germans have a number of good sets, several of which are included in the war show exhibit. The Japanese, with their usual facility for copying, have a hodge-podge set that includes American, British, and German ideas.

Good Crystals Used.

The outstanding feature of Japanese radio sets is the excellent quality of the crystals used, according to signal corps officers. Germany used crystals only for calibration. American sets contain crystals in numerous places in the circuit.
